Tapes Reveal Nixon Orders In Cover-Up

Dean May Conclude Testimony On Monday

WASHINGTON (UPI) — A jury now has heard the voice of President Richard M. Nixon ordering the preparation of "self-serving goddamn statements" to clear him of Watergate involvement and payment of $120,000 demanded by a Watergate burglar.

Chief trial prosecutor James F. Neal yesterday played the tapes of Nixon's March 17 and 21, 1973, conversations with his counsel John W. Dean III. They were the second and third presidential tapes presented at the Watergate cover-up trial and brought to 160 minutes the amount of Nixon's conversations played so far.

Most of the March 17 tape had not been made public previously. Both the Nixon White House and the House Judiciary Commitee's impeachment inquiry had released the March 21 transcript.

Five of Nixon's former top aides are on trial charged with conspiracy in the cover-up—John N. Mitchell, who was attorney general and campaign director; H.R. Haldeman and John D. Ehrlichman, former No. 1 and No. 2 White House aides; Robert C. Mardian, former assistant attorney general and campaign aide; and Kenneth W. Parkinson, a lawyer hired by the re-election committee.

Dean will return to the stand Monday for what may be his fourth and final day of direct examination as the government's lead-off witness. Neal was expected to introduce the tapes of two or three additional Nixon-Dean conversations.

According to the March 17 tape, Nixon and Dean talked about ways of dealing with the newly established Senate Watergate committee. Nixon proposed that his youthful counsel draft a general statement saying the re-election committee had planned lawful intelligence operations—with no mention made in the statement about bugging.

"I would think, make, I think you could make self-serving goddamn statements (unintelligible)," Nixon said. "What I'm getting at is, uh, you have got, you can put off all the self-serving men and they in turn, the main thing is the President has —then, you see, that basically clears the President frankly..."

Four days later, Dean gave Nixon a full account of the planning and cover-up of the bugging. Dean said E. Howard Hunt Jr., the former White House consultant recently convicted as a Watergate burglar, had demanded $120,000 for support and legal fees, and eventually, he said, blackmail demands "are going to cost, uh, a million dollars over the next, uh, two years."

The tape shows that Nixon paused several moments and then said: "We could get that." A short time later, Nixon said quickly, "Well, for Christ's sake, get it."

At the end of the conversation, Nixon complimented Dean on developing "the right plan" for handling Watergate prior to the 1972 presidential election, adding: "You contained it."

"Now after the election we've got to have another plan, because we can't have, for four years, we can't have this thing —you're going to be eaten away. We can't do it," Nixon said.

Early in the conversation, Nixon said he could not understand what the motivation was for the break-in at the Democratic national offices in the Watergate. He pointed out he had just returned from his trip to Russia and the Democrats were about to nominate Sen. George S. McGovern for the presidency.

"I mean, for Christ's sakes, I mean, what the hell were we—I mean I can see doing it earlier but I mean, now let me say," Nixon said. "I can see the pressure, but I don't see why all the pressure would have been around then."

Ellsberg Says Pardon Another Lie

By BARBARA HOSMER

President Ford's pardon of Richard Nixon is part of a continued coverup of the lies and illegal acts of the executive branch of government, Daniel Ellsberg charged last night.

"Ours is a government of conspirators," the man who leaked the Pentagon papers to the news media told about 900 persons during an appearance at the College of Marin.

"The Nixon pardon "closed off an investigation that would reveal more things that we don't know yet," he said.

Ellsberg also told the audience that the war in Vietnam and the Watergate scandal were part of the same coverup."

The 43-year-old former Defense Department analyst who now lives in Mill Valley said all our presidents since the end of World War II have been guilty of lies and illegal acts in Indo-China.

Ellsberg said he had hoped the Pentagon papers would help the American people to understand the war in Vietnam.

"As our war against Vietnamese independence goes into its 29th year this fall, we still face the challenge of not only trying to end it but to understand it," he said.

The war is not over, he emphasized, and the government's contention that it has ended is just another lie.

The American public first was told "we're not there," then, "we're there but winning," and "we're there but getting out," Ellsberg said. "We were always there," even supporting the French before the U.S. officially took up the war, he added.

"The lies were to keep the public from knowing what the truth is and to keep it from acting to change the reality. And it's not over yet."

In the 18-month period of "peace" 350,000 Vietnamese on both sides have been killed, he said. "And Watergate is no more over than the war."

Ellsberg said that acts against him — such as the burglary of his psychiatrist's office by the Watergate burglars — which were revealed by the Nixon tapes, were "more attempts to cover up what Nixon was doing on the war."

Nixon policy was to try to win the war in Indo-China, to get North Vietnamese troops out of South Vietnam, leaving our Thieu regime in power and no longer under pressure from the liberation front or the orth," Ellsberg explained.

"I felt there would be an endless major war in which use of nuclear weapons was almost certain. I thought knowledge of that policy would stop it."

Ellsberg duplicated the Pentagon Papers and eventually released them to the New York Times. While they covered only the Johnson administration strategy, "they were similar lies for the same reason," to keep the American people in the dark.

"I blame myself for not doing it in 1965," he said of releasing the Pentagon Papers. "That was 7½ million tons of bombs ago."

Ellsberg said the Nixon Administration decided to make an example of him to discourage others from revealing the truth. "All they lacked was a crime. There is no law which would keep people from telling the country about officials' crimes — it would be contrary to the Bill of Rights."

If U.S. Dist. Court Judge Matt Byrne had not declared a mistrial last spring and dismissed all charges against him and co-defendant Attorney J. Russo, Ellsberg said they would have been acquitted. The majority of the jurors he talked to afterward said so, he reported.

Ellsberg went on to say the illegal acts revealed by Watergate and the Pentagon papers are characteristic of the kind of policies which the U.S. has carried on in many countries to suppress the nations' opposition to our government's attempts to dominate them.

"What has kept us in Vietnam for 29 years is a determination not to set a precedent for successful (removal) of American dominance in an area," he charged.

If little countries found out it was possible to resist the United States and its corporations and even kick them out, our corporate interests abroad would be seriously harmed, according to Ellsberg.

"It would threaten the interests of some 10 huge corporations which produce nearly 50 per cent of our gross national product," he said.

COVERUP — Daniel Ellsberg last night told a College of Marin audience that the Vietnam and Watergate coverups are related and still going on. The man whose psychiatrist's office was burglarized by the Watergate plumbers after he leaked the Pentagon papers to the media charged that President Ford's pardon of former President Richard Nixon was a continuation of attempts to hide the government's lies and illegal actions. Showers May Come To Marin

Showers may replace the heat and smog of the last four days tonight, according to the National Weather Service.

Cool breezes blew into Marin today, bringing coastal fog which ended the heat wave which had gripped Marin. Clouds driven by the winds may result in rain, the weather service said.

Temperatures that hit the 80s and 90s Thursday and Friday will drop to the 60s and 70s today.

A three-day smog alert was canceled last night by the Bay Area Air Pollution Control District, although some smog may remain until washed away by the rain.

Chavez Back In Hospital

SAN JOSE, (UPI) — United Farm Workers Union leader Cesar Chavez has entered O'Connor Hospital for treatment of a recurring back problem.

Dr. Jerome Lackner said his patient would stay in the hospital about a week. He said Chavez was in good spirits, but suffering some pain. Chavez spent three days in the hospital in August.

Proposed Legal Aid Cutoff Is Criticized

Marin County Counsel Douglas J. Maloney said yesterday county supervisors may find themselves "on shaky ground" if they withhold funding from Legal Aid because of the Marin City controversy.

Maloney said such action, threatened by at least one supervisor, would be viewed by the courts as violating the constitutional rights of Legal Aid and its clients.

Legal Aid attorneys, representing the Marin City Council, Marin City Tenants' Council and six individuals, filed suit Thursday in Federal Court against the county and others to halt the 379-unit Richardson Highlands project in that community.

They claim the redevelopment project should contain low and moderate-cost dwellings.

Earlier this week, Supervisor Arnold M. Baptiste threatened to withhold $19,500 in county funding from the legal agency unless its board of directors reviews the suit and takes a position in the controversy.

He charged that Legal Aid, in handling the case, was working against the best interests of the county and Marin City.

Maloney told the Independent-Journal withholding funds because of the Marin City dispute would probably cause another suit against the county. He said Legal Aid could argue that withholding the funds — as a means of hampering its suit — violates both the first and sixth amendments to the constitution. The first amendment deals with free speech, among other things, while the sixth guarantees the right to legal counsel.

Baptiste had requested the matter be placed on this Tuesday's agenda, but county administrator John F. Barrows said it was removed because of Maloney's advice.

Meanwhile, in San Francisco yesterday U.S. District Judge Albert C. Wollenberg refused to issue a temporary restraining order to halt plans for construction of Richardson Highlands.

The judge's decision came after Marin County officials promised construction will not begin until after a court hearing on a preliminary injunction sought by the Marin City groups. The hearing is set for Nov. 12 in Wollenberg's Court.

Hospital Strike Ends

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A one-day strike against 13 Bay Area convalescent hospitals — including three San Rafael facilities — ended late last night, after hospital workers received pay, hikes of up to 12 per cent.

According to a spokesman for the Hospital and Institutional Workers Local 250, the union ratified an agreement raising starting wages from $1.85 to $2.10 per hour.

The strike affected 800 workers in the Bay Area, the union said. San Rafael hospitals affected were the Linda Vista Parkway and Fifth Avenue Convalescent hospitals.

Regents Plan Search For A President

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California Board of Regents hopes to come up with a replacement by next March for President Charles J. Hitch, who said yesterday that he plans to resign.

William French Smith, chairman of the board, said the panel's search for a new president will begin within the next two weeks and include consultations with students, faculty, alumni and others inside and outside the ninecampus system.

Hitch made his surprise announcement at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Regents. He will retire in June, two years before his contract expires.

"I have watched some incumbents hang on too long," said the 64-year-old economist and former Kennedy administration official. "Everyone holding this kind of position accumulates barnacles which weigh him down."

Hitch became president of the nation's largest higher education system in January, 1968, following the dismissal by the regents of Clark Kerr.

During his tenture, Hitch frequently locked horns with Gov. Ronald Reagan, an ex officio member of the board.

The disputes centered on budget cuts and raises for faculty members ordered by Reagan.

Hitch said he leaves the $53,500 a year post with good relations with the university community.

"The university's external relations with the public and Sacramento still leave something to be desired, but they have improved and I suspect further substantial improvement during the next year," he said.

A 'Routine' Audit Says Rocky Owes $903,000

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Multi-millionaire Nelson A. Rockefeller says he has reached agreement with the Internal Revenue Service to pay $903,000 in additional federal taxes, plus interest, in a settlement based on the last five years.

The vice presidential nominee insisted yesterday the IRS audit was of a "routine" nature such as he has undergone all his life, and that the IRS was "just five years behind" in settling the bill.

When normal six per cent interest is added, it is expected the IRS bill will be over $1 million. Rockefeller said he would pay the bill in a "lump sum" when he receives it.

There is no penalty assessed by the IRS for such settlements.

Rockefeller said he agreed to pay the additional taxes for the years 1969 through 1973 after the IRS declined to allow major deductions for business expenses, charitable contributions and repayment of a loan to a Venezuelan bank.

"This is a normal audit that goes on every year for someone with as big an income —it's happened to Nelson every year since —forever," said Rockefeller's press secretary Hugh Morrow. "IRS auditors are with us practically the year round."

The extra taxes include $820,718 in income taxes for the past five years and $83,000 in gift taxes for the past two and a half years, Rockefeller said in a letter to the chairmen of the two congressional committees handling his nomination as vice president.

The two commmittes have gotten some 40 auditors from the IRS and the Joint Tax Committee to make an exhaustive study of the former governor's income tax returns. Their final report will be ready by the end of the month.

The former governor of New York said that he had agreed to the IRS taking extra time to review his 1969 and 1970 taxes, although under federal law the taxpayer's liability ends after three years.

Rockefeller said the extra taxes included $104,180 for the year 1970 —"the only year in which I had not previously paid a federal income tax."

He said the additional payment will increase his total tax bill in the past 10 years from $21.7 million to $22.6 million. In his lifetime he has paid a total of $69 million in taxes, he said.

Probe Shooting At Singer's Home

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UPI) — A hand-written note saying "I can't take it anymore, please forgive me," was the strongest piece of evidence police had today to explain the apparent suicide of a 29-year-old woman at the home of singer Al Green.

Green

Capt. William Maley of the Shelby County Sheriff's Department said an investigation was continuing in the gunshot death of Mrs. Mary Woodson, 29, of Madison, N. J. He said charges could still be filed in the bizarre case.

Green, 27, told police Mrs. Woodson, a married mother of three whom he had been dating, dumped a pan of scalding hot grits on him as he was leaving the bathtub at his country home, and then apparently shot herself in his bedroom. Police said Green told them he had met Mrs. Woodson earlier in the evening and invited her to stay at his home.

"After we complete the investigation," Maley said, "the facts will be presented to the Shelby County attorney general and he will decide then whether it will go before a grand jury."

Maley said an autopsy on Mrs. Woodson's body, with the approval of her husband, was conducted late yesterday.

The soul singer, who has had a string of five gold records, was hospitalized with second degree burns on his back, arm and stomach.

Political Football

WASHINGTON (UPI) — First Lady Betty Ford turned a 15-minute White House awards ceremony into a presidential happening yesterday.

As President Ford led 16 government workers into the Rose Garden, Betty, who is still recuperating from cancer surgery, waved to him from a third floor window. She held up a football and pretended to toss him a pass.

The playful gesturing caught Ford completely by surprise. He shook his head, grinned and waved back.

Then Ford turned to 48 members of the Wake Forest University football team who were present at the ceremony and began an impromptu discourse on football and character building.

Lines Damaged

ZIG ZAG, Ore. (UPI) — Clackamas County sheriff's deputies found two more Bonneville Power Administration high voltage power transmission line towers damaged yesterday, bringing to 11 the number of towers damaged by explosions in Oregon this month.

FBI agents went to the scene in the western foothills of Mt. Hood, north and west of the area where three towers were toppled by blasts Wednesday and sealed off the location.

An intensive investigation was to begin at daylight.

Gunfire Again

BELFAST (UPI) — Gunfire rattled in the streets of Belfast today and police said renewed fighting between Roman Catholics and Protestants again worries them more than street and prison riots.

Demonstrators carrying candles and shouting "smash internment" marched through Andersonstown and other Roman Catholic areas of the city last night to protest the British policy of detaining suspected extremists without trial.

But there was no repetition of province-wide street violence that shook Northern Ireland Wednesday and Thursday following the riot at the Maze prison six miles south of Belfast, where inmates burned down huts and other buildings.

Aid Resumed

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Egypt and the Soviet Union have patched up their frayed relations and Moscow has opened the door for the resumption of large-scale military and economic aid to Cairo, Egyptian government sources said today.

Soviet leader Leonid I. Brezhnev's planned summit meeting with Egyptian President Anwar Sadat in Cairo next January probably will feature the signing of new aid agreements signaling "a new era" in bilateral relations, the sources said in Cairo.

Moscow and Cairo announced jointly yesterday that both support full representation for the guerrilla Palestine Liberation Organization at the Arab-Israeli peace talks in Geneva and the Palestinians' right to have a homeland.

Drive Under Way

DETROIT (UPI) — Ford Motor Co., the nation's second largest automaker has launched a cost-cutting drive in an attempt to offset dwindling sales and a gloomy profit outlook. Officials, however, refused comment on reports of a possible 5 per cent cutback of white collar employees.

"We expect many cost-cutting possibilities to result from studies now under way," said Peter J. Sherry, vice president of personnel and organization.

Sherry took issue with a Detroit News story that said Ford was considering laying off at least 3,000 workers to help pare costs.

On Mission

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Elliott Trudeau leaves today for France and Belgium on a mission designed to strengthen Canada's trading ties with Europe and lessen its dependency on U.S. trade.

The prime minister was scheduled to spend the weekend at the Canadian forces base at Lahr, West Germany.

He will hold two days of talks with French government officials beginning Monday then fly to Brussels to meet officials of the Belgian government and the European Economic Community (EEC).

A Canadian government official said earlier no agreements were expected to be signed, but he said it was hoped the trip would "put back into equilibrium our relations with western Europe, both politically and economically."

Police Break Baja Prison Drug Ring

TIJUANA, Mexico (UPI) — Army troops and police raided the Baja California state prison and smashed the headquarters of an international drug ring police said could be larger than the infamous "French connection gang," officials said today.

Federal officers said the ring had operated without interference for years from within the prison walls, running a worldwide network of suppliers aad dealers.

U.S. agents, who assisted in the raid, said the ring, headed by a woman prisoner, may have taken over the market and operations of the "French Connection" mob.

White heroin apparently was dyed to make it look like the brown Mexican variety to keep investigators from tying the ring to the extensive sources used by the French Connection gang.

Neither Mexican nor U.S. agents would comment on possible complicity by prison or other officials.

The ring was allegedly headed by Helen Calderon Hernandez, 39, who investigators of both nations has been an important figure in international narcotics dealing for 15 years.

The raiders found $30,000 in U.S. currency, $100,000 worth of jewelry and detailed records of the ring's operations in her cell.

Absentee Vote Ordered For Mass. Cons

BOSTON (UPI) — A Massachusetts judge, in an unprecedented decision, has ruled that inmates at state prisons are entitled to absentee ballots.

Massachusetts Supreme Judicial Court Judge Herbert P. Wilkins yesterday ruled that inmates at state correctional institutions who are registered voters in their hometowns must be granted requests for absentee ballots.

The decision was made in a suit brought against Secretary of State John F.X. Davoren by the Prisoners Rights Project on behalf of all inmates who are registered and otherwise qualified to vote. An attorney for the inmates said about 200 prisoners would be able to vote in the Nov. 5 general election because of the decision.

Wilkens noted that unlike many states, inmates in Massachusetts are not stripped of their constitutional right upon conviction. He agreed with attorneys for the prisoners who argued the men were deprived of their constitutional right because they were unable to leave the prison to vote, or receive an absentee ballot due to a state law.

He declared unconstitutional a provision of the state election law that barred prison inmates from receiving absentee ballots. The court ruled, however, that the right to such ballots did not extend to statewide primary elections or national contests.

A spokesman for the actor said he had purchased screen rights to the controversial union leader's life.

Regents Plan Search For A President

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — The University of California Board of Regents hopes to come up with a replacement by next March for President Charles J. Hitch, who said yesterday that he plans to resign.

William French Smith, chairman of the board, said the panel's search for a new president will begin within the next two weeks and include consultations with students, faculty, alumni and others inside and outside the ninecampus system.

Hitch made his surprise announcement at yesterday's meeting of the Board of Regents. He will retire in June, two years before his contract expires.

"I have watched some incumbents hang on too long," said the 64-year-old economist and former Kennedy administration official. "Everyone holding this kind of position accumulates barnacles which weigh him down."

Hitch became president of the nation's largest higher education system in January, 1968, following the dismissal by the regents of Clark Kerr.

During his tenture, Hitch frequently locked horns with Gov. Ronald Reagan, an ex officio member of the board.

The disputes centered on budget cuts and raises for faculty members ordered by Reagan.

Hitch said he leaves the $53,500 a year post with good relations with the university community.

Sausalito Terminal Plans Shown

Plans for a radically redesigned Sausalito ferry terminal were presented yesterday along with a prediction by its architect that the Nov. 5 election will give the Sausalito city council a majority of members favoring a permanent downtown terminal.

Roland B. Mays, whose firm designed the terminal, presented the plans at a meeting of the Golden Gate Bridge District's building and operating committee. District directors last month shelved plans for the terminal, but agreed to let Mays finish its design.

Directors halted work on the terminal indefinitely because of opposition by city officials and residents to the project, but never mentioned that their contract for federal transit funds still requires construcion of the terminal.

Mays predicted council support after the election, despite the fact both candidates for the vacant seat and three of the four incumbents have said they oppose the terminal unless the Golden Gate Bridge District agrees to let the city control the number of passengers aboard its new ferries. The district has refused to do so.

The terminal originally planned as a triangular series of concrete terraces in place of the old ferry slip, would have cost more than $4 million, Mays disclosed yesterday for the first time. It had been budgeted at $1.3 million a year ago.

As a result, a scaled down version was designed, but it also was scrapped when its cost worked out to $2.9 million, Mays said.

The final version, with a concrete-topped wooden pier, would cost about $1.9 million if construction started by next September, 1975, he estimated. With costs for land and architectural and engineering fees included, the total price would be about $2.5 million.

Regardless of its cost, the district would have to go back to the federal government for another grant to finance the terminal if it decides to build it. The $1.5 million remaining in the fund for the Sausalito facility has been earmarked instead for the $17.3 million terminal to be built at Larkspur.

The latest terminal plan will go to the full board at 10 a.m. Friday in toll plaza offices.

The 20-foot-wide pier would be about 200 feet long and run parallel to the pilings of the original ferry slip. Retaining the pilings will save about $250,000 in demolition costs, Mays said.

The rough heavy timbers in the new plan, Mays observed, would be "closer to the historical version of a ferry terminal." Their maintenance, he acknowledged, would be "slightly higher" than the concrete version.

The terminal could be built now for as little as $1.35 million he said, adding that inflation is pushing up its cost by $20,000 to $30,000 a month.

The committee endorsed a staff proposal to store two of the three new ferryboats at the San Diego shipyard where they are being built. Storage through March, 1976, would cost about $225,000, as previously estimated by the staff. The vessels will serve the Larkspur terminal, due to open in the spring of 1976, two years behind schedule.

Ford Takes Republican Campaign To Southland

GREENVILLE, S.C. (UPI) — President Ford today took his campaign for congressional and state GOP candidates into the South, urging voters to send "anti-big spending" Republicans to Congress to help him battle inflation.

In a one-day, three state swing that took him into the Carolinas and Kentucky, Ford repeated warnings that America would be run by a "legislative dictatorship" if Democrats win greater control of Congress.

The President flew into Greenville under sunny skies and was welcomed at the airport by a crowd of several thousand.

He was greeted by congressional and state Republican candidates and made brief remarks at the airport rally before continuing on for campaign appearances in nearby Anderson and Rock Hill, S.C.

In remarks prepared for delivery at a $100-a-plate GOP fund raising luncheon in Greenville, Ford called for the election of candidates that will "help me fight the long, hard battle against big government spending and the double-digit inflation it breeds."

We must ease
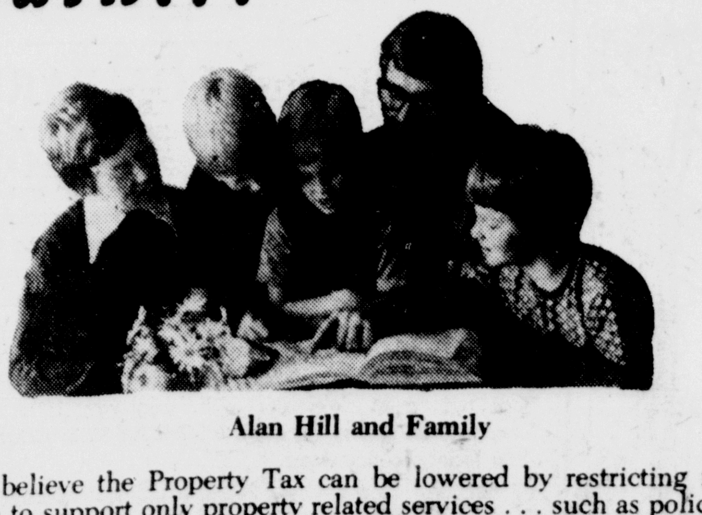
pain...



Alan Hill and Family

"I believe the Property Tax can be lowered by restricting its use to support only property related services . . . such as police, fire, and open space. I further believe that a full re-examination of the concept of financing local governmental activities from the Property Tax is needed. Programs such as education and welfare should be funded from the taxes which are universal . . . like business and personal incomes.
In 1972 a law was passed which requires the state to fully fund all new programs it directs the local governments to perform. There have been instances where this law has not been followed . . . and our precious Property Tax money has been used. I will vote against this happening in the future."

Novato Man Burned In Manor Fire

James Conn, 61, of Novato, was reported in fair condition today at the Fort Miley Veteran's Hospital in San Francisco with second and third-degree burns over a third of his body.

Conn was burned yesterday when his mattress caught fire at the Canyon Manor Convalescent Hospital, 655 Canyon Road.

Two nurses saw smoke coming from his room, rushed in and pulled Conn from the burning bed. He was taken to Novato General Hospital for emergency treatment, then transferred to the veteran's hospital.

A Novato fire department spokesman said the blaze probably was caused by a cigarette. Damage to the room was estimated at $200.

Canyon Manor was one of the three San Rafael convalescent hospitals hit by the one-day walkout of hospital workers which ended late last night.

Hospital Board Candidates To Talk

Candidates for theMarin General Hospital District board will discuss the issues at 8 p.m. Thursday at Ross Hospital psychiatric unit cafeteria, 1150 Sir Francis Drake Boulevard, Ross.

The meeting is sponsored by the Marin Medical Society.

Sausalito Terminal Plans Shown

Plans for a radically redesigned Sausalito ferry terminal were presented yesterday along with a prediction by its architect that the Nov. 5 election will give the Sausalito city council a majority of members favoring a permanent downtown terminal.

Roland B. Mays, whose firm designed the terminal, presented the plans at a meeting of the Golden Gate Bridge District's building and operating committee. District directors last month shelved plans for the terminal, but agreed to let Mays finish its design.

Directors halted work on the terminal indefinitely because of opposition by city officials and residents to the project, but never mentioned that their contract for federal transit funds still requires construcion of the terminal.

Mays predicted council support after the election, despite the fact both candidates for the vacant seat and three of the four incumbents have said they oppose the terminal unless the Golden Gate Bridge District agrees to let the city control the number of passengers aboard its new ferries. The district has refused to do so.

The terminal originally planned as a triangular series of concrete terraces in place of the old ferry slip, would have cost more than $4 million, Mays disclosed yesterday for the first time. It had been budgeted at $1.3 million a year ago.

As a result, a scaled down version was designed, but it also was scrapped when its cost worked out to $2.9 million, Mays said.

The final version, with a concrete-topped wooden pier, would cost about $1.9 million if construction started by next September, 1975, he estimated. With costs for land and architectural and engineering fees included, the total price would be about $2.5 million.

Regardless of its cost, the district would have to go back to the federal government for another grant to finance the terminal if it decides to build it. The $1.5 million remaining in the fund for the Sausalito facility has been earmarked instead for the $17.3 million terminal to be built at Larkspur.

The latest terminal plan will go to the full board at 10 a.m. Friday in toll plaza offices.

The 20-foot-wide pier would be about 200 feet long and run parallel to the pilings of the original ferry slip. Retaining the pilings will save about $250,000 in demolition costs, Mays said.

The rough heavy timbers in the new plan, Mays observed, would be "closer to the historical version of a ferry terminal." Their maintenance, he acknowledged, would be "slightly higher" than the concrete version.

The terminal could be built now for as little as $1.35 million he said, adding that inflation is pushing up its cost by $20,000 to $30,000 a month.

The committee endorsed a staff proposal to store two of the three new ferryboats at the San Diego shipyard where they are being built. Storage through March, 1976, would cost about $225,000, as previously estimated by the staff. The vessels will serve the Larkspur terminal, due to open in the spring of 1976, two years behind schedule.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, light air pollution.

Nitrogen, light air pollution.

Carbon monoxide, heavy air pollution.

Smoke particles, significant air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

Advisers Seek New Hospital

A citizens advisory committee has decided that Southern Sonoma needs a new hospital.

The committee's recommendation echoes the views of most of the members of the Petaluma Hospital District board who believe that expansion of the 57-bed Hillcrest Hospital in West Petaluma would be uneconomical.

Ernest Curtis, also a candidate for election to the hospital board, was the only committee member to vote against the recommendation. He said he believes expansion of Hillcrest is the better alternative.

Hillcrest presently is the only general care facility in Southern Sonoma. The area's rapid growth in recent years and the closing this year of nearby Petaluma General Hospital have resulted in overcrowding at the facility.

LIVE IN THE Woods Of Marin

LOOK and COMPARE

You'll find this development unmatched in all of Marin. For natural beauty we believe it's incomparable. And it's priced to sell — that's why only 13 of 79 units remain unsold in this magnificent complex with its mature trees, winding creek, scenic foot paths and bridges. Still available are two and three bedroom units with private patios, decks and quality amenities. Recreation facilities include a spacious clubhouse, two tennis courts, and a large free form swimming pool. Ignacio Creek is located in a secluded wooded setting just a short distance from the Marin Golf and Country Club. It is just two miles West of U.S. Highway 101, with an uncongested access for easy commuting to anywhere in the San Francisco Bay Area.

FROM $42,500 to $55,500

Take the Ignacio turnoff from Highway 101 and drive West two miles to Ignacio Creek.

San Rafael, air quality yesterday:

Oxidants, light air pollution.

Nitrogen, light air pollution.

Carbon monoxide, heavy air pollution.

Smoke particles, significant air pollution.

Other areas:

San Francisco, light air pollution.

San Jose, significant air pollution.

Colorless oxidants, brownish nitrogen dioxide and smoke particles aggravate respiratory diseases. Carbon monoxide causes dizziness, headaches and slows reflexes. Smoke particles come largely from industrial sources.

Advisers Seek New Hospital

A citizens advisory committee has decided that Southern Sonoma needs a new hospital.

The committee's recommendation echoes the views of most of the members of the Petaluma Hospital District board who believe that expansion of the 57-bed Hillcrest Hospital in West Petaluma would be uneconomical.

Ernest Curtis, also a candidate for election to the hospital board, was the only committee member to vote against the recommendation. He said he believes expansion of Hillcrest is the better alternative.

Hillcrest presently is the only general care facility in Southern Sonoma. The area's rapid growth in recent years and the closing this year of nearby Petaluma General Hospital have resulted in overcrowding at the facility.

Senator Loses Bid In Court

JACKSONVILLE, Fla. (UPI) — Sen. Edward Gurney lost his fight Friday to avoid being fingerprinted and photographed as a result of the 11-count bribery indictment against him and six other men.

Federal District Judge Ben Krentzman of Tampa ordered Gurney to appear within 15 days before a U.S. marshal for the identification procedure which is standard for persons charged with a felony.

Woods Of Marin

LOOK and COMPARE

You'll find this development unmatched in all of Marin. For natural beauty we believe it's incomparable. And it's priced to sell — that's why only 13 of 79 units remain unsold in this magnificent complex with its mature trees, winding creek, scenic foot paths and bridges. Still available are two and three bedroom units with private patios, decks and quality amenities. Recreation facilities include a spacious clubhouse, two tennis courts, and a large free form swimming pool. Ignacio Creek is located in a secluded wooded setting just a short distance from the Marin Golf and Country Club. It is just two miles West of U.S. Highway 101, with an uncongested access for easy commuting to anywhere in the San Francisco Bay Area.

FROM $42,500 to $55,500

AS FASCINATED STUDENTS WATCH, THE MASK TAKES SHAPE

City Council To Consider Adoption Of General Plan

The San Rafael City Council will consider adoption of the city general plan at 8 p.m. Monday in city hall.

The plan, more than two years in the making, has been pared of several controversial proposals that sparked protests during its embryonic stages, and public interest in the document has all but disappeared in recent weeks.

The council also will consider a proposal that San Rafael hire a full-time deputy city attorney to supplement the city's legal services. City Atty. Fred C. Robbins, an elected official, opposes that plan.

The council will discuss the state conflict of interest law and the filing of economic disclosure statements. Statements recently filed by city leaders revealed that Mayor C. Paul Bettini and Councilman Jack G. Nixon have voted in the past on matters affecting clients, and that Planning Director Herbert G. Hotchner is a stockholder in a firm with large land holdings in the city.

At 7:30 p.m. Monday, the city redevelopment agency will meet in closed session to consider property acquisition, then convene in public session at 7:45 p.m. to discuss sign policy.

Happy Said Free Of Cancer

NEW YORK (UPI) — Doctors say lymph nodes which surrounded Happy Rockefeller's cancerous left breast show no traces of the disease and the vice presidental nominee's wife may leave the hospital within a week.

Doctors at Sloan-Kettering Institute said yesterday Mrs. Rockefeller "is doing very well and is in excellent spirits."

She underwent surgery Thursday to have the diseased breast removed.

No Cabinet Revamping Seen Now

By BRYCE W. ANDERSON

No major changes in the President's Cabinet will occur until after the Nov. 5 election, says William D. Ruckelshaus, a man with "inside knowledge" of the Washington scene.

Ruckelshaus, once referred to as "one of the brightest stars of the Nixon administration," was in Marin yesterday to give a boost to the congressional candidacy of Republican Thomas Caylor. He and the candidate visited the Independent-Journal following a San Francisco press conference.

Immediately after Ford became President, the Washington press corps speculated that he would make a "clean sweep" of the old Nixon Cabinet. But Ruckelshaus said such predictions were "premature." Ford does not work that way, he added.

Asked whether he would consider reentering the administration — from which he was fired in last October's "Saturday massacre" — Ruckelshaus said, "I certainly am not angling for any job." He noted that he had organized his own Washington law firm only four months ago.

WILLIAM D. RUCKELSHAUS
Changes await election

Would he consider a cabinet level job? "Obviously I'd have to consider it if the President were to ask me, but I'm hoping he won't," he replied.

Ruckelshaus was successively assistant attorney general, head of the Environmental Protection Agency, acting director of the Federal Bureau of Investigation, and second in command of the Justice Department during the Nixon administration.

He lost the last job last Oct. 20 for refusing to obey President Nixon's order to fire Archibald Cox as special prosecutor after Atty. General Elliot Richardson had resigned rather than carry out the same directive.

Ruckelshaus hailed Caylor as a man who shares his views on both environmental protection and criminal justice. He also said Caylor's experience in the Office of Economic Opportunity, which he headed in San Francisco, would be valuable in Congress.

"Too often, congressmen write laws setting up new agencies without really knowing anything about how they will operate," he said. "Experience such as Tom Caylor's is very much needed in Congress."

Caylor put in: "Wouldn't it be wonderful if Congressmen were required to go out and work for awhile in the agencies they create?" Ruckelshaus enthusiastically seconded the idea.

He called the Marin-San Francisco district which Caylor seeks to represent an unusual one because it combines the interests of the inner city and suburbs. It needs a congressman who can understand both, he said.

The interests overlap, declared Caylor. Poor schools in San Francisco are partly to blame for urban violence, he contended, and urban violence causes an exodus to Marin, with consequent damage to its environment. Thus, the problems of the city affect the suburban area.

Better schools and better law enforcement in San Francisco thus would be to the advantage of Marin residents, Caylor and Ruckelshaus agreed.

HOW DO YOU SPELL THAT—?

William D. Ruckelshaus, who headed the Federal Bureau of Investigation last year from the resignation of L. Patrick Gray to the appointment of Clarence Kelley, during a San Rafael visit yesterday received a message to call an FBI agent in San Francisco.

When he placed the call, saying, "This is Bill Ruckelshaus calling," the agent who answered the phone asked:

"How do you spell the name?"

Patrol Car Slams Pole

A Petaluma police officer, in hot pursuit of a fleeing driver, lost control of his patrol car and plowed into a telephone pole early today.

Police said the officer was chasing a red Chevrolet through city streets at about 1 a.m. when he hit a telephone pole at the corner of Thompson and Magnolia Streets.

The pole was knocked down and the car substantially damaged, police said. The officer was not injured.

The officer involved, and other details of the accident, were withheld by police.

A Grand and Sensible Opening.

For the money, it's the biggest town house in Marin.

It's true. Western Oaks is opening a new unit of two-story, 1024 square foot town houses for only $31,500. Possible because construction began before building costs started to sky-rocket. 1975 buyers won't be so lucky.

This town home has lots of liveable space. A large living room, separate dining area, big master bedroom, good-sized second bedroom and 1½ baths.

One thing that isn't big about Western Oaks is our financing cost (9¼%) and our closing costs ($375). With a down payment of $3150, your monthly payment on the loan is $233. Plus $25 for the homeowner's fee and insurance and $60 for taxes.

Western Oaks has all of the qualities that makes a Marin home coveted. A lovely country setting. Superb vistas of the surrounding hills and oaks through sliding glass doors in each town house. And a handsome clubhouse and pool, almost completed, atop a high knoll with a view clear to Black Point Forest.

Live in Marin—sensibly. Our newly decorated model is now ready and full of fresh ideas that you can use in your own home. It's open daily except Tuesday noon to 5. Weekends 11 to 6. Just seconds off the freeway in Novato. Take 101 to the Rowland exit, then west to Redwood Blvd.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Ballet Boosters To Rub Shoulders With Dancers

By MOLLY MARIN

Members of the Marin Civic Ballet Association will have an opportunity to meet New York City Ballet stars Kay Mazzo and Helgi Tomasson following their performance tonight as guest dancers at the Marin Civic Ballet's fall concert at the Veterans Memorial Building.

A reception will be held for association members, dancers and the guest stars at the civic ballet school, 100 Elm Street, San Rafael. Merilee Stanley of San Rafael is in charge of the reception.

A number of dinner parties will precede the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fleetwood Bell (Ann is president of the ballet association) will entertain 26 dinner guests at their home in the Dominican area of San Rafael and the Morton Rothmans have planned a dinner party at Peacock Gap. Phyllis Thelen is ways and means chairman and Carol Rothman concert chairman of the association.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN persons aboard 40 boats were to leave Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon today for a weekend cruise to Vallejo Yacht Club.

The annual commodore's cruise is an occasion for club members to invite friends along for sailing, socializing and dining at the Vallejo club.

Commodore and Mrs. Ralph Neelands's guests are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pamsma of Lucas Valley.

PATTI NEWMAN of San Rafael will be honored tonight at a party following the performance of the vaudeville show she is producing and directing at the Belrose Studio in San Rafael.

Planning to attend the party at the studio are her husband, Allan Newman, and Messrs. and Mmes. Harold Becker, Jay Tillotson, Ray Taylor, Peter Sheridan II, Joseph Donovan, Don Horowitz, Terry McGovern, Peter Scott; Dr. and Mrs. Alan Jarach; Robert Rosenblatt, Sandy Cahill, Elaine Rosenblatt and Bill Hansen.

The vaudeville shows are held every Saturday night at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

ANN AND CHARLES HEGG of San Rafael will celebrate their 32nd wedding anniversary in a big way with a trip to Florida and the Caribbean.

As if that weren't super enough, the trip is a gift to the Heggs from her mother, Elizabeth Browell of San Francisco.

Mrs. Browell will be hostess Sunday at a party in the Heggs' honor: dinner for 15 at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The couple will leave next Friday by plane to Miami, then cruise the Caribbean and return to San Francisco by ship.

Ann is an employee of Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley; Charles owns his own pool building service in Marin, according to Mrs. Browell.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Cynthia Ross Saranec and Samuel Morgan Livermore has been announced in Hamden, Conn. Samuel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Livermore Jr., of Sacramento and the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross.

The late Caroline Livermore, his grandmother, was honored last Saturday at a picnic of the Marin Conservation League on Angel Island, one of many parks she helped save for public use. His father, who grew up in Marin, is currently secretary of resources for the state of California.

Samuel's bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Saranec of Connecticut, and is a graduate of Connecticut College in New London.

Livermore is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Darmouth College with a master's degree in international relations.

Both young people are in London, she at University College, and he attending the London School of Economics on a Marshall Scholarship.

No wedding date has been announced.

Dr. and Mrs. Colin Wong have recently returned to their home in Tiburon after a trip ot Hong Kong and Thailand. Dr. Wong was in charge of the trip, sponsored by the Marin County Dental Society, for all California dentists who attended the Hong Kong Dental Seminary earlier this month.

It was a sort of homecoming for Dr. Wong and his wife, Silvana, Mrs. Wong still has a sister living there and Dr. Wong has a brother in the British Crown Colony.

Mrs. Wong was born in Hong Kong and came to this country in 1959 to study at California State University, San Francisco. Dr. Wong also came to California to continue his education. He was a pre-dental student at the University of California at Berkeley, and received the degree in dentistry from the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry in San Francisco.

The couple return to Hong Kong every two years. Others from Marin who took the trip with the Wongs are Dr. and Mrs. Ted Pett of Greenbrae and Dr. and Mrs. Donald Strub of Mill Valley.

REGULAR BOWLING night for buddies of Aerie 256, Fraternal Order of Eagles in San Rafael, was turned into a birthday celebration for member Tony Costello of San Rafael recently.

Members and their wives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Guendner of Larkspur to celebrate Tony's 63rd birthday. Tony is a real estate salesman in Marin and a friend of the Guendners for 25 years.

Mary Ann Thomas Is Sun Valley Club Chief

Mary Ann Thomas of San Rafael is serving as president of the Sun Valley School Parent Faculty Club.

MARY ANN THOMAS
Sun Valley School

An eight-year member of the club, she has served as room mother and recording secretary. Her plans for the coming school year include a work night at the school on Nov. 20, a meeting with a "Trip to Russia" theme on Jan. 9, a spring festival on May 3 and a potluck dinner on May 30.

Mrs. Thomas is chairman of the More Able Learner Advisory Committee to the San Rafael City Schools Gifted Children's Program and also works part time as assistant coordinator of the program. THE LAST WORD

The Years Bring Changes In Women's Parties, Doll's Role

By JOAN LISETOR

It hasn't been too many years since a group of women getting together for an evening was called a "hen party." Conversation centered around home and children, and most of the women probably would have preferred male companionship.

The changes that have occurred were evident last week, when the National Women's Political Caucus of Marin gave a dinner prior to Gloria Steinem's talk at the College of Marin.

The dinner at the home of Martin and Dorothy Blinder in San Anselmo attracted a cross section of about 175 Marin women. There were women of all ages, some very active in the community, representing a variety of political philosophies and interests. A few years ago it would have been difficult to get that many women out for the evening and even more surprising to see them having a good time.

These changes are also taking place within many traditional women's organizations, which have always had a problem attracting new, young members. Some are offering programs on the women's movement, arranged by their younger members but enjoyed by their older members. Often to the surprise of the older members.

FROM THE "if you can't lick 'em join 'em department" comes news of a new toy to "stimulate interest in sports." The toy is a doll, resembling Barbie, that "actually plays tennis, golf, softball and volleyball."

The doll, according to its manufacturer, is a great way to start your daughter thinking of sports as a career.

With the doll comes the message, "No longer thought of as oddballs or unable to compete with men, today women are sought after as the real money makers at the gate. And with their superstar status come all the rewards of success — the big money, prestige and the good life . . ."

By playing with the doll, the child is supposed to have her interest in sports stimulated, which could lead to a career in sports. Are you sure now this is what you want for your daughter?

All this because Billie Jean King defeated Bobby Riggs last year. Wonder what their favorite childhood toys were?

Beware of dolls promising to remove sex stereotypes. They fall in the same category as politicians promising to support equal pay for equal work.

Rabbi To Discuss Elderly Problems

"Let's Liberate the Elderly" will be the topic of a talk by Rabbi Abraham Feinberg Oct. 30 at the Marin Jewish Community Center, 200 N. San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

Rabbi Feinberg, rabbi-in-residence at Glide Memorial Church in San Francisco, will discuss the needs of today's elderly beginning at 8 p.m.

Rabbi Feinberg is rabbi emeritus of Holy Blossom Temple in Toronto, Canada. He is an author and had his own radio series in Berkeley, "Gray Lib."

Larkspur Women's Group Preserves Historic Sites

There is a lot of history in Larkspur, and a group of women in that city is working to preserve it.

The women are members of the Larkspur Heritage Committee, which evolved from a beautification committee established by Mayor Joan Sestak, when she was elected to the Larkspur City Council in 1972.

The beautification project began with money left over from her campaign. Merchants added money to the fund, and trees were planted on Larkspur's streets. Next the City Hall was painted. The Lions Club gave money for benches placed at the city's bus stops.

To decorate the spruced up city hall the committee began collecting old photographs. They bought frames at flea markets and painted them with the paint left over from city hall. But the photographs required captions, which required research, and the research is what got the women interested in history.

In April the Larkspur Heritage Committee was formed, and Nancy Curley was appointed chairman. Its first project was the photo display, and an open house and old timers tea was given at city hall to introduce the picture gallery.

Next they began interviewing the long time residents and delving through vaults, where old maps and papers are stored. Finding homes, structures and sites with historical significance the committee began developing a self guiding walking tour of downtown Larkspur.

Directions for the tour in the form of a brochure will be ready for the Larkspur merchant's annual open house on Nov. 3.

The tour will take the average walker an hour and has 20 points of interest. It begins with an historical marker placed by the committee on a site which has been a Miwok Indian burial ground, government sawmill, the Bickerstaff family home and later the Doherty family home. Included on the tour are the old Larkspur train station, Niven Nursery, pioneer Charlie Rice's home and site of his livery stable, the Blue Rock Inn, the Rosebowl site, the fire department, city hall, St. Patrick's Church, old homes once owned by the Costello, Probert, Dolliver, Gardiner, Brown and DeVeuve families, the saw mill in Baltimore Canyon, Owlswood, Larkspur-Corte Madera School and the old Baltimore Railroad Station.

Loops will be added onto the tour.

The committee, which is sponsored by the Larkspur City Council, reports to the Parks and Recreation Commission. Members are involved for a variety of reasons. Some are old time residents, others are new in the community and some live in the old, historic houses.

Goals of the committee are to formulate and pass an historic preservation ordinance and to acquire one of the original homes and preserve it. — J. L.

Preview Party Is Scheduled For Northgate Haunted House

Members of Jolly Rogers Chapter, Children's Home Society will inaugurate their 11th annual Haunted House at a preview party Tuesday at the Northgate Medical-Dental Center. Donors, sponsors and supporters of the Haunted House will be honored.

A haunting tour will take place at 8 p.m. at the Haunted House, located this year on parking lot A at Northgate Mall. Members and their husbands erected the 2,000 square foot portable house in one weekend and members have since converted it into the haunted mansion that has become a traditional Halloween fund-raiser for the benefit of the Children's Home Society.

Dianne Easton is chairman of the preview party, Sid Stockwell will be master of ceremonies. Co-chairman of the Haunted House are Judy Clem and Barbara Jones.

Cheese and wine will be served following the tour.

The Haunted House will open officially on Thursday, Oct. 24, and will remain open through Wednesday, Oct. 30. Haunting times are from 3 to 9 p.m. weekdays and noon to 9 p.m. on Saturday, Sunday and Monday.

Virginia Keating will review the popular book "I Heard The Owl Call My Name" by Margaret Craven at the Book Review Section meeting at the San Rafael Improvement Club at 1:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Guests are welcome according to Arvilla Hacke, section chairman.

A potluck supper and silent auction are on the agenda for the Catholic Daughters of America, Court St. Agnes 1428 in Fairfax when they meet Wednesday evening at St. Rita's Parish Hall.

Velia Duggan of Fairfax, assisted by Wilhelmina Hastings, is in charge of the event, which will begin at 6:30 p.m.

Proceeds from the silent auction will be set aside for one of the court's charities. Members may bring prospective members as their guests, according to publicity chairman Lorraine Irving.

Ballet Boosters To Rub Shoulders With Dancers

By MOLLY MARIN

Members of the Marin Civic Ballet Association will have an opportunity to meet New York City Ballet stars Kay Mazzo and Helgi Tomasson following their performance tonight as guest dancers at the Marin Civic Ballet's fall concert at the Veterans Memorial Building.

A reception will be held for association members, dancers and the guest stars at the civic ballet school, 100 Elm Street, San Rafael. Merilee Stanley of San Rafael is in charge of the reception.

A number of dinner parties will precede the performance.

Mr. and Mrs. James Fleetwood Bell (Ann is president of the ballet association) will entertain 26 dinner guests at their home in the Dominican area of San Rafael and the Morton Rothmans have planned a dinner party at Peacock Gap. Phyllis Thelen is ways and means chairman and Carol Rothman concert chairman of the association.

ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTEEN persons aboard 40 boats were to leave Paradise Harbor Yacht Club in Tiburon today for a weekend cruise to Vallejo Yacht Club.

The annual commodore's cruise is an occasion for club members to invite friends along for sailing, socializing and dining at the Vallejo club.

Commodore and Mrs. Ralph Neelands's guests are Mr. and Mrs. Tom Pamsma of Lucas Valley.

PATTI NEWMAN of San Rafael will be honored tonight at a party following the performance of the vaudeville show she is producing and directing at the Belrose Studio in San Rafael.

Planning to attend the party at the studio are her husband, Allan Newman, and Messrs. and Mmes. Harold Becker, Jay Tillotson, Ray Taylor, Peter Sheridan II, Joseph Donovan, Don Horowitz, Terry McGovern, Peter Scott; Dr. and Mrs. Alan Jarach; Robert Rosenblatt, Sandy Cahill, Elaine Rosenblatt and Bill Hansen.

The vaudeville shows are held every Saturday night at 7 p.m. and 9:30 p.m.

ANN AND CHARLES HEGG of San Rafael will celebrate their 32nd wedding anniversary in a big way with a trip to Florida and the Caribbean.

As if that weren't super enough, the trip is a gift to the Heggs from her mother, Elizabeth Browell of San Francisco.

Mrs. Browell will be hostess Sunday at a party in the Heggs' honor: dinner for 15 at the Alta Mira Hotel in Sausalito.

The couple will leave next Friday by plane to Miami, then cruise the Caribbean and return to San Francisco by ship.

Ann is an employee of Sabella's restaurant in Mill Valley; Charles owns his own pool building service in Marin, according to Mrs. Browell.

THE ENGAGEMENT of Cynthia Ross Saranec and Samuel Morgan Livermore has been announced in Hamden, Conn. Samuel is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Livermore Jr., of Sacramento and the grandson of the late Mr. and Mrs. Norman B. Livermore of Ross.

The late Caroline Livermore, his grandmother, was honored last Saturday at a picnic of the Marin Conservation League on Angel Island, one of many parks she helped save for public use. His father, who grew up in Marin, is currently secretary of resources for the state of California.

Samuel's bride-to-be is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edmund C. Saranec of Connecticut, and is a graduate of Connecticut College in New London.

Livermore is a Phi Beta Kappa graduate of Darmouth College with a master's degree in international relations.

Both young people are in London, she at University College, and he attending the London School of Economics on a Marshall Scholarship.

No wedding date has been announced.

Dr. and Mrs. Colin Wong have recently returned to their home in Tiburon after a trip ot Hong Kong and Thailand. Dr. Wong was in charge of the trip, sponsored by the Marin County Dental Society, for all California dentists who attended the Hong Kong Dental Seminary earlier this month.

It was a sort of homecoming for Dr. Wong and his wife, Silvana, Mrs. Wong still has a sister living there and Dr. Wong has a brother in the British Crown Colony.

Mrs. Wong was born in Hong Kong and came to this country in 1959 to study at California State University, San Francisco. Dr. Wong also came to California to continue his education. He was a pre-dental student at the University of California at Berkeley, and received the degree in dentistry from the University of the Pacific School of Dentistry in San Francisco.

The couple return to Hong Kong every two years. Others from Marin who took the trip with the Wongs are Dr. and Mrs. Ted Pett of Greenbrae and Dr. and Mrs. Donald Strub of Mill Valley.

REGULAR BOWLING night for buddies of Aerie 256, Fraternal Order of Eagles in San Rafael, was turned into a birthday celebration for member Tony Costello of San Rafael recently.

Members and their wives gathered at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Guendner of Larkspur to celebrate Tony's 63rd birthday. Tony is a real estate salesman in Marin and a friend of the Guendners for 25 years.

Mary Ann Thomas Is Sun Valley Club Chief

Mary Ann Thomas of San Rafael is serving as president of the Sun Valley School Parent Faculty Club.

MARY ANN THOMAS
Sun Valley School

An eight-year member of the club, she has served as room mother and recording secretary. Her plans for the coming school year include a work night at the school on Nov. 20, a meeting with a "Trip to Russia" theme on Jan. 9, a spring festival on May 3 and a potluck dinner on May 30.

Mrs. Thomas is chairman of the More Able Learner Advisory Committee to the San Rafael City Schools Gifted Children's Program and also works part time as assistant coordinator of the program. She is corresponding secretary of the Pi Beta Phi Alumnae Club of Marin and teaches first grade at St. John's Episcopal Church Sunday school in Ross.

A native of Washington, D.C., Mrs. Thomas was reared in Coronado. She attended Pomona College and received the bachelor of arts degree from the University of California at Berkeley and master of arts degree from the University of California at Los Angeles.

She has lived in Marin for eight years. Her husband, John Ralph Thomas Jr., is a partner in the San Rafael law firm of Shaw, Kuhn and Thomas. They are parents of Robert, 12, Shannon, 8, and Kristen, 5 years old. Her hobbies are tennis, needlework and skiing.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Guys Tell Him An Ex-Student 'Got It On' With The Teacher

RAP:

I found out my German teacher lived in my subdivision, so I went to see her, just to be friendly and ask a question on the next day's lesson.

However, I found out that a former student of hers had done this and really got it on. That's what the guys told me at school.

I am afraid she will think I was making a pass at her and that she will give me special attention. This would ruin things with me and my girl. Should I go over and explain that my intentions were strictly honorable? — FRESHMAN BUT NOT A FRESH MAN

F BUT NOT FM:

Since your intentions WERE honorable — in fact you displayed a distinct lack of "intentions," why explain anything to your German teacher? (Who would probably be shocked and (or) embarrassed.)

But next time you visit her, take your girl along. — HELEN

FRESHMAN:

If you believed all the rumors that went around, pretty soon you'd have no friends at all. High school guys do a lot of fantasizing about good-looking young teachers. Treat her as always, and forget what is probably some fella's wishful thinking. — SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am engaged to a guy in the Marines. Last night he said he was going to share me with his best friend. I was so mad I was speechless. What should I do? — C.L.

DEAR C.:

I'd punch his lights out! — SUE

DEAR C.:

If he really means it, I'd send his ring back with a note: "You're too generous with something you don't own — and never will! — HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

You said no one (except "Male Chauvenist") had agreed with "Angry Male" who was against girls in Little League.

Let me be the second: If girls want to play ball they can form their own teams! These females that get their kicks from playing with boys, getting tackled by them, etc., are just leading up to sex in the open fields at half-time some day. And there goes the whole country — right down the drain!

If I were a 6-year-old kid I would not want to sit on a female Santa Claus' knee, especially if she had on a fake beard.

I can't see equal rights when they make everything topsy-turvy, and threaten our good old American Way of Life. — OLD FOGEY

NOTE FROM H AND S: Yes, folks, Archie Bunker is alive and well and living in Middle America.

Council Sets Fall Reading Program

The Marin Reading Council is presenting a fall program under the theme of "A Smorgasboard of Reading Ideas" at 3:30 p.m. Monday at the California Teachers Associaton Building, 210 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael. Teachers, aides and volunteers will participate.

Topics and speakers will be "Use of Library in Reading Program," Jean Hill, Novato Unified School District; "Reading in Early Childhood Education," Jean Doyle, Novato Unified School District; "Diagnostic Tests As a Teaching Tool," Dottie Hicks, Novato Unified School District; "Reading Centers, Grade Four Through Six," Gladys Bernard, Dixie School District; "Developmental Reading Programs in the Upper Grades," Mill Valley School District; and "Ideas for Secondary School," Val Swegger, San Rafael School District.

The Marin Reading Council is a nonprofit organization dedicated to enrich already existing reading programs in the Marin County Schools. Membership chairman is Rita Zaro of Lu Sutton School in Novato.

GENERATION RAP

by Helen and Sue Bottel

Guys Tell Him An Ex-Student 'Got It On' With The Teacher

RAP:

I found out my German teacher lived in my subdivision, so I went to see her, just to be friendly and ask a question on the next day's lesson.

However, I found out that a former student of hers had done this and really got it on. That's what the guys told me at school.

I am afraid she will think I was making a pass at her and that she will give me special attention. This would ruin things with me and my girl. Should I go over and explain that my intentions were strictly honorable? — FRESHMAN BUT NOT A FRESH MAN

F BUT NOT FM:

Since your intentions WERE honorable — in fact you displayed a distinct lack of "intentions," why explain anything to your German teacher? (Who would probably be shocked and (or) embarrassed.)

But next time you visit her, take your girl along. — HELEN

FRESHMAN:

If you believed all the rumors that went around, pretty soon you'd have no friends at all. High school guys do a lot of fantasizing about good-looking young teachers. Treat her as always, and forget what is probably some fella's wishful thinking. — SUE

DEAR HELEN AND SUE:

I am engaged to a guy in the Marines. Last night he said he was going to share me with his best friend. I was so mad I was speechless. What should I do? — C.L.

DEAR C.:

I'd punch his lights out! — SUE

DEAR C.:

If he really means it, I'd send his ring back with a note: "You're too generous with something you don't own — and never will! — HELEN

HELEN AND SUE:

You said no one (except "Male Chauvenist") had agreed with "Angry Male" who was against girls in Little League.

Let me be the second: If girls want to play ball they can form their own teams! These females that get their kicks from playing with boys, getting tackled by them, etc., are just leading up to sex in the open fields at half-time some day. And there goes the whole country — right down the drain!

If I were a 6-year-old kid I would not want to sit on a female Santa Claus' knee, especially if she had on a fake beard.

I can't see equal rights when they make everything topsy-turvy, and threaten our good old American Way of Life. — OLD FOGEY

NOTE FROM H AND S: Yes, folks, Archie Bunker is alive and well and living in Middle America.

DRAMA REVIEW

Ibsen Provides Thoughtful Fare

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — Henrik Ibsen's "Pillars of the Community" which joined the American Conservatory Theatre repertoire this week at the Geary Theatre offers a thoughtful, compelling evening.

In may gall the radical theater that the most intelligent commentary on our society comes in such an establishmentarian form, yet this play written in 1877 explains our recent political events better than anything the media or contemporary theater has devised so far.

Never once are the parallels to Watergate explicitly stated or emphasized in Allen Fletcher's direction and translation from the Norwegian but the play is full of its reverberations.

It is this resonance and the totally even and professional presentation that lift this particular play above Ibsen's better known works and make it universally appealing.

Ship builder Karsten Bernick is a pillar of his upright community, but a termite eaten pillar at best, doing nothing except for some social advantage. He lives a 15-year lie until the skeletons come out and overcome him. Bernick's last two minutes are as potent and dramatic as any part in an actor's repertoire and Earl Boen equals the role's highest demands.

Domineering, selfish, politic on the exterior, he is self-doubting, cowardly and crumbling inside. Boen makes this morally distasteful man, poignantly sympathetic. The face twists with anguish within its own vice, but we can not gloat. There is a bit of every man in Boen's portrayal.

Trapped by circumstances and moral shortcomings, Karsten Bernick's fall from his community's pinnacle is as painfully, tragically understandable as Richard Nixon's.

Lona Hessel, played by Elizabeth Huddle, must be Bernick's better. When on stage, she commands it. Crass, bold, unafraid, she attacks reality with a bullhorn to to get at the truth. The brittle china of the local gossips (Candace Barrett, Marrian Walters, Sandra Shotwell) shatters before her, and Robert Mooney, as Herr Vigeland, the asthmatic village goat, is reduced to snorting around the bright Victorian set to the audience's great pleasure.

There is not an inch of fat in the play, although I think the theme ((“We are the pillars of society . . .”) is overly repeated.

The love that develops between Johan Tonnesen (Charles Lanyer) and Diana Dorf (Barbara Dirickson) is immediate and youthful. She is an inspiring girl trapped in the rigid society of the Norwegian seaport and Lanyer offers her instant escape to America. Anne Lawder, as Marta, offers still a deeper, more probing, maturer protrayal of love and its sacrifices. She accepts her spinsterhood with a touching fatalism.

"Pillars of the Community" will be repeated throughout the October and November ACT season at 8:30 p.m. at the Geary Theater in San Francisco. It is an appropriate, topical play that any audience would find compelling and enjoyable.

"PILLARS OF THE COMMUNITY", a two act play by Henrik Ibsen; directed and translated by Allen Fletcher for the American Conservatory Theater (ACT); scenery by Ralph Funicello; costumes by Robert Morgan; lighting by F. Mitchell Dana. The Cast: Karsten Bernick, Earl Boen; Betty, his wife, Joy Carlin; Olaf, their son, David Darling; Marta, Anne Lawder; Johan Tonnesen, Charles Lanyer; Lona Hessel, Elizabeth Huddle; Herr Vigeland, Robert Mooney; Herr Sandstad, Andy Backer; Dina Dorf, Barbara Dirickson; Aune, Joseph Bird; various neighbors, Sydney Walker, Rick Hamilton, Candace Barrett, Marrian Walters, Sandra Shotwell, Bonita Bradley. At the Geary in San Francisco, 8:30.

DRAMA REVIEW

Ibsen Provides Thoughtful Fare

By BLAKE A. SAMSON

SAN FRANCISCO — Henrik Ibsen's "Pillars of the Community" which joined the American Conservatory Theatre repertoire this week at the Geary Theatre offers a thoughtful, compelling evening.

In may gall the radical theater that the most intelligent commentary on our society comes in such an establishmentarian form, yet this play written in 1877 explains our recent political events better than anything the media or contemporary theater has devised so far.

Never once are the parallels to Watergate explicitly stated or emphasized in Allen Fletcher's direction and translation from the Norwegian but the play is full of its reverberations.

It is this resonance and the totally even and professional presentation that lift this particular play above Ibsen's better known works and make it universally appealing.

"PILLARS OF THE COMMUNITY", a two act play by Henrik Ibsen; directed and translated by Allen Fletcher for the American Conservatory Theater (ACT); scenery by Ralph Funicello; costumes by Robert Morgan; lighting by F. Mitchell Dana. The Cast: Karsten Bernick, Earl Boen; Betty, his wife, Joy Carlin; Olaf, their son, David Darling; Marta, Anne Lawder; Johan Tonnesen, Charles Lanyer; Lona Hessel, Elizabeth Huddle; Herr Vigeland, Robert Mooney; Herr Sandstad, Andy Backer; Dina Dorf, Barbara Dirickson; Aune, Joseph Bird; various neighbors, Sydney Walker, Rick Hamilton, Candace Barrett, Marrian Walters, Sandra Shotwell, Bonita Bradley. At the Geary in San Francisco, 8:30.

Ship builder Karsten Bernick is a pillar of his upright community, but a termite eaten pillar at best, doing nothing except for some social advantage. He lives a 15-year lie until the skeletons come out and overcome him. Bernick's last two minutes are as potent and dramatic as any part in an actor's repertoire and Earl Boen equals the role's highest demands.

Domineering, selfish, politic on the exterior, he is self-doubting, cowardly and crumbling inside. Boen makes this morally distasteful man, poignantly sympathetic. The face twists with anguish within its own vice, but we can not gloat. There is a bit of every man in Boen's portrayal.

Trapped by circumstances and moral shortcomings, Karsten Bernick's fall from his community's pinnacle is as painfully, tragically understandable as Richard Nixon's.

Lona Hessel, played by Elizabeth Huddle, must be Bernick's better. When on stage, she commands it. Crass, bold, unafraid, she attacks reality with a bullhorn to to get at the truth. The brittle china of the local gossips (Candace Barrett, Marrian Walters, Sandra Shotwell) shatters before her, and Robert Mooney, as Herr Vigeland, the asthmatic village goat, is reduced to snorting around the bright Victorian set to the audience's great pleasure.

There is not an inch of fat in the play, although I think the theme (("We are the pillars of society . . .") is overly repeated.

The love that develops between Johan Tonnesen (Charles Lanyer) and Diana Dorf (Barbara Dirickson) is immediate and youthful. She is an inspiring girl trapped in the rigid society of the Norwegian seaport and Lanyer offers her instant escape to America. Anne Lawder, as Marta, offers still a deeper, more probing, maturer protrayal of love and its sacrifices. She accepts her spinsterhood with a touching fatalism.

"Pillars of the Community" will be repeated throughout the October and November ACT season at 8:30 p.m. at the Geary Theater in San Francisco. It is an appropriate, topical play that any audience would find compelling and enjoyable.

Canada Soccer Team Is Too Much For Tars, 4-0

Colts Live Up To Reputation As Best Around

The College of Marin Tars held their own for 20 minutes yesterday before falling to the onslaught of the best junior college soccer team in northern California. Canada of Redwood City prevailed, 4-0, beneath smoggy skies in Kentfield.

"To be honest, we lost to a very fine soccer team," said Marin coach Vic Petreshen.

FIRST LOSS

It was the first Camino Norte Conference loss for the Tars after two victories, and broke a five-game winning streak. They are 6-5-1 overall.

Bronek Gasior hit on a penalty shot halfway through the opening period to break the scoreless deadlock, and Canada added two more goals before the half ended. Jose Esquivel led the Colts in scoring with two.

DEFT PASSING

Canada utilized a deft passing game, the kind Marin has developed over the last several weeks. But the Tars ran too much yesterday, said Petreshene, showing their inexperience in the face of the Colts' poise.

"You really can't hang your head down after a game like this," he said. "It's good to play a team like Canada, not for the losing, but for the learning."

GOALIES

Goalie Jim Draeper got the shutout, and was credited with five saves. Mark Sanguinette and Paul Kewin split the goalkeeping chores for Marin, and got eight saves between them.

The Colts are now 9-2 this season. They have included among their victims the San Jose State and Santa Clara varsities.

HEADS UP — Misak Pirinjian headed the ball expertly to a teammate early in the game against Canada. The Tars had their five-game winning streak broken by the Colts from Redwood City.

Marin Tar Runners Get Pair Of Wins

College of Marin's cross country team claimed its third and fourth Camino Norte Conference victories without a loss yesterday, defeating two schools on the Lake Lagunitas course.

Kian McCarthy ran the 3.85 miles in 21:28 to finish first as the Tars posted 19 points to 40 for Solano of Suisun City and 72 for Alameda. Dan Turek and Mike Killeen of Marin tied for second at 22:12.

Hurst, Steele Lead Triumph

San Rafael Gridders Destroy Drake, 45-6

By DAVID DEL GRANDE

The same strong defense was there, but the San Rafael High School football team exhibited more than that last night. Quarterback Dave Steele's explosive offense and Fred Hurst's pass catching and interceptions were the added attractions.

Steele ran for two touchdowns and passed to Hurst for another. Hurst also returned two interceptions for scores. This helped the Bulldogs take control early and destroy Drake, 45-6, before 1,600 fans at Paul Miller Field.

The victory puts San Rafael at 2-0-1 in the Marin County Athletic League, while Drake drops to 0-2.

"He (Steele) now has regained his confidence after his arm injury," said Bulldog head coach Bob Muster. "Again we can't forget that defense though. They were great as usual. Hurst rally did a fine job."

Steele, who finally seemed to have fully recovered from the injury, completed six of 11 passes and ran for 60 yards in the game. He scored on touchdown runs of four and 13 yards and passed 17 yards to Hurst for another six points.

On the night, Hurst caught seven passes, including three interceptions thrown by Drake quarterbacks Terry Fahey and Joe Martinez. He ran the three interceptions back 35 11, and 41 yards for touchdowns but the latter was nullified by a clipping penalty. Offensively, Hurst handled four passes for 77 yards including the touchdown from Steele.

The Pirates' only score came with 11 seconds left in the half after they had driven 62 yards in seven plays behind Martinez's leadership. Ross Perry scored on a two-yard blast up the middle.

Outside of that one drive, the San Rafael defense was nearly unpenetratable. After the Pirates had fallen behind 20-0 early, they were forced to pass and completed only eight of 28 for 84 yards. The Bulldog defense, while constantly pressuring Fahey and Martinez into qquick passes, intercepted four passes, three by Hurst.

After Steele and his first team left the game ahead 26-6 midway through the third quarter, the Bulldog offense didn't stop. Running back Mark Meredith dashed 83 yards to set up a score and reserve quarterback Jeff Hooks passed to Brian Johnson for a 37-yard touchdown to end the scoring with four minutes left in the game.

Does Dark Want To Lead A's In '75?

OAKLAND (UPI) — Everybody wondered if Charles O. Finley would rehire Alvin Dark as manager even after he led the Oakland A's to a World Championship this week.

But today, the question was whether Dark wanted to manage the A's again.

Finley ended a lot of speculation yesterday by telling a cheering crowd that Dark can continue as team manager next year if he so desires.

"If he wants the job next year, then the job is his," he told 10,000 fans gathered in Oakland's Lakeside Park to celebrate the A's' winning the World Series for the third time in a row.

But Dark probably even surprised Finley when he said "I'm not talking about it (the job). Mr. Finley and I will be discussing it."

Dark reportedly has told friends he won't be back.

"I've got nothing to resign from," he reportedly said. "I had a one-year contract and it has run out."

Finley and the A's were given a victory parade through downtown Oakland yesterday and an estimated 20,000 fans turned out in unusual 90 degree weather for the third such event in an as many years.

Besides his praise of Dark, Finley told the crowd: "Two years ago, we felt lucky and pretty good. Last year we felt damned lucky and damned good. Today, we just feel damned good.

"This year, we took the cockiest team in baseball, the Los Angeles Dodgers. I'm very proud of this team. I am very happy."

But Finley, who received some boos when he was introduced, made no reference to persistent rumors he would pull the A's out of Oakland and relocate in Seattle.

But several players told the crowd they hoped to be in Oakland next year.

Dark, grave in expression and wearing a grey business suit, said: "Thanks to Mr. Finley for the chance to manage this team, and to God be the glory."

Raiders Host Cincinnati

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Oakland Raiders, with a one and-one-half game lead in the American Football Conference West, host the AFC central leading Cincinnati Bengals tomorrow with no looking back for either side.

The Raiders won their fourth in a row last Sunday by beating the San Diego Chargers, 14-10, while the Bengals downed the Cleveland Browns, 34-24, for their first victory ever in Cleveland.

The Bengals hold a half-game lead over the Pittsburgh Steelers in their division so a loss to Oakland tomorrow could be costly.

FALLEN RUNNER — San Marin halfback Wayne Roche was lifted to his feet by a Tamalpais defender after he gained five yards on a running play in the first quarter yesterday in Mill Valley. San Marin won, 17-13.

Luck Assists San Marin In Close Win Over Tam

By DAVID EINSTEIN

When all else failed, the San Marin Mustangs relied on Lady Luck yesterday to bring them a 17-13 Marin County Athletic League football victory over Tamalpais in Mill Valley.

A bad punt snap with two and one-half minutes left gave San Marin the ball on the Indians' two-yard line, and quarterback Dave Harder ran the keeper to score the final touchdown on the next play. It was the second MCAL win for the Mustangs against a tie, and the second straight league loss for Tam.

The Indians, outnumbered and deprived by the loss last week of their No. 1 quarterback, nevertheless even-played the Mustangs for the final three quarters. Twice in the second half, San Marin drives got to the one yard line and no farther as Tam rallied around the defensive efforts of end Tom Hunt and linebacker Bob Praszker.

And it was Tam fullback Kevin Murphy, not Bob Bennett or Wayne Roche of San Marin, who led all rushers. Murphy had 88 yards in 18 carries.

Bennett and Roche, the league's leading rushers, managed just 56 and 44 yards. But with Dave Azevedo adding 49 and Harder 37, the Mustangs still had a respectable 186 total on the ground.

Tam took the lead at 13-10 with five minutes left in the game when Charlie Stump hit Tim Grayson with a 19-yard touchdown pass up the middle. That climaxed a good day for Stump, who became Tam's quarterback last week when Dan Lucia broke his arm against Novato. Charlie had 67 yards passing, and directed the offense with polish belying his inexperience.

San Marin looked runaway-minded at the outset, taking the ball 52 yards in just three plays to score. Bennett exploded for 19, Dave Azevedo followed with 39 more, and Roche squirted the final seven for the touchdown.

San Marin kicker Barry Leslie provided the most professional play of the game late in the first quarter with a 41-yard field goal through the still, smoggy air.

Stump scored Tam's first TD to cap a second quarter drive that covered 74 yards in 18 plays. Key plays were a 17-yard run by Murphy, a 17-yard pass to Mike Lamb, and an unsportsmanlike conduct penalty on the San Marin bench.

Terra Linda Booters Defeat San Marin, 4-1

Steve McCarthy put on a one-man scoring show yesterday to give Terra Linda High School a 4-1 victory over San Marin and sole possession of second place in the Marin County Athletic League soccer race.

With McCarthy getting all four goals, the Trojans ran their record to 5-1-2. They remain two games behind undefeated Redwood, which got three goals from Tom Villasenor in a 6-0 win over San Rafael yesterday.

In other games, John Baumgarten scored three to lead Tamalpais past Marin Catholic, 8-0, and Novato and Drake played to a scoreless tie.

Tars To Open Loop Grid Season

The College of Marin Tars, blessed at last with an offense that works, open the Camino Norte Conference football season tonight at 7:30 against Solano City College in Suisun City.

With Tim Nowell at quarterback and Mark Magers and Gino Pomilia at running backs, Marin defeated Ohlone of the Coast League last week, 27-10. It was the Tars' first win of the year, after three losses in which their offense produced only one touchdown.

Nowell completed eight of 11 passes for 169 yards, Magers and Pomilia ran for 101 and 71 and coach Dick Read says, "We're real pleased, We felt we had a good chance to win." Nowell led the way with touchdown passes of 17 and 26 yards to speedy receiver Jackie Robinson.

Read also praised the work of the line, especially tackles Cory Parfitt and Paul Kessler and center Dan Locati. "Those three really did a job," he said.

Marin is rated even with Solano, which owns a 1-4 record. Last year, the Tars beat the Falcons, 21-20, and Read expects another close one. "The team that gets a few breaks will probably win," he says.

Solano's attack is led by quarterback George Napier, who has completed 46 passes in 88 attempts so far for 438 yards and two touchdowns. His main targets are Keith Crooks and Sammie Garrett.

Ed Henry Bowls 688 In League

A healthy 688 series and a low triplicate were recorded this week in Marin County league bowling.

Ed Henry bowled 227-235-226—688 Thursday night in the 910 Classic at Greenbrae Lanes. The San Rafael plumber carries a 206 league average.

Connie Bishop Tuesday night bowled three consecutive 110s in the Classy Lassies League at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael. Her league average is 119.

Can QB Harris Alter Course Of Rams' Offense?

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Can James Harris rectify what's ailing with the Los Angeles Rams' offense?

Chuck Knox, the Rams' intense second-year head coach, hopes so.

Knox will start Harris, who was cut by the Buffalo Bills in 1972, ahead of 1973 NFC Player of the Year John Hadl at quarterback Sunday against the San Francisco 49ers.

"I'll just do what I can," Harris said.

The Rams will be two-touchdown favorites to beat the 49ers for the eighth straight time and improve their record to 4-2 in the National Football Conference West.

The Rams handled San Francisco easily last season, winning 40-20 and 31-13. However, 1974 has been a tough year for the Los Angeles offense.

Lakers Show West Isn't Missed

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — If the Los Angeles Lakers miss Jerry West, they didn't show it last night in their opener for the 1974-75 National Basketball Association season.

The Lakers, playing their first season in Los Angeles without the perennial all-pro guard, had little difficulty in besting the Golden State Warriors 105-90.

And they got 70 of their 105 points from their backcourt corps of Gail Goodrich (34), Jim Price (21) and rookie Brian Winters (15). They made 29-of-54 field goals attempts. Goodrich was 14-for-26, Price 9- for-15 and Winters 6-for-13.

The performance of Winters, the Lakers' No. 1 draft choice from South Carolina, was the main topic for discussion in the Laker dressing room.

Coach Bill Sharman, doesn't like to use rookies but Winters is an exception.

"Brian is a very intelligent player and he's a very fine shooter," the Laker coach said. "He'll get burned a few times on defense but he still is a good defensive player. He works hard at defense, too. And he could become a good playmaker."

"I was satisfied," said Winters, "but there's plenty of room for improvement."

Goodrich and Price agreed with their coach.

"He's (Winters) fundamentally sound because he had good coaching in college," said Price. Added Goodrich, "He's a very heady player."

With Cazzie Russell sidelined, Sharman started 6-foot-4 Pat Riley alongside Elmore Smith and Happy Hairston in Los Angeles' front line. Riley finished with 10 points and Hairston, who had nine, led all rebounders with 18.

Veteran guard Butch Beard led the Warriors with 18 while top draft choice Keith Wilkes of UCLA was probably the bright spot for Golden State with 16.

Golden State hustles home to face Cleveland tonight.

Petaluma Streak Is Ended

By DIANE FISHER

Petaluma High School's 16-game North Bay League winning streak has ended. The Trojans bowed in football to the Ukiah Wildcats 19-0, last night on Durst Field.

Fired-up Ukiah began the scoring in the first quarter on a 47-yard drive that ended with a two-yard touchdown plunge by Ken Alcantra. Kirk Deering kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later, the Wildcats (1-2 in league) capitalized on a Trojan fumble at the Petaluma 37 and moved to the five where Deering booted a field goal to make the score 10-0.

Petaluma's troubleswere not over. Trojan quarterback Sam Piezzi was sidelined for the second half with an injured left hand, severely hampering the Petaluma offense.

Ukiah quarterback Howdy Johnson, however, was in fine shape as the night's top rusher with 91 yards. Johnson also hooked up with John Smith in the fourth quarter for a 27-yard touchdown pass and Deering added the point-after to inflate the Wildcat score to 17.

Jeff Burrell tackled Trojan reserve quarterback Rick Schroeder in the end zone for a safety as the game ended.

Montreal After First Win Tonight

MONTREAL (UPI) — Amazing as it may seem, Montreal will still be looking for its first win of the National Hockey League season tonight when it hosts the California Golden Seals.

Ken Dryden, one of the league's top netminders until he sat out last year to go to law school, is back in the net for the Canadiens but he has given up 18 goals.

The Seals have yielded 22 goals in compiling a 1-2-2 record.

Lakers Show West Isn't Missed

INGLEWOOD, Calif. (UPI) — If the Los Angeles Lakers miss Jerry West, they didn't show it last night in their opener for the 1974-75 National Basketball Association season.

The Lakers, playing their first season in Los Angeles without the perennial all-pro guard, had little difficulty in besting the Golden State Warriors 105-90.

And they got 70 of their 105 points from their backcourt corps of Gail Goodrich (34), Jim Price (21) and rookie Brian Winters (15). They made 29-of-54 field goals attempts. Goodrich was 14-for-26, Price 9- for-15 and Winters 6-for-13.

The performance of Winters, the Lakers' No. 1 draft choice from South Carolina, was the main topic for discussion in the Laker dressing room.

Coach Bill Sharman, doesn't like to use rookies but Winters is an exception.

"Brian is a very intelligent player and he's a very fine shooter," the Laker coach said. "He'll get burned a few times on defense but he still is a good defensive player. He works hard at defense, too. And he could become a good playmaker."

"I was satisfied," said Winters, "but there's plenty of room for improvement."

Goodrich and Price agreed with their coach.

"He's (Winters) fundamentally sound because he had good coaching in college," said Price. Added Goodrich, "He's a very heady player."

With Cazzie Russell sidelined, Sharman started 6-foot-4 Pat Riley alongside Elmore Smith and Happy Hairston in Los Angeles' front line. Riley finished with 10 points and Hairston, who had nine, led all rebounders with 18.

Veteran guard Butch Beard led the Warriors with 18 while top draft choice Keith Wilkes of UCLA was probably the bright spot for Golden State with 16.

Golden State hustles home to face Cleveland tonight.

GOLDEN STATE (90)

Petaluma Streak Is Ended

By DIANE FISHER

Petaluma High School's 16-game North Bay League winning streak has ended. The Trojans bowed in football to the Ukiah Wildcats 19-0, last night on Durst Field.

Fired-up Ukiah began the scoring in the first quarter on a 47-yard drive that ended with a two-yard touchdown plunge by Ken Alcantra. Kirk Deering kicked the extra point.

A few minutes later, the Wildcats (1-2 in league) capitalized on a Trojan fumble at the Petaluma 37 and moved to the five where Deering booted a field goal to make the score 10-0.

Petaluma's troubleswere not over. Trojan quarterback Sam Piezzi was sidelined for the second half with an injured left hand, severely hampering the Petaluma offense.

Ukiah quarterback Howdy Johnson, however, was in fine shape as the night's top rusher with 91 yards. Johnson also hooked up with John Smith in the fourth quarter for a 27-yard touchdown pass and Deering added the point-after to inflate the Wildcat score to 17.

Jeff Burrell tackled Trojan reserve quarterback Rick Schroeder in the end zone for a safety as the game ended.

Ukiah (1-4-1)	10	0	0	9	—19

Ukiah — Alcantra 2 run (Deering kick)
Ukiah — Deering 15 field goal.
Ukiah — Smith 27 pass from Johnson (Deering kick)
Ukiah — Safety Burrell tackled Schroeder in end zone

Montreal After First Win Tonight

MONTREAL (UPI) — Amazing as it may seem, Montreal will still be looking for its first win of the National Hockey League season tonight when it hosts the California Golden Seals.

Ken Dryden, one of the league's top netminders until he sat out last year to go to law school, is back in the net for the Canadiens but he has given up 18 goals.

The Seals have yielded 22 goals in compiling a 1-2-2 record.

WEEK IN BUSINESS

Mart On Verge Of Solid Climb?

NEW YORK (UPI) — There was a growing feeling on Wall Street this week the stock market, which has been in a decline all year and in a steep slide since August, may be on the verge of a solid climb.

With the exception of the Dow Jones industrial average, which lost 3.29 to 654.88 for the week, all other indocators pointed higher.

Turnover totaled 82,887,875 shares, against 95,729,255 last week and 90,639,785 in the comparable week a year ago.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator than the Dow, rose 1.14 to 72.28. The New York Stock Exchange common stock index gained 0.56 to 38.05.

And advances topped declines, 1,016 to 743, among the issues crossing the tape for the week.

The main reason the Dow bucked the trend was sharp losses in DuPont and Eastman Kodak, two of its major components.

DuPont lost 8 points to 100 for the week, including a 6 ¼-point loss yesterday after the firm pleaded no contest, with seven other dye manufacturers, to charges of conspiring to drive out competition.

Kodak lost 4 ⅛ to 69 ⅞ on 839,200 shares traded, making it the fourth most active issue for the week. Kodak reported third quarter earnings of $1 a share, compared with $1.16 a year ago. Also, a major advisory house dropped the stock from its list.

Wall Street's optimistic feeling according to many analysts, was born last week when the Dow, the closely watched blue-chip indicator, gained a record 73.61 points in the best weekly advance in Big Board history.

That rally, sparked by a decline in interest rates and a show of some confidence in President Ford's economic program, carried into the early part of this week, before profit taking stopped the advance.

The profit taking, according to most observers, was predictable in light of the huge gains the market had been making. "The market is entitled to a rest," was a common statement among analysts.

"Many investors just sat back for a while to rest and see what they would do next," one analyst said. Most felt the market, prior to the rally, was oversold and that there was "plenty of money around to invest." The hope on troubled Wall Street is the time is now.

The Dow fell a total of 31.21 points during the profit taking Tuesday and Wednesday. While most analysts said the retreat was normal, many showed some concern over Kodak's and other disappointing earnings reports.

Upjohn lost 7 ⅜ for the week after reporting third quarter earnings of 61 cents a share, compared with 57 cents the year before. Again, company officials said inflation was a factor.

Standard and Poor's 500-stock index, a broader indicator than the Dow, rose 1.14 to 72.28. The New York Stock Exchange common stock index gained 0.56 to 38.05.

And advances topped declines, 1,016 to 743, among the issues crossing the tape for the week.

The main reason the Dow bucked the trend was sharp losses in DuPont and Eastman Kodak, two of its major components.

DuPont lost 8 points to 100 for the week, including a 6 ¼-point loss yesterday after the firm pleaded no contest, with seven other dye manufacturers, to charges of conspiring to drive out competition.

Kodak lost 4 ⅛ to 69 ⅞ on 839,200 shares traded, making it the fourth most active issue for the week. Kodak reported third quarter earnings of $1 a share, compared with $1.16 a year ago. Also, a major advisory house dropped the stock from its list.

Wall Street's optimistic feeling according to many analysts, was born last week when the Dow, the closely watched blue-chip indicator, gained a record 73.61 points in the best weekly advance in Big Board history.

That rally, sparked by a decline in interest rates and a show of some confidence in President Ford's economic program, carried into the early part of this week, before profit taking stopped the advance.

The profit taking, according to most observers, was predictable in light of the huge gains the market had been making. "The market is entitled to a rest," was a common statement among analysts.

"Many investors just sat back for a while to rest and see what they would do next," one analyst said. Most felt the market, prior to the rally, was oversold and that there was "plenty of money around to invest." The hope on troubled Wall Street is the time is now.

The Dow fell a total of 31.21 points during the profit taking Tuesday and Wednesday. While most analysts said the retreat was normal, many showed some concern over Kodak's and other disappointing earnings reports.

Upjohn lost 7 ⅜ for the week after reporting third quarter earnings of 61 cents a share, compared with 57 cents the year before. Again, company officials said inflation was a factor.

Associate Planner Is Appointed

Martha Mullin, an environmental planner with a Sacramento consulting firm, has been appointed associate planner for the City of Tiburon.

Mrs. Mullin, 27, was picked from 50 applicants, according to Robert E. Fosnot, director of community development.

Her position is a new one and will replace the post of planning assistant, held by Andrew E. Hahto, who left the city last week.

However, Fosnot said she will have more responsibilities than Hahto did and will help prepare the Tiburon general plan.

Her salary will be $1,080 per month.

In Sacramento, Mrs. Mullin worked for the firm of Jones and Stokes. She has taught classes in preparing environmental impact reports for the University of California at Davis extension program.

She holds a masters degree in planning from the University of Massachusetts and a bachelors degree in geography from San Francisco State University.

Mrs. Mullin is married and will live in Tiburon.

Barber-Auditor

MONTGOMERY, Ala. (UPI) — Alabama auditor Melba Till Allen shears the men's hair in her family. Her barbering, which she learned from their father, is legal as long as she does not charge a fee.

Today is Saturday, Oct. 19, the 292nd day of 1974 with 73 to follow.

The moon is approaching its first quarter. The morning stars are Mercury and Jupiter

American novelist Fannie Hurst was born Oct. 19, 1889.

On this day in history:

In 1781, the American Revolutionary war neared an end as British Gen. Lord Cornwallis surrendered at Yorktown, Va.

In 1914, an around-the-world airplane race by three newspaper writers edned at Lakehurst, N.J. H.E. Elkinds won with a time of 18 days, 11 hours, 14 minutes and 33 seconds.

In 1973, President Nixon sent Henry Kissinger to Moscow to discuss ways to end the Middle East War which had started 13 days earlier.

A thought for the day: German author Thomas a Kempis said, "Be not angry that you cannot make others as you wish them to be, since you cannot make yourself as you wish."

Don't Expect Those Missing Cards To Break Even For You

When the opponents hold an even number of cards in a suit between them, the chances are that they will not each hold exactly half of the missing cards. You shouldn't expect six missing cards to break 3-3, or four missing cards to break 2-2.

RUFF DIAMOND

You might make four hearts if the trumps and one of the black suits break evenly. You would ruff the first diamond, draw trumps in three rounds and play three rounds of the favorable black suit, thus winning five trump tricks and four top tricks in the side suits, plus your one established card in the favorable black suit.

But nothing breaks favorably. Mind you, there are no freakish breaks, but each suit breaks just about the way you'd expect it to: not quite evenly.

How do you make four hearts against those breaks? Show the North and South hands to your friends and see if they can come up with the answer.

HUNGARIAN SUCCEEDS

The hand was made by Geza Ottlik, a Hungarian expert, some years ago. His method is simplicity itself, except that it's hard to think of it.

Ottlik ruffed the first diamond and entered dummy four times with the top cards in spades and clubs to ruff four more diamonds. That gave him the first nine tricks.

Dummy still had the 9-8 of trumps and was sure to win a trick with one of them. That was Ottlik's tenth trick.

It was what bridge writers call a dummy reversal. Instead of ruffing in the dummy, declarer ruffed in his own hand.

As dealer, you hold:

ANSWER: Pass.

The hand is good but not quite worth an opening bid.

Crowd Turns Out For Kentfield Firemen's Breakfast

Story Of San Miguel — The Doctors' Town

DR. LEO L. Stanley has not really lived in Marin County forever; it just seems that way.

Actually, he did not come to Marin until 1912, after he graduated from old Cooper Medical College in San Francisco. But that was 62 years ago.

He started as assistant physician at San Quentin Prison. He lasted only 39 years there, retiring in 1951. That was nearly a quarter of a century ago.

One would expect that ol' Doc by now would think of Marin as home, where his roots are.

But he still retains strong ties to his former home, the village of San Miguel, in the shadow of old Mission San Miguel. Each year, San Miguel oldtimers gather in the village park for a picnic-barbecue. This year, Doc Stanley made his pilgrimmage to the old home town as usual. More than a 100 oldtimers were there — more than 30 of them were, like Doc, over 80.

IN 1890, when the Stanley family arrived there from their former home in Oregon, San Miguel was a thriving agricultural community.

As ol' Doc recalls it: "Land values and other advantages had been widely advertised by the railroad, which had pushed up the Salinas Valley to San Luis Obispo. Cattle from the luscious western coastal range were driven to the railhead. Ten and 12-jerkline teams with two to three huge freight wagons brought wheat and barley to the warehouses from the productive rolling hills to the east. All roads led to San Miguel. There were three two-story hotels . . . Thirteen saloons were ever ready to slake the thirst of cowboys and teamsters who came to town. There were five churches in San Miguel . . . Three houses of ill repute had their share of business."

As Doc says, it was a thriving community.

Eight years later, disaster stuck.

"A terribly dry year stuck the Salinas Valley in 1898. No rain fell. No grass sprouted. Livestock died by the thousands from starvation. The once wonderful, rich and productive country really dried up. Anyone who could, moved out. San Miguel became a deserted village and did not ever fully recover, even with the return of the good years."

One can readily see how San Miguel would be proud of Doc Stanley, the local boy who made good as a doctor and gained national recognition for his accomplishments.

MARIN OLDTIMERS remember Dr. Frank A. Lowe, who retired and moved away a few years ago, after he seemingly had spent a lifetime here in the county.

Like Doc Stanley, he, too, had roots elsewhere. He graduated from medical school in Southern California and came to Marin via San Francisco.

He, too, attends the oldtimers' barbecues in San Miguel, because he, too, lived there as a boy and went to school during San Miguel's prime decade, prior to 1900. Lowe was born on a ranch near there. His mother taught school there.

Like Doc Stanley, Dr. Lowe still leads an active life, although retired from medicine.

Doctors Stanley and Lowe had four other San Miguel contemporaries who attended San Miguel grammar school in the 1890s and went on to distinguished medical careers.

Three were the Wayland boys, Charley, Clyde and Ray, now all deceased. Charley served as personal physician for Mrs. Leland Stanford. Ray attended William Randolph Hearst.

The other was Alvin Hillis Wilmar, who still lives only nine miles from San Miguel. He has been retired nearly a quarter of a century. In his medical prime, he attended Jan Ignace Paderewski.

"No doctors came from that locality before and none have come from it since." Doc Stanley observes.

"That they all grew up together in that tiny town of 500 between 1890 and 1900 is, to say the least, unusual, unique, out of the ordinary, amazing, remarkable and worthy of note."

No wonder that after more than 60 years in Marin, Doc Stanley still feels his roots are somewhere else.

—Jack Craemer

Ambidextrous Raccoons

As any dedicated Marin raccoon watcher knows, raccoons eat with their hands, just like people. The usual mode is for them to sit back on their haunches and pick the dog food pellets up with one hand or the other or both at once. But some really hungry raccoons are ambidextrous. As one hand is carrying food to the mouth, the other is reaching for more.

Do Nice Birds Finish Last?

A friend noted that a robin was chased off his San Rafael lawn, first by a jay and later by a mockingbird. He wondered, do nice birds finish last? Our observation is that such is truly often the case.

Bouquets And Brickbat

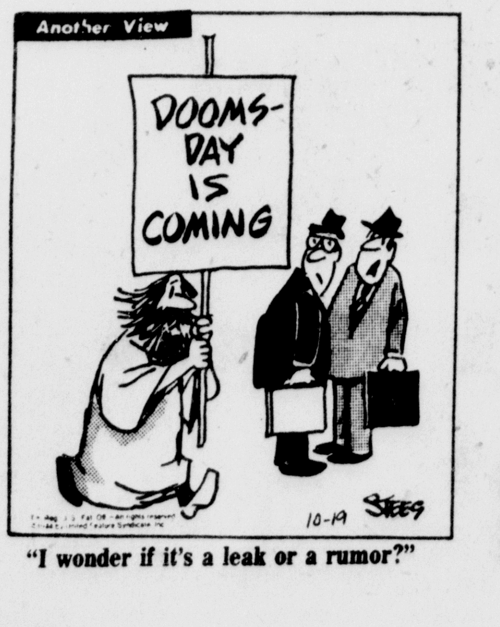
BOUQUET to the Oakland Athletics — for obvious reasons.

BOUQUET to the San Rafael Park and Recreation Commission for its series of hearings to learn what the public wants in the city's recreation program. The last one will be Oct. 29.

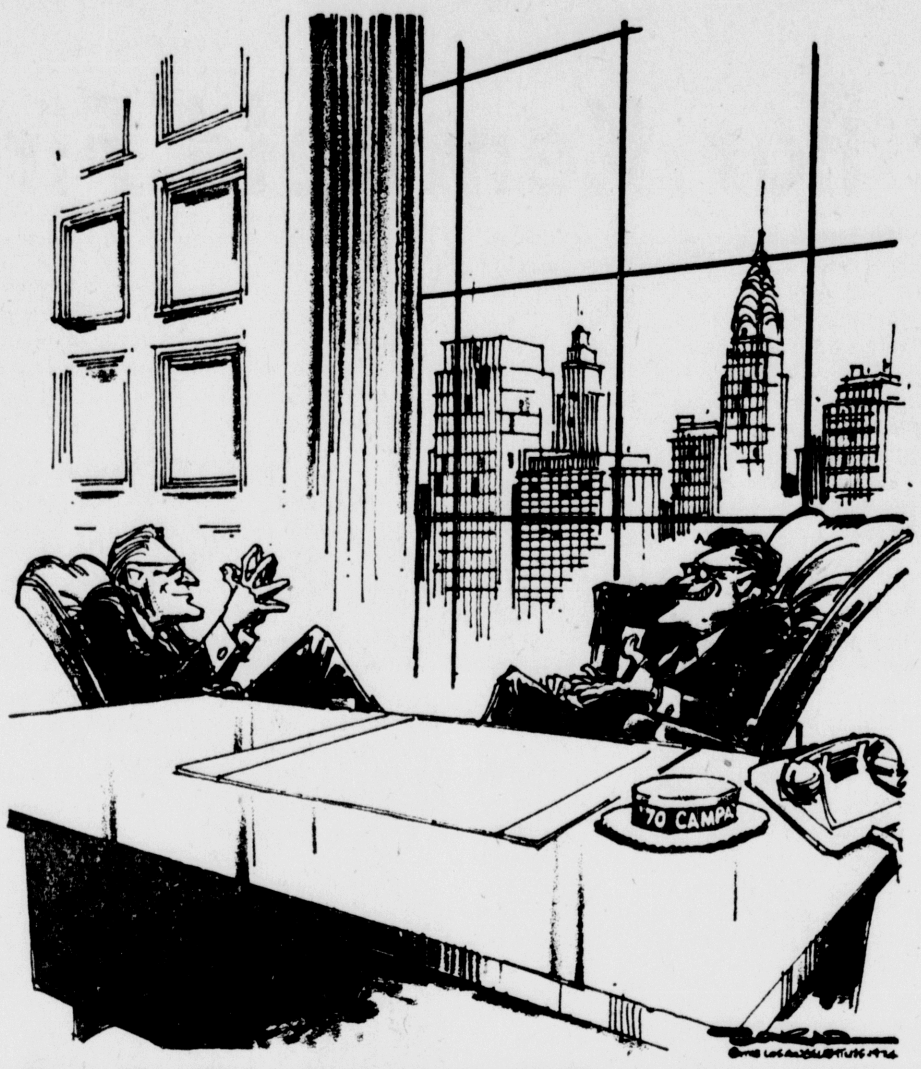
BOUQUET to the Marin County Heart Association for sponsoring programs in the public schools in elementary life-saving techniques.

BRICKBAT to the San Anselmo City Council for showing its willingness to give away a responsibility vested in it by the voters in endorsing regional growth control boards.

BOUQUET to Jeanne Keller, a teacher at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur, on her selection as "Marin County Teacher of the Year."



"I wonder if it's a leak or a rumor?"



"We could publish a book smearing Goldberg — but it would be wrong."

Guide Dogs Graduates Grateful To San Rafael

This is an open letter to the citizens of your exceedingly warm and friendly city from Class 299 which graduated last Saturday (Oct. 12) from Guide Dogs for the Blind.

First we would like to thank the motorists for being so very alert and for keeping their automobiles, especially the brakes, in good order.

Secondly we would like to extend our appreciation to the pedestrians for their ability to duck, dodge, sidestep, weave, and accept an occasional "clobbering."

Thirdly we would like to thank the merchants for bravery in allowing us to go through their stores upsetting the daily routine and the good-natured customers. The merchants who offer the blind free ice cream and coffee are especially generous.

This has been an unforgettable experience for our group!!

Why Add Another To List Of Boondoggles?

I must agree with Pat Axtell (letter of Oct. 16) when he (she?) says to remember "the huge subsidies to the aerospace industry and to agribusiness; the cost-overruns of the military-industrial complex" when weighing Proposition 15.

To pass Proposition 15 and repeal Article 34 of the California Constitution would simply add subsidized housing to the above list of government boondogglers. Indeed, it is the very history of corruption, waste and inefficiency of most government programs that is the best argument against Proposition 15.

It is precisely Article 34 which keeps publicly subsidized housing from becoming another "runaway use of the money."

I must disagree, however, with M. Axtell that the right of referendum is a "discredit to California."

Dollar Estate Now On Public Display

Sunday, Oct. 13, marked the official opening of the Dollar Estate to the public. Over 1,000 people toured the house and grounds that day. This was just the beginning of the Marin Heritage-sponsored demonstration of adaptive community use of this historic property at 1408 Mission Avenue in San Rafael. The beginning was such an overwhelming success, that I feel I must publicly thank all those wonderful, generous people who worked so hard to make it all possible. They scrubbed and polished, painted, pruned and planted. Thanks to them, the woodwork glows, the windows shine, flowers bloom in front of the house and the lawn is green once more.

I urge everyone to visit and tour the Dollar Estate before the election on Nov. 5. Exhibits of antique furnishings, quilts, European prints and historic photos are in place to be enjoyed. The house is open on Sundays from noon to 4 p.m. and on Wednesdays, Thursdays and Fridays from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Because Of Inflation, It Costs Too Much To Bite The Bullet

WASHINGTON — When President Ford said we all have to bite the bullet on the economy, I immediately went down to my local sporting goods store.

"I would like a bullet, please," I said to the clerk.

"You mean a box of bullets," he corrected me.

"No, just one would be enough."

HE LOOKED AT ME suspiciously. "What kind of bullet do you want?"

"I don't know. Are there different kinds?"

"Of course. What kind of gun do you have?" he asked.

"I don't have a gun," I said.

"Then what do you want a bullet for?"

"I want to bite it," I admitted sheepishly.

THE CLERK BACKED away from me, trying to reach a buzzer which I assumed turned on some kind of alarm.

"Don't get frightened," I said. "You see, Gerry Ford, as part of his economic message, said that every one of us has to bite the bullet or we'll never lick it."

"The bullet?" he asked.

"No, inflation, dummy," I said.

"And he didn't say what caliber of bullet he wanted Americans to bite?"

"Not that I know of," I replied. "Does it make a difference?"

"I WOULD THINK SO," the clerk said. "I mean people have different size mouths, and what might be comfortable for you might not necessarily be comfortable for your grocer. Here, try this .22 bullet."

He placed it in my mouth. I bit on it.

"How does that feel?" he asked.

"Not too bad. How does it look?"

"You have the shell casing sticking out. Did the president indicate what part of the bullet he wanted you to bite?"

"Come to think of it, he didn't," I said. "The least Mr. Ford could have done is tell us which end of the bullet we should get our teeth into."

"MAYBE HE THOUGHT everyone in the United States had bitten a bullet before," the clerk suggested.

"He shouldn't take those things for granted," I said. "Listen, my teeth are starting to hurt. You don't have another kind, do you?"

"We have a soft-nosed lead .38 dum-dum, but they're illegal to shoot."

"Are they illegal to bite?"

"I'll have to check that out." The clerk called his superior upstairs. Then he hung up. "My boss said to the best of his knowldge, there is no law against biting a lead bullet as long as you don't spit it out at somebody afterward."

I PUT IT in my mouth.

"It's more comfortable than the .22," I said. "And it has a nice taste to it."

"Would you like to try a .45?" the clerk asked. "It's thicker than a .38 and lasts twice as long."

"No, I think the .38 bullet will do nicely. How much is it?"

"Let's see," the clerk said. "On the box it says the bullets are four cents each. But we just got a bulletin from the manufacturer telling us they now cost eight cents. Since this was mailed out last week, we have to assume the cost went up another two cents. But we don't know what will happen next week, do we?"

I admitted we didn't.

"We better add another four cents on the bullet just to be safe. Therefore, it will cost you 14 cents."

"That's outrageous!" I said.

The clerk shrugged his shoulders as he wrote out the sales slip. "Maybe if you bite on it long enough, the price will go down."

Some Comfort For Republicans In Ford's Views On Recession

Republican candidates who face their voters two weeks from now can take some comfort (small though it may be) from the fact that their party leaders in Washington have learned a lot since 1930.

History, of course, never does repeat itself precisely. But there are similarities between conditions in the United States on this eve of a mid-term election and conditions in the United States two weeks before the 1930 mid-term election.

The similarities include a sharp decline in value on the stock market and the beginnings of an economic recession, including a rise in unemployment.

DISSIMILARITIES are two. The economic recession is accompanied and therefore made more complex by rampant inflation. And the attitude of the Republican leadership is at least rhetorically the opposite of what it was in 1930.

Back in those bleak days, as the country was sliding down into the depths of the Great Depression, President Hoover worried about the plight of the poor and the increasing number of unemployed. But the most it occurred to him to do about their misery was to ask for a charity drive. There was such a drive, and it raised $15 million at a time when unemployment was moving toward 10 million. The sum of $1.50 a head was of little help. Direct federal relief of any kind was considered unthinkable, even immoral. Unemployment compensation did not exist.

Democrats proposed a $2-billion public works program to provide emergency employment. Mr. Hoover called it "the most gigantic pork barrel ever perpetrated on the American people."

MR. HOOVER would have done more than was done had he been free to pursue his own humanitarian inclinations. But he was restrained by Andrew Mellon, his secretary of the treasury and the strongest man in the cabinet.

Mr. Mellon wanted the depression to go unchecked and unrelieved right down to the economic bottom, arguing that "people will work harder, live a moral life and that "value will be adjusted, and enterprising people will pick up the wrecks from less competent people."

The only kind of anti-depression measure Mr. Hoover was willing to accept was a bill establishing a Reconstruction Finance Corp. which was empowered to lend money at low interest rates to railroads, banks, insurance companies and industrial corporations. That was permissible.

In theory, aid to business would trickle down to the poor in the form of jobs. It did prevent many a bankruptcy and thus mitigated the depression.

ANDREW MELLON, and even Mr. Hoover, would be shocked by most of the measures proposed to Congress last week by Republican President Gerald Ford. Whether they will be effective in staunching the inflation and checking the recession is beside the point here. Most critics seem to think they do not go far enough and will have little real impact on the economy. But at least they do aim at relieving unemployment and human misery. And they do aim at stimulating the economy where it is in most trouble.

The Republican attitudes toward depression and human misery in 1930 had a sharp effect on the mid-term elections of that year. The Republicans lost 44 seats in the House of Representatives, and control of the House. The Democrats elected John Garner as speaker of the House and began to lay the groundwork for what was later to become the New Deal.

DEMOCRATS ALREADY control both House and Senate by comfortable margins, but not by the two-thirds necessary to override a veto. If Republican losses in November should equal Republican losses in 1930, the Democrats would come very close to having a two-thirds majority in both houses.

Unless President Ford can pull a political miracle during the next two weeks, it does look as though Keven Phillips may have to revise his theory of "The Emerging Republican Majority" (published by Arlington House, 1969, dedicated to "its two principal architects: President Richard M. Nixon and Atty. Gen. John N. Mitchell").

Ambassadorships For Sale: Can U.S. Afford The Practice?

By RICHARD L. STROUT

WASHINGTON — Is the United States so rich and powerful that it doesn't need trained diplomats? Democratic and Republican presidents have rewarded big campaign contributors for years with plums abroad. How else honor them? We aren't going to start a House of Lords, are we, to give them a title? Most of them aren't bright enough to be made judges.

It's tough, of course, on career Foreign Service officers who have moved up the ladder for 30 years and learned Chinese, say, and specialized in the Far East, to have a politician appointed over them just as they come within sight of an embassy of their own. Makes for cynicism and low morale. But, so what? The United States is big and affluent and doesn't need the skilled diplomats that other countries employ. Or does it?

HERBERT KALMBACH, Mr. Nixon's former personal lawyer now serving a prison sentence, testified under oath that he was approached in 1971 by Peter Flanigan, former Nixon trouble-shooter, in behalf of Dr. Ruth L. Farkas as ambassador. "She is interested in giving $250,000 for Costa Rica," Mr. Kalmbach told the House impeachment committee.

But at a Farkas-Kalmbach lunch in New York, Dr. Farkas thought the price too steep.

"Well, you know, I am interested in Europe, I think, and isn't $250,000 an awful lot for Costa Rica?" Mr. Kalmbach quotes her as saying. Ultimately, by raising the price a bit, or so Mr. Kalmbach told the committee, she got Luxembourg for $300,000.

Mr. Flanigan denies the transaction and says that Mr. Kalmbach misunderstood him. President Ford has nominated Mr. Flanigan himself to be ambassador to Spain.

He has recently nominated other nondiplomats: Kenneth Rush, left over from the White House economic reshuffle, to Paris; George Bush, one-time Ford possibility for vice-president, to China; Shirley Temple Black to Ghana.

THE AMERICAN Foreign Service Association recently asked Sen. J. William Fulbright, D-Ark., to look hard at the Flanigan appointment. Thomas D. Boyatt, association president and career diplomat, in a letter dated Sept. 25, said the association opposes "the sale, rental or auction of ambassadorships."

Reporter James Polk, writing from Concord, N.H., in the Washington Star-News, says that the Farkas issue threatens the election of Republican Rep. Louis C. Wyman as senator against his Democratic rival, John A. Durkin. The editor-publisher of the Manchester Union Leader has just asked Representative Wyman to withdraw.

Mr. Wyman acknowledges that he talked to White House staff in 1969 and 1971 about Dr. Farkas's ambitions, and met with her and GOP fund-raiser Maurice Stans in 1972, when she pledged $300,000.

Odds in New Hampshire were originally 2-to-1 on Mr. Wyman's election for the seat vacated by Sen. Norris Cotton, which has been Republican for half a century, but now the race is called uncertain.

SEN. CHARLES M. MATHIAS, R-Md., proposes amendments to the Foreign Assistance Act making political contributors of more than $2,000 ineligible for ambassadorships, and requiring that at all times 85 per cent of U.S. ambassadors should be career men. The percentage is now less than 70 per cent, the senator says.

The office of supreme allied commander of NATO is not exactly a diplomatic appointment, but President Ford's choice of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. has brought grumblings. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., complains that "the diplomatic service has once again become the dumping ground for political leftovers," and Sen. Robert C. Byrd, assistant Democratic leader who is one of the most powerful figures in today's Senate, voices "serious misgivings."

Story Of San Miguel — The Doctors' Town

DR. LEO L. Stanley has not really lived in Marin County forever; it just seems that way.

Actually, he did not come to Marin until 1912, after he graduated from old Cooper Medical College in San Francisco. But that was 62 years ago.

He started as assistant physician at San Quentin Prison. He lasted only 39 years there, retiring in 1951. That was nearly a quarter of a century ago.

One would expect that ol' Doc by now would think of Marin as home, where his roots are.

But he still retains strong ties to his former home, the village of San Miguel, in the shadow of old Mission San Miguel. Each year, San Miguel oldtimers gather in the village park for a picnic-barbecue. This year, Doc Stanley made his pilgrimmage to the old home town as usual. More than a 100 oldtimers were there — more than 30 of them were, like Doc, over 80.

IN 1890, when the Stanley family arrived there from their former home in Oregon, San Miguel was a thriving agricultural community.

As ol' Doc recalls it: "Land values and other advantages had been widely advertised by the railroad, which had pushed up the Salinas Valley to San Luis Obispo. Cattle from the luscious western coastal range were driven to the railhead. Ten and 12-jerkline teams with two to three huge freight wagons brought wheat and barley to the warehouses from the productive rolling hills to the east. All roads led to San Miguel. There were three two-story hotels . . . Thirteen saloons were ever ready to slake the thirst of cowboys and teamsters who came to town. There were five churches in San Miguel . . . Three houses of ill repute had their share of business."

As Doc says, it was a thriving community.

Eight years later, disaster stuck.

"A terribly dry year stuck the Salinas Valley in 1898. No rain fell. No grass sprouted. Livestock died by the thousands from starvation. The once wonderful, rich and productive country really dried up. Anyone who could, moved out. San Miguel became a deserted village and did not ever fully recover, even with the return of the good years."

One can readily see how San Miguel would be proud of Doc Stanley, the local boy who made good as a doctor and gained national recognition for his accomplishments.

MARIN OLDTIMERS remember Dr. Frank A. Lowe, who retired and moved away a few years ago, after he seemingly had spent a lifetime here in the county.

Like Doc Stanley, he, too, had roots elsewhere. He graduated from medical school in Southern California and came to Marin via San Francisco.

He, too, attends the oldtimers' barbecues in San Miguel, because he, too, lived there as a boy and went to school during San Miguel's prime decade, prior to 1900. Lowe was born on a ranch near there. His mother taught school there.

Like Doc Stanley, Dr. Lowe still leads an active life, although retired from medicine.

Doctors Stanley and Lowe had four other San Miguel contemporaries who attended San Miguel grammar school in the 1890s and went on to distinguished medical careers.

Three were the Wayland boys, Charley, Clyde and Ray, now all deceased. Charley served as personal physician for Mrs. Leland Stanford. Ray attended William Randolph Hearst.

The other was Alvin Hillis Wilmar, who still lives only nine miles from San Miguel. He has been retired nearly a quarter of a century. In his medical prime, he attended Jan Ignace Paderewski.

"No doctors came from that locality before and none have come from it since." Doc Stanley observes.

"That they all grew up together in that tiny town of 500 between 1890 and 1900 is, to say the least, unusual, unique, out of the ordinary, amazing, remarkable and worthy of note."

No wonder that after more than 60 years in Marin, Doc Stanley still feels his roots are somewhere else.

Ambidextrous Raccoons

As any dedicated Marin raccoon watcher knows, raccoons eat with their hands, just like people. The usual mode is for them to sit back on their haunches and pick the dog food pellets up with one hand or the other or both at once. But some really hungry raccoons are ambidextrous. As one hand is carrying food to the mouth, the other is reaching for more.

Do Nice Birds Finish Last?

A friend noted that a robin was chased off his San Rafael lawn, first by a jay and later by a mockingbird. He wondered, do nice birds finish last? Our observation is that such is truly often the case.

Bouquets And Brickbat

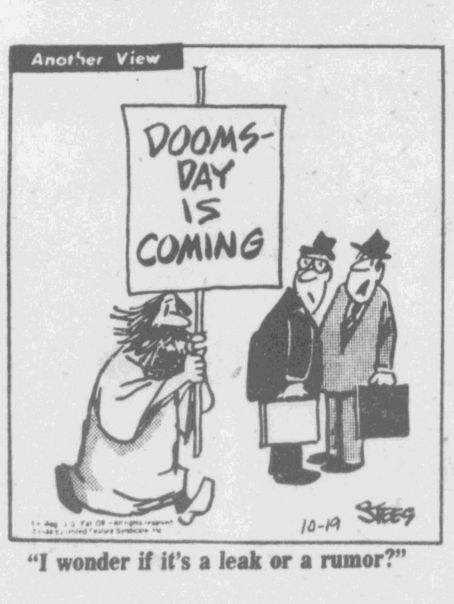
BOUQUET to the Oakland Athletics — for obvious reasons.

BOUQUET to the San Rafael Park and Recreation Commission for its series of hearings to learn what the public wants in the city's recreation program. The last one will be Oct. 29.

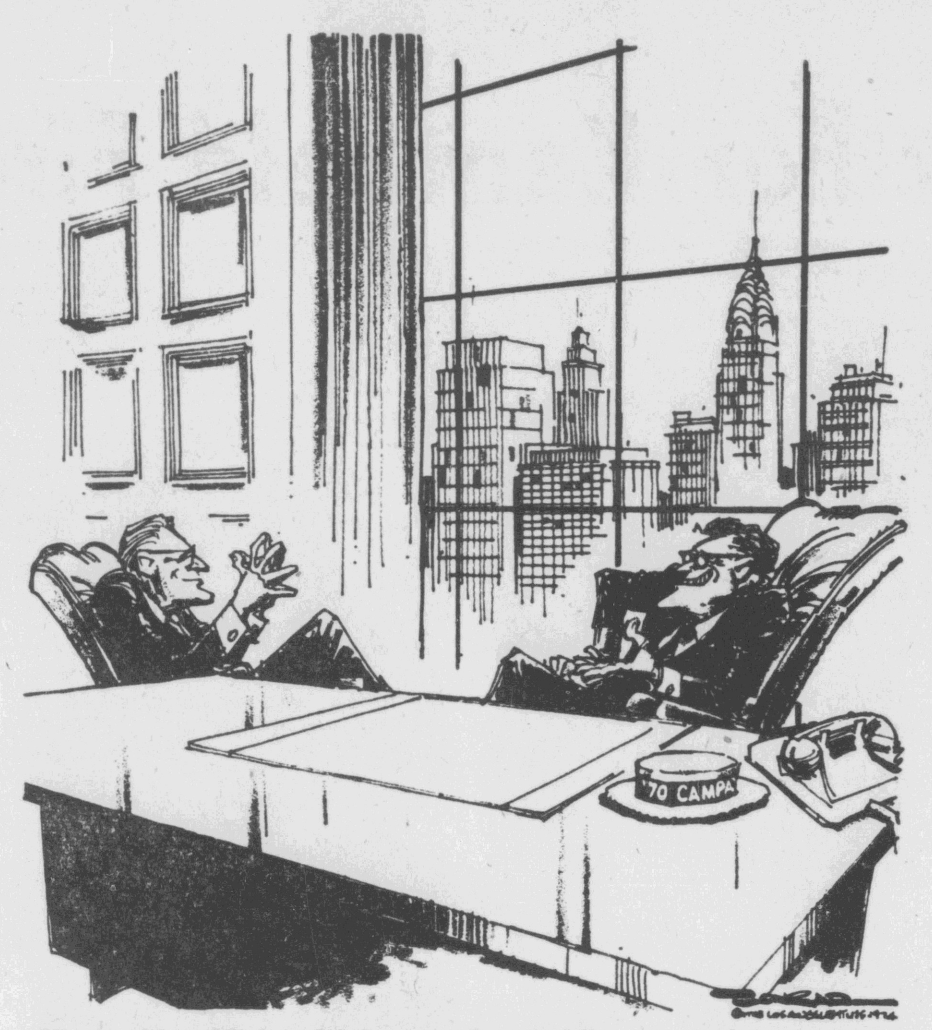
BOUQUET to the Marin County Heart Association for sponsoring programs in the public schools in elementary life-saving techniques.

BRICKBAT to the San Anselmo City Council for showing its willingness to give away a responsibility vested in it by the voters in endorsing regional growth control boards.

BOUQUET to Jeanne Keller, a teacher at Henry C. Hall School in Larkspur, on her selection as "Marin County Teacher of the Year."



"I wonder if it's a leak or a rumor?"



"We could publish a book smearing Goldberg — but it would be wrong."

Wyman as senator against his Democratic rival, John A. Durkin. The editor-publisher of the Manchester Union Leader has just asked Representative Wyman to withdraw.

Mr. Wyman acknowledges that he talked to White House staff in 1969 and 1971 about Dr. Farkas's ambitions, and met with her and GOP fund-raiser Maurice Stans in 1972, when she pledged $300,000.

Odds in New Hampshire were originally 2-to-1 on Mr. Wyman's election for the seat vacated by Sen. Norris Cotton, which has been Republican for half a century, but now the race is called uncertain.

SEN. CHARLES M. MATHIAS, R-Md., proposes amendments to the Foreign Assistance Act making political contributors of more than $2,000 ineligible for ambassadorships, and requiring that at all times 85 per cent of U.S. ambassadors should be career men. The percentage is now less than 70 per cent, the senator says.

The office of supreme allied commander of NATO is not exactly a diplomatic appointment, but President Ford's choice of Gen. Alexander M. Haig Jr. has brought grumblings. Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., complains that "the diplomatic service has once again become the dumping ground for political leftovers," and Sen. Robert C. Byrd, assistant Democratic leader who is one of the most powerful figures in today's Senate, voices "serious misgivings."

Famed Designer Is Back In The Skies

By The Christian Science Monitor News Service

MUNICH, GERMANY — Prof. Willy Messerschmitt, the famous German aircraft designer whose ME-109 single-engine fighter provided the backbone of Hitler's Luftwaffe during World War II, has launched a new company to resurrect and market a light airplane he first designed in 1933.

Messerschmitt, who is three months past his 76th birthday, has gathered a group of old friends around him in an effort to crack the highly competitive single-engine pleasure craft market with an updated version of the ME-108 Taiphun (English Typhoon).

"Some people think it's just nostalgia, but we think we can make a go of it," says Mano Ziegler, official spokesman and sales chief of Taiphun Flugzeugbau, GmbH, the company formed to produce and sell the plane. Ziegler, who flew Messerschmitt's ME-163 rocket plane as well as the ME-109 during the war, is quick to point out that even the old ME-108 is not far out of date.

WILLY MESSERSCHMITT
Making planes again

"Its design has served as a prototype for just about every private and business plane in its class built since," he says "Also, major competitors such as the Beechcraft Bonanza were design conceptions which came out of the 1930's."

The fact that Messerschmitt is undertaking such a project is in keeping with his penchant for work. Following the collapse of the Third Reich in 1945, aircraft production was forbidden in Germany for 10 years, but Messerschmitt never broke stride. He designed everything from automobiles to knitting machines. His love for airplanes took him to Spain, where he designed fighters and training aircraft for Gen. Francisco Franco's Air Force.

Two years after the Allies removed the ban on German airplane production in 1955, Messerschmitt was producing aircraft in Germany once again. He finally "retired" last year as supervisory board chairman of Messerschmitt-Boelkow-Blohm, the country's largest aerospace company.

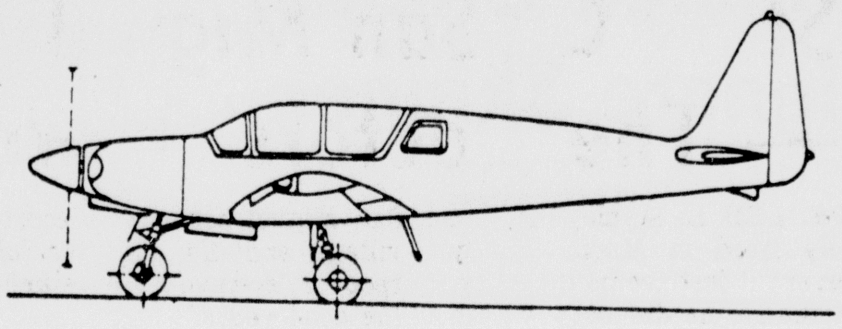
The idea to begin building the ME-108 after more than 35 years was generated when Messerschmitt and Ziegler saw a rejuvenated copy of the plane about two years ago. It had been totally overhauled by an aeronautical engineer as a hobby.

"It looked like new," remembers Ziegler. "There has been talk ever since the way about producing the plane again, but there always seemed to be more pressing things at hand. Now we are finally beginning."

The group is building a production facility adjacent to a municipal airstrip in the small Bavarian town of Weiding and hopes to move in early next year. Initial test flights of an updated ME-108 are scheduled for 1976.

Messerschmitt and another old World War II aircraft designer, Kurt Tank (designer of the Focke-Wulf 190 fighter and coworker of Messerschmitt's in the late 1920's), have replaced the plane's original tail-wheel design with a retractable tricycle landing gear, installed a more powerful engine (Lycoming 300 hp.), and transferred the fuel tanks from the fuselage to the wings to allow room for five instead of the original two passengers plus the pilot.

The new ME-108 will have a top speed of 215 m.p.h. combined with a minimum landing speed of only 52 m.p.h., a speed range far greater than other aircraft of its class (Bonanza, Navion), according to Ziegler.



"We hope to turn out about 200 planes a year once production gets rolling," he says.

If this production target is met and the tentative $50,000 price tag holds, it would give the company a tidy $10 million in annual sales.

Fast, comfortable, easily maneuverable, the Typhoon was extremely popular among private pilots of the 1930's. Charles Lindbergh reportedly called it "the best plane of its type" he ever flew. But production stopped in the late 1930's when Germany's aircraft industry went on a war footing, and the plane has not been built since.

Russians Are Facing Limits Of Practical City Expansion

By LEO GRULIOW
The Christian Science Monitor
News Service

MOSCOW — The Soviet Union is a nation of great expanses. Land carries no taxes, rent, or price tag. It is public property free of charge, a city planner's dream.

For half a century, as peasants moved to the cities and the urban population multiplied five times, Soviet cities simply expanded across the fields.

At the hub of town, planners often left one-story buildings standing (housing was precious), while they erected rings of apartment houses around the city. There always seemed to be plenty of room to build outward across the plain.

But no more.

City after city has reached limits of practical expansion, edging up against farmland, recreation zones, or other barriers. Even in small towns Soviet planners now are tearing down old structures to build upward into the sky instead of outward over the land.

It is a new stage, according to the government daily, Izvestia, a stage that dooms small private houses in the cities.

Surprisingly, one-story homes house almost one-quarter of the nation's city dwellers. For the private owner-occupants, an estimated 40 million urban residents, the new stage is trying.

A letter published recently in Izvestia recounted the problems of 20 families that live on Chekhov Street in Poltava, a city in the Ukraine:

World War II left Poltava in ruins. Twenty veterans came back from the war to find wives and children huddled in barns or cellars. The city had no housing for its returning soldiers. It could only allot them land.

The 20 families picked up bricks and timbers from the wreckage and began to build modest shelters with their own hands. Their 20 houses became Chekhov Street.

"We dug uncomplainingly from morning to night," they wrote to Izvestia. "We helped each other. We hauled water for half a mile away until we built mains and power lines ourselves."

It took many years of saving and working to erect the sturdy, one-story, brick or brick-faced buildings.

"When the cherry trees bloom in the spring it is heaven-like, white as snow," wrote Chekhov Street's 20 families. "It is frightening to think that the bulldozers are coming to raze our gardens."

In response to the letter, an Izvestia writer visited the office of Poltava Mayor Vilen Bezverkhny. His waiting room was filled with petitioners asking for apartment space. The city has 13,000 on the housing waiting list, and no vacant apartments.

Poltava is growing faster than expected. Last year it surpassed 250,000, the population planned for 1980.

In one direction city buildings now reach as far as a historic battlefield of 1709, preserved as a national monument, like Gettysburg. There they must stop. In another direction they encroach on the famous Poltava black earth fields — land so precious that during the occupation the Nazis are alleged to have shipped trainloads of the soil to Germany.

So the city fathers say it is time to raze the one-story homes within city limits and build upward. But one-story homes supply half of Poltava's housing.

As soon as a private house is scheduled for demolition, the occupants write letters of complaint to the authorities and the newspapers. "Universal literacy is our nemesis," cried city architect Ivanov.

Sometimes the letters of appeal marshal enough support to block condemnation proceedings. The architects had to postpone Zygin Street demolition. On Makarenko Street they dropped plans for one out of three apartment houses.

But what of those who protest and lose?

They own their homes, but not the land on which the homes stand. Only the state owns Soviet land. In theory, the owner of a condemned house is entitled to monetary compensation, removal of the building to a new site, the right to enter a housing cooperative without waiting, or a city apartment.

In actuality, says Izvestia, the money does not buy a new house, builders refuse to move the homes, the building co-op membership lists are filled up for three years ahead, and the only effective choice is to accept an apartment.

APARTMENT FEVER — Russia, a city planner's dream, is running out of room and has reached a stage that dooms small private homes in the city. This scene is in Kharkov in the Ukraine.

Indian Ocean Could Be Next Scene Of U.S.-Sino Rivalry

By GUY HALVERSON
The Christian Science Monitor

WASHINGTON, D.C. — Congress is now taking steps that could soon open up the Indian Ocean to a permanent U.S. military presence — and, critics charge, to a new round of U.S.-Soviet big-power rivalries.

At issue: Whether to fund an expanded Navy-Air Force installation at Diego Garcia — a minuscule, 5-by-14-mile, British-owned coral atoll 1,200 miles south of India. Since the spring of 1973 the United States has maintained a Navy communications facility there.

The Pentagon had originally requested $29 million to expand the U.S. facility, but now appears likely to receive a smaller amount. It plans to expand the airfield from 8,000 to 12,000 feet, put in storage and fuel facilities, and add new living quarters.

A joint Senate-House conference committee will meet on the controversial question soon. The House has authorized $29 million for fiscal year 1975, plus a "holdover" $3 million from fiscal year 1974. The Senate, more wary, has authorized $18.1 million — and is asking President Ford to send along a written certification to Congress that an expanded Diego Garcia site is vital to U.S. security interests.

Under Senate terms, there would have to be a joint Senate-House go-ahead before any money is actually spent.

The base, if made fully operational according to Pentagon plans, would constitute an extension of U.S. military clout into the troubled Indian Ocean area at a time when the U.S. presence in East Asia has been pruned back sharply since the Vietnam peace accord in 1973.

At his first press conference Aug. 28, President Ford, who favors a "limited expansion" of the facility, said that "I don't view this as any challenge to the Soviet Union ... This particular proposed construction, I think, is a wise policy and it ought not to ignite any escalation of the problems in the Middle East."

A number of influential lawmakers — including Sen. John C. Stennis (D-Miss.), chairman of the Senate Armed Services Committee, and Rep. Lee H. Hamilton, (D-Ind.) a member of the House Foreign Affairs Committee, have raised questions about further expansion of the site.

The governments of India, Australia, New Zealand, Indonesia, Malaysia, Tanzania, Madagascar, and Sri Lanka (Ceylon) have all protested U.S. plans, as inviting new East-West tensions in the area.

"This thing has been pushed by the military on and off since 1966," grumbles one analyst of the House Foreign Affairs Committee. "It's the type of thing where they wear you down" over the years, he says.

Pentagon officials maintain the need for Diego Garcia is genuine. The enlarged facility, says one Pentagon spokesman, is "militarily necessary, given increased Soviet naval penetration in the region." On a one-day check last week, there were 31 Soviet vessels in the Indian Ocean, including 17 "combatant vessels."

There were four U.S. vessels, including two destroyers, one support ship, and a command ship.

The U.S. fleet in the region, according to a Navy spokesman, has been averaging "between four and seven vessels" during the past months.

The United States currently makes port calls at: Bahrein, in the Persian Gulf; Djibouti, in the Gulf of Aden; Colombo; Diego Suarez (Malagasy Republic); and Mombasa, Kenya, among other stops.

Two complicating factors: questions about the significance of the three Soviet Indian Ocean facilities used by the Soviets, and uncertainty about continued U.S. use of Bahrein.

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Church Circles Ignore Skinner

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

B. F. Skinner, the father of contemporary behavioral psychology and one of the most influential figures in contemporary society, has been virtually ignored by religious educators.

In some ways, that is easy to understand.

Skinner's theories contradict some of the most precious ideas of religion's heritage — the idea of the autonomy of the human being who has freedom and dignity, the capacity to will and know.

Yet Skinner, principally in his books "Walden II" and "Beyond Freedom and Dignity," has exercised a remarkable influence over the social sciences and has particularly influenced teaching methods.

Some social scientists, especially in the fields of criminal rehabilitation and teaching of the mentally retarded, swear by the Skinnerian method known as "behavior modification."

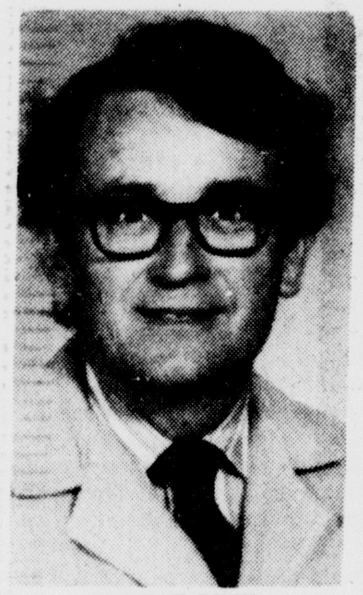
But John L. Elias, professor of educational foundations at Trenton State College, Trenton, N.J., calls the "almost total lack of interest" in Skinner's work "remarkable."

Writing in the current issue of "Religious Education," Elias attempts to assess the main themes of Skinner's work and suggest some implications it might have for religious educators.

Elias finds Skinner fascinated by religion and religious phenomena.

"The religious examples flow easily from his pen. Many religious beliefs are given behavioristic explanation by him (Skinner). He is fascinated by the control that religion has over the lives of people," Elias writes.

Skinner's principal belief, as outlined in his book "Beyond Freedom and Dignity," is an attack on the idea of the human being as free or autonomous. In Skinner's view, then, religion is unscientific because it has, as an underlying principle, the belief that the human being is free to choose and is responsible for choices made.



ROBERT BUSH
Now at St. Paul's

Episcopal Church Taps Choirmaster

Robert Bush of Mill Valley is the newly appointed choirmaster and organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael.

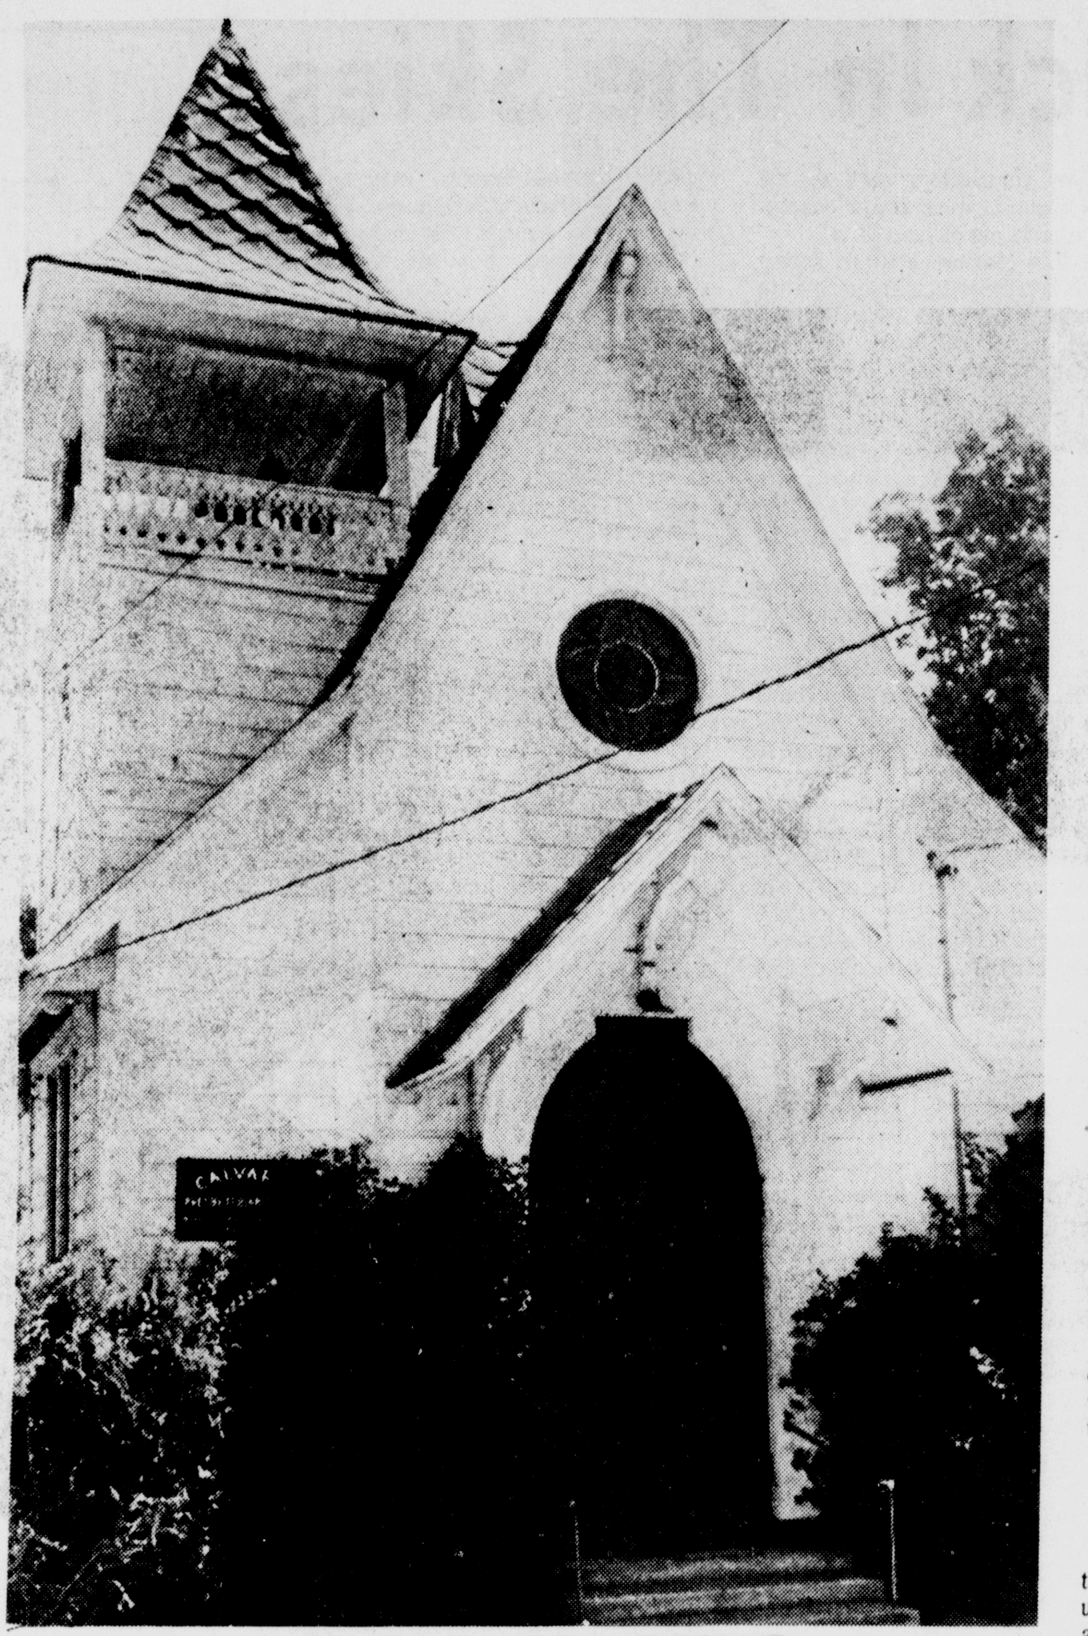
A graduate of San Francisco State College, where he majored in music, Bush has taught public school for six years. He also has been organist and choir director at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato and director of music at Trinity Methodist Church in Berkeley.

He formerly was associated with Eugene Fulton of San Francisco and Bernard Ferguson of San Rafael, both as a vocal student and studio accompanist. He now has his own vocal studio in Mill Valley.

In addition to his musical activities, Bush has long been active in the theater. He has directed "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "Oh Kay!" at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts.

He is planning to form a theater group at St. Paul's this spring and has scheduled a performance of "Amahl" along with Vivaldi's "Gloria" for Christmas. Anyone interested in joining either as a singer or an actor may contact Bush at the church or in Mill Valley.

PREACHER — Don Rood, western secretary of the Pocket Testament League, will preach at services tomorrow at 8:15 and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. at Valley Baptist Church in San Rafael. Rood has traveled in Africa, Europe, Indonesia, Vietnam, Philippines, Taiwan, Japan and Latin America. Rev. Warren Conrad, the church's pastor, and his wife are on a tour of the Holy Land.



A CENTURY OF WORSHIP

The Calvary Presbyterian Church sits on a quiet street in Bolinas. The church was organized in 1874, although the building wasn't completed until 1877. It first was located on what was known as "Gospel Flat," across from Bolinas School. The bell tower was not part of the original structure but was added in 1902 when the church was moved to its present site, according to Charles J. Napier, an elder and clerk of the session. The 20-member congregation is headed by Rev. Douglas Saxby, a professor of theology at the College of Marin.

Pastor Paul, Friend To Conduct Crusade

Evangelist Paul Everett and his dummy, Wally, will conduct a five-day Youth Crusade this week at Calvary Baptist Church in Larkspur. The event will begin at 7 p.m. tomorrow and continue each evening through Thursday.

Everett, known to children across the nation as "Pastor Paul," uses humor, magic, ventriloquism and chalk drawings illuminated by black light to present the Gospel message.

He also will speak tomorrow at the Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and the morning worship service at 11 a.m.

The evangelist is a native of Marin and attended local schools. He is a graduate of Western Baptist Bible College in Salem, Ore. and has since been pastor of churches in Washington and California.

Since 1970 he has conducted family and youth crusades for Gospel Outreach for Youth Evangelism, a nationwide organization sponsored by Fellowship of Baptists for Home Missions.

Everett is a frequent speaker at summer camps, youth rallies and religious and public schools. He will be available for school assemblies Monday and Tuesday.

He and his wife and three children live in Sonoma.

MARIN ACTIVITIES

Baha'i Community To Mark 155th Anniversary Of Prophet

The Baha'i Community of San Rafael will celebrate one of the principal events of the Baha'i year tomorrow — the 155th anniversary of the birth of Mirza'Ali Muham-mad, known to Baha'is as the Bab ("the Gate").

The Bab was the forerunner of Baha'u'llah, the prophet-founder of the Baha'i Faith.

The local community will observe the day with a meeting at 8 p.m. today at the home of David Benzo, 131 Greenwood Avenue, San Rafael. A potluck dessert will follow.

The session is open to the public.

The San Rafael Baha'i community is one of more than 6,000 in the United States where the faith has existed since 1896.

The world center of the faith is Haifa, Israel. Baha'u'llah died at Bahji, near Haifa, in 1892 after spending 24 years in exile in what is now the state of Israel.

The Bab, one of the key figures in Baha'i, was born in 1819. As a youth of 25 living in Shiraz, Persia, he claimed to be a divine messenger. During a ministry which lasted only six years, the Bab, through his writings and example, inspired his followers to live moral and righteous lives.

In 1850 he was executed by established religious leaders for what they considered heretical teachings.

The event will be followed by a wine tasting.

Art works by Karen Battet will be on exhibit.

ARTS DAY

The Community Congregational Church of Belvedere-Tiburon will hold a day of music, art and poetry next Sunday, Oct. 27, at the church, located at the top of Rockhill Drive in Tiburon.

The day will begin with a worship service featuring the poetry of Robert Frost at 10 a.m. Participating in the service will be Robin Hudnut of Tiburon, granddaughter of the poet.

At 3 p.m. jazz pianist Abe Battat and a group of musicians will present a concert.

TOPIC TOLD

Rev. William Perdue, pastor of the Westminster Presbyterian Church of Belvedere-Tiburon, will preach tomorrow at 9:30 a.m. at the Sausalito Presbyterian Church.

His topic will be "Too Good to be True?"

Dr. Perdue is a member of the committee on church and society of the General Assembly of the United Presbyterian Church of the U.S. He also is an adjunct professor of ministries for the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo.

GOSPEL SINGER

Gospel singer Tom DuBose will sing tomorrow during the 10:30 a.m. worship service at the Sleepy Hollow Presbyterian Church, 100 Tarry Road, San Anselmo.

DuBose got his start by winning a Hollywood talent contest and later was a member of the New York City Resident Opera Company. Called to the Christian mission in 1964, he has served as a missionary in Europe and Africa and currently is with the Philadelphia Church in Oakland.

COURSE DUE

A course in human sexuality will begin Tuesday evening at the Unitarian Fellowship of Marin, 240 Channing Way, San Rafael.

The course will run eight to 10 weeks and be held Tuesdays from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Instructor Arnold Mack, who teaches human sexuality for San Rafael City Schools, said the goals will be to "increase self-knowledge and awareness in an effort to break down barriers of communication that so often hinder relationships."

Tuition is $15 for singler persons and $25 for couples. Class size will be limited.

DISCUSS BELIEF

Josephine H. Carver, a Christian Science lecturer, will discuss her belief that "there are no limits to what an individual can accomplish through reliance on what is truly divine" at 8 p.m. Monday at Chapel One on Hamilton Air Force Base.

JOSEPHINE H. CARVER
Lecturer

Mrs. Carver is from Boston and holds degrees from Occidental College and Columbia University. She has served as second reader of the First Church of Christ, Scientist in Boston and became a teacher of Christian Science in 1961 and a member of the Christian Science board of lectureship in 1965.

SCHOLAR PREACHES

Dr. Gurdon C. Oxtoby, former professor and dean at the San Francisco Theological Seminary in San Anselmo, will present a sermon titled "The Word of God Will Stand Forever" at 10 a.m. tomorrow in the Presbyterian Church in Novato, 710 Wilson Avenue.

At 7 p.m. tomorrow the Old Testament scholar will demonstrate his ability as a magician in a brief program which will be followed by a lecture on some off the puzzling aspects of early stories in the Old Testament.

Dr. Oxtoby, who now lives in Los Gatos, was a longtime resident of Marin and served as professor of Old Testament studies at the seminary for 38 years and as dean for more than 16 years.

He retired in 1967, then went to the Philippines for five years where he taught at two seminaries.

In 1966 he was elected moderator of the Synod of California, United Presbyterian Church.

Dr. Oxtoby is the author of two books, "Prediction and Fulfillment in the Bible" and "Biblical Foundations for Belief and Action."

Women Priests Called Natural

NEW YORK (UPI) — Ordination of women is a natural step, says Sister Dorothy Donnelly of the Jesuit School of Theology of Berkeley, and she described hrself as very disappointed that the Vatican Commission on Women in the Church and Society had failed to discuss the subject at its meeting in Rome recently.

The president of the National Coalition of American Nuns said in a story in the National Catholic Reporter that "women are among those on the front lines of ministry.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN DO FOR A FAMILY.

It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.

It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.

It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.

How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.

Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

RELIGION IN AMERICA

Church Circles Ignore Skinner

By DAVID E. ANDERSON
UPI Religion Writer

B. F. Skinner, the father of contemporary behavioral psychology and one of the most influential figures in contemporary society, has been virtually ignored by religious educators.

In some ways, that is easy to understand.

Skinner's theories contradict some of the most precious ideas of religion's heritage — the idea of the autonomy of the human being who has freedom and dignity, the capacity to will and know.

Yet Skinner, principally in his books "Walden II" and "Beyond Freedom and Dignity," has exercised a remarkable influence over the social sciences and has particularly influenced teaching methods.

Some social scientists, especially in the fields of criminal rehabilitation and teaching of the mentally retarded, swear by the Skinnerian method known as "behavior modification."

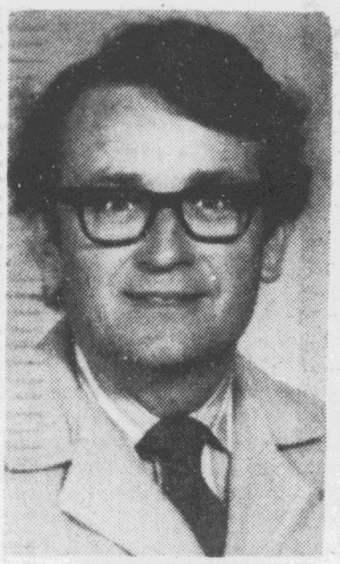
But John L. Elias, professor of educational foundations at Trenton State College, Trenton, N.J., calls the "almost total lack of interest" in Skinner's work "remarkable."

Writing in the current issue of "Religious Education," Elias attempts to assess the main themes of Skinner's work and suggest some implications it might have for religious educators.

Elias finds Skinner fascinated by religion and religious phenomena.

"The religious examples flow easily from his pen. Many religious beliefs are given behavioristic explanation by him (Skinner). He is fascinated by the control that religion has over the lives of people," Elias writes.

Skinner's principal belief, as outlined in his book "Beyond Freedom and Dignity," is an attack on the idea of the human being as free or autonomous. In Skinner's view, then, religion is unscientific because it has, as an underlying principle, the belief that the human being is free to choose and is responsible for choices made.



ROBERT BUSH
Now at St. Paul's

Episcopal Church Taps Choirmaster

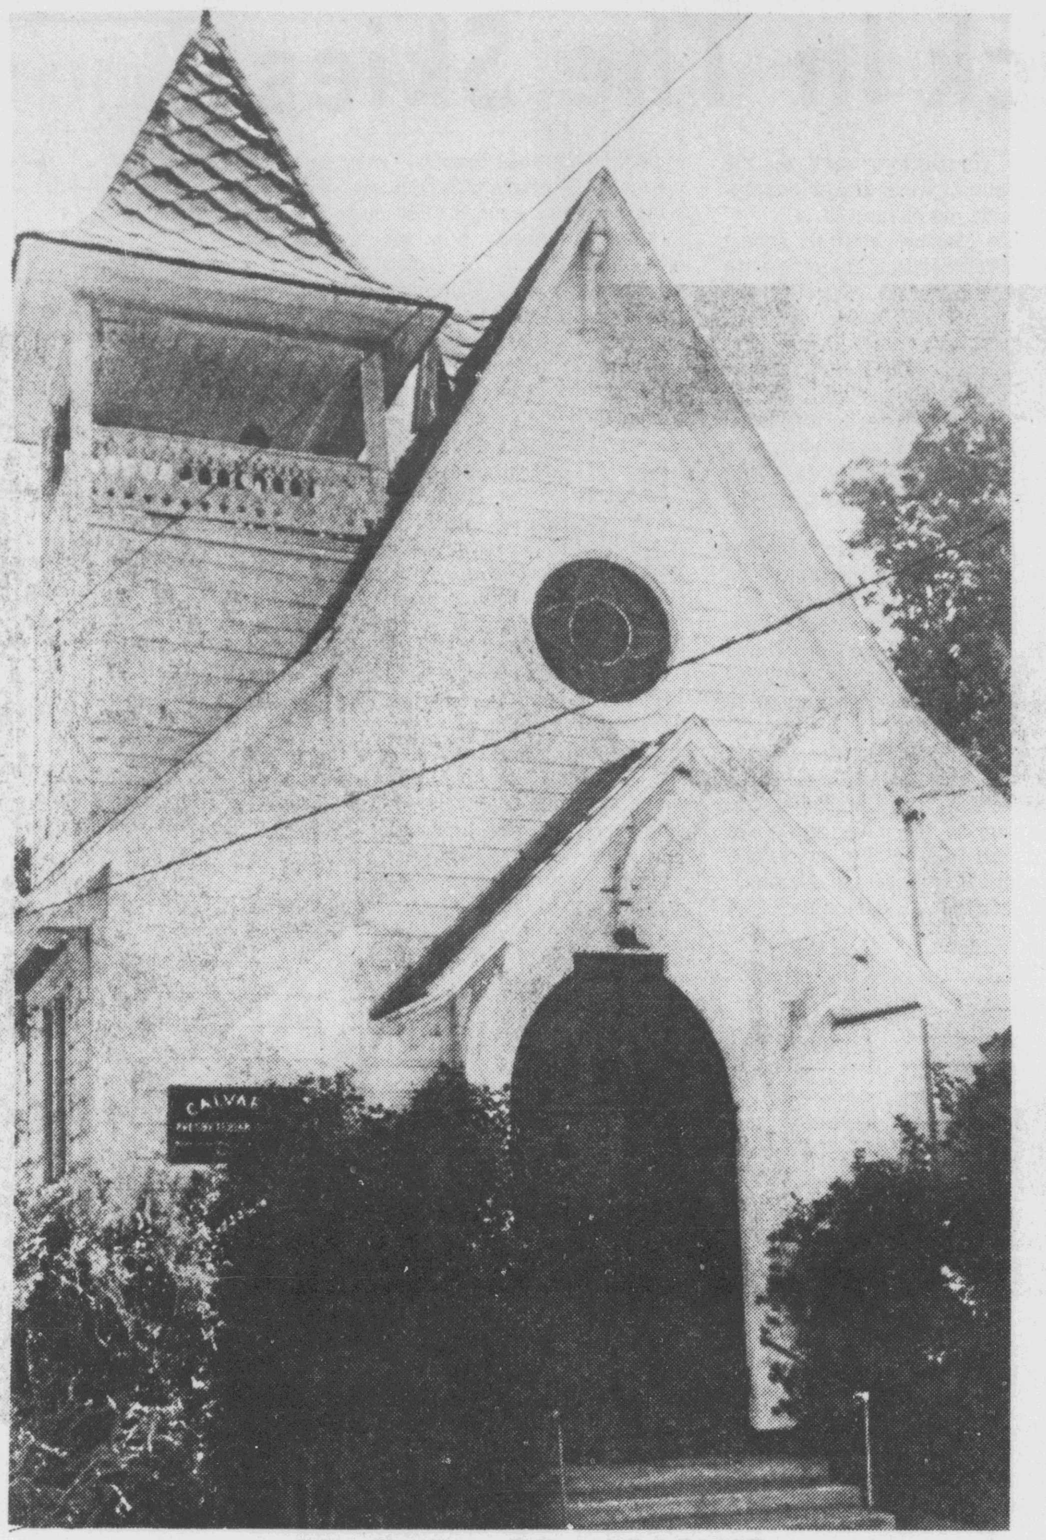
Robert Bush of Mill Valley is the newly appointed choirmaster and organist at St. Paul's Episcopal Church in San Rafael.

A graduate of San Francisco State College, where he majored in music, Bush has taught public school for six years. He also has been organist and choir director at St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato and director of music at Trinity Methodist Church in Berkeley.

He formerly was associated with Eugene Fulton of San Francisco and Bernard Ferguson of San Rafael, both as a vocal student and studio accompanist. He now has his own vocal studio in Mill Valley.

In addition to his musical activities, Bush has long been active in the theater. He has directed "Amahl and the Night Visitors" and "Oh Kay!" at the Mill Valley Center for the Performing Arts.

He is planning to form a theater group at St. Paul's this spring and has scheduled a performance of "Amahl" along with Vivaldi's "Gloria" for Christmas. Anyone interested in joining either as a singer or an actor may contact Bush at the church or in Mill Valley.



A CENTURY OF WORSHIP

The Calvary Presbyterian Church sits on a quiet street in Bolinas. The church was organized in 1874, although the building wasn't completed until 1877. It first was located on what was known as "Gospel Flat," across from Bolinas School. The bell tower was not part of the original structure but was added in 1902 when the church was moved to its present site, according to Charles J. Napier, an elder and clerk of the session. The 20-member congregation is headed by Rev. Douglas Saxby, a professor of theology at the College of Marin.

PREACHER — Don Rood, western secretary of the Pocket Testament League, will preach at services tomorrow at 8:15 and 11 a.m. and 6 p.m. at Valley Baptist Church in San Rafael. Rood has traveled in Africa, Europe, Indonesia, Vietnam, Philippines, Taiwan, Japan and Latin America. Rev. Warren Conrad, the church's pastor, and his wife are on a tour of the Holy Land.

Pastor Paul, Friend To Conduct Crusade

Evangelist Paul Everett and his dummy, Wally, will conduct a five-day Youth Crusade this week at Calvary Baptist Church in Larkspur. The event will begin at 7 p.m. tomorrow and continue each evening through Thursday.

Everett, known to children across the nation as "Pastor Paul," uses humor, magic, ventriloquism and chalk drawings illuminated by black light to present the Gospel message.

He also will speak tomorrow at the Sunday school at 9:45 a.m. and the morning worship service at 11 a.m.

The evangelist is a native of Marin and attended local schools. He is a graduate of Western Baptist Bible College in Salem, Ore. and has since been pastor of churches in Washington and California.

Since 1970 he has conducted family and youth crusades for Gospel Outreach for Youth Evangelism, a nationwide organization sponsored by Fellowship of Baptists for Home Missions.

Everett is a frequent speaker at summer camps, youth rallies and religious and public schools. He will be available for school assemblies Monday and Tuesday.

He and his wife and three children live in Sonoma.

Further information about the crusade and transportation may be obtained by calling Rev. David A. Tucker at the church.

WHAT CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CAN DO FOR A FAMILY.
It can bring an understanding of God's closeness and care, helping each one in the family in everything he does.
It can develop a deep love for the Bible, and joyful obedience to God's law.
It can teach every member, and the family together, to heal problems in the way Jesus showed.
How can Christian Science do all this? Through Sunday School classes that strengthen children. Through Sunday services that inspire parents. Through Wednesday testimony meetings where personal accounts of healing are shared. Through Reading Rooms where truths are pondered in quiet.
Won't you invite Christian Science into your family's life?

Wire Sculpture Kits Becoming Profitable

By DON KEOWN

With wire and nails, 38-year-old David V. Smith of San Anselmo has built himself a satisfying creative art that is also a flourishing, profitable business.

Smith is deep into the craft art of wire sculpture, or symography.

But Smith, and some colleagues, have carried wire sculpture one step further than their personal creations.

THEY ARE at the heart of a growing business that produces kits from which others, less experienced or less talented, can nevertheless enjoy the pleasures of producing artistic decorative pieces through the wrapping of copper or aluminum wire around nails driven into a backing or mounting.

The kits are beginning to show up in growing numbers at department stores, hobby and art shops and gift stores, and are selling well.

David Smith's involvement is sometimes that of designer, sometimes that of distributor, or both.

And for the bearded, long-haired southerner, who speaks with the drawl of the region where he was reared, it all provides the satisfaction that comes from knowing that, finally, he hit upon the thing he had wanted, all along, to be doing.

SMITH was born in Greenville, S.C., where he lived with his divorced mother and with other relatives.

"And as a kid I was deep into art," he says. "I enjoyed creating things."

Then somehow, at about his sophomore year in high school, his interests veered, and he began thinking about becoming a lawyer. "And I didn't get back into art seriously until I was 33."

"And as a kid I was deep into art. I enjoyed creating things."

Smith attended law school for nearly two years before deciding "I just wasn't cut out for that" and quitting.

The next several years were spent in sales work of various kinds.

"And I made good money out of that," he says. "But somehow, there always seemed to be something lacking."

There came a trip to Florida for a firm for which he was selling, and a call upon a furniture dealer.

"I WAS in that furniture store when a fellow walked in with two wire sculpture pieces, trying to sell them to the storeowner to retail," Smith relates. "He called me over, and asked me what my reaction was to the sculptures. And I told him I was fascinated by them."

Smith wasn't exaggerating. Indeed, he was so fascinated that he talked the young sculptor, John M. Barton, into going into a partnership with him. "If he would design and make them, I would use my sales experience to get them on the market."

Barton's past practice had been to work in his Indiana studio until he had produced a station wagon load of sculptures, then load up his vehicle and travel until he had sold his work.

Now Barton could concentrate upon the creative aspect of the business, while Smith took care of the rest.

"And that was my start in wire art," says Smith.

THE PARTNERSHIP was relatively short-lived, for Barton wanted to focus upon a more expensive product for galleries, while Smith was interested in a more commercial product aimed at the furniture and gift store trades. The two partners were also in disagreement over Smith's idea for the production of kits to be used by others to create their own wire sculpture pieces.

"He was afraid it would endanger our own finished work," Smith says, "while I felt that the kits could be done in such a way that they would be simple enough for anyone to use from the age of 12 up, and would in no way compete with our more elaborate sculptures."

So the two parted — amicably.

"And I still feel that John M. Barton is the best in the country at symography," Smith says of his former partner.

During the partnership Smith had traveled widely through the Midwest and South, selling to such firms as Abercrombie Fitch, Nieman Marcus, Macy's and Marshall Field.

"And we did well at art shows, boat shows and home and garden shows, as well," he says.

NOW HE returned to the South — to Atlanta, Ga. There he entered a new partnership, again involving wire sculpture, but this time "on a more commercial basis."

His partners were Bob Kramer and George Pendley.

Smith, jumping from the sales end of the business to the creative end, was in charge of the design work. Kramer directed production. And Pendley was in charge of advertising, sales and marketing.

"I don't want to give the impression we were a big outfit," Smith says. "At finished pictures from wire and nails, and ees."

Smith enjoyed the opportunity to be more directly involved in the art-craft itself. "It was my desire to get completely out of the administrative and sales end of it," he says.

Still no kits were being produced, although the idea remained firmly implanted in Smith's mind. "We were doing finished pictures from wire and nails, and that only," he says.

But Smith could not rid himself of his idea for the kits. Partners Pendley and Kramer were well satisfied with the way things were going. So again David Smith left a partnership on amicable terms with his former colleagues.

PENDLEY went into the interior decorating field while Kramer continued to do finished artwork.

As for Smith, he headed for Charlotte, N.C., and there took on a new partner in young Scott T. Hann in what was to be a more lasting relationship.

Smith explains that he and Hann's father were earlier acquaintances, having worked together.

Now Scott was just out of high school and keenly interested in art. "He's the most creative young person I've ever met," says Smith.

The two opened a small studio in Charlotte, "trying to come up with some new things." But now Smith had a partner who shared his enthusiasm for the idea of wire sculpture kits that could be sold to the public.

"We decided it could be done, and that it ought to be done," Smith says. "But we also knew it would require a good bit a capital that we didn't have at the time."

They found an investor who could see tax-write-off as well as investment opportunities in the proposal.

"HE WAS more interested in the tax write-off aspect," Smith says. "But we knew that it would stand up and pay off as a business venture."

From the arrangement came the firm called Smith House.

The company and Smith share pending copywrights and patents "on the first line of wire sculpture kits to our knowledge to hit the market in the United States."

The kits began to be produced in early 1972 and are now being sold across the

Marin Family Makes Switch, From Computers To Tea For Many

By MARY LEYDECKER

Last year, Bill Perry was feeding computers at a large San Francisco insurance company and his wife, Pat, was whipping up news copy for the Independent-Journal.

The couple and their three youngsters were making their home in a trim Marinwood house, complete with a swimming pool, and the Perrys had chosen Marin for their permanent home after years of Air Force transfers.

THIS YEAR, however, one can find Perry feeding hungry groups of English tourists, while his wife whips up scones and lemon meringue pies to help fill the seemingly endless groups of Yorkshire "holiday-makers."

The three children, Chris, Richard and Jackie, have given up their blue jeans and t-shirts and now wear the blazers and neckties of English students until they come home to their two-story solid Victorian home in a tiny village.

The big change in the Perrys' lives came about after an almost spur-of-the-moment decision by Perry last summer, and most of the time, he doesn't regret it nor does his family.

"Working for yourself, you don't mind working harder," he said, and as he recently told a dairy farmer friend, "at the end of the day you have enough money for a few beers."

SOME DAYS, though, Perry, who retired from the Air Force a couple of years ago at the age of 38, is not so philosophical about running a small resort business, and "B. . . all of 'em" is the kindest remark he can think of about his customers.

The move to England from Marin was not a journey to a strange land for the Perrys, however.

Perry, a Michigan native, met his wife when he was a young airman stationed in England years ago. Mrs. Perry is a Londoner, who has never lost the accent and sprightly manner of her home city.

The couple traveled to various parts of the United States with the Air Force, with two of the children born in this country and one in England.

After a stint at Hamilton Air Force Base, during which Mrs. Perry worked as a reporter for the I-J, the Perrys were transferred back to England about six years ago.

For four years they lived in the village of Sleights, near Whitby, which is near Scarborough, in Yorkshire, and when the family moved back to California in 1972, the children had acquired rich Yorkshire accents.

UPON PERRY'S retirement after 20 years in the Air Force, the family chose Marin as their permanent home, and Mrs. Perry returned to the I-J, where she is remembered for her enthusiastic coverage of the Tamalpais High School District.

Perry spent several months completing a college degree, and then he began looking for a job. Interested in probation work or a related field, he found himself in heavy competition with the many surplus school teachers out of jobs. Finally, he took a position with a San Francisco insurance firm in the computer field, doing work he found far from stimulating or challenging.

Even a promise that the firm soon was to move its operation to Marin did not enhance the job in his viewpoint.

So one day last summer, Perry chucked the job and flew to England to try to retrieve some money he had invested in a small resort business near their former home in Yorkshire.

Upon arriving in Sleights, he found that the man who was running the "River Gardens" was anxious to sell his part of the business, and Perry called California to find out if his wife was willing to go along on the new enterprise.

SHE WAS, and the children were pleased to return to England, and so the family, which includes a tiny Yorkshire terrier and a similarly-sized dachshund, packed up their belongings and were off.

Mrs. Perry, who has worked as a journalist continuously during her years of raising children (Chris is now 17), did not relish the idea of trading her typewriter for a restaurant stove and quickly went back to work on the Scarborough Evening News three days a week.

The other days of the week, though, she finds herself (usually cheerfully) pitching in at the River Gardens cafe, doing the baking of the goodies the English love with their tea, waiting on customers and washing up afterwards.

After a year of often back-breaking work, the little resort on the River Esk is now a "credit to the village," in the country.

Smith and Scott Hann, however, were not a formal part of the new company. "We just had an arrangement whereby we would get paid for our work on behalf of the company, and we were free to do other things for ourselves and for other firms."

So Scott Hann, his father and a brother opened a second manufacturing company with a separate line of wire sculpture kits out of Brunswick, Ga. Because the plant was located on Jeckyl Island, the new firm was called Island Industries.

SMITH WAS awarded stock in and made a director of Island Industries.

Next Smith and Scott Hann came West and to San Anselmo to set up a Pacific Coast branch of Island Industries.

With them they brought three young people from the Charlotte area, Tommy Wingate, Nancy Moore and Bob Cronin, to work with them. They live and work together, "as a family of friends," in an old house in Sleepy Hollow.

Meanwhile a second manufacturing company, Hann Industries Inc., with a new set of stockholders, but under Island Industries control, had been established in Minneapolis, Minn.

The Marin group formed Hann Warehousing as an affiliate of the Minneapolis company. Its purpose is to distribute Hann Industries kits in the West through its own sales people.

"What it amounts to is that we are buying merchandise from ourselves, and then re-selling it," says Smith. "We are distributing on a direct basis only in the state of California. But in other western states, we are locating craft distributors who sell for us to the trade."

Creative efforts continue as well.

Smith, Hann and their three colleagues continue to design and to create for the manufacturing firms in the East.

SMITH HAS also done a wire sculpture kit line "on a strict royalty basis" for Cunningham Art Products. "These are larger, more expensive kits," he explains, "intended for the kind of people who have done a considerable amount of string or wire sculpture, and who now want to advance to something more elaborate."

Smith adds: "I always try to keep my work for different outlets non-competitive."

In their own creative work, Smith, Hann and their friends are beginning to combine junk art with wire sculpture.

"And our next big project will be a book on wire sculpture," he says. "We may do it for Cunningham, or we may publish it ourselves."

Around the first of the year they hope to be turning out a line of tables with tops of wire and nail designs under glass.

"And I still feel that John M. Barton is the best in the country at symography."

"With the kits on the market and fairly well established, we are able to devote more attention to our own creative work," Smith says.

AS A RESULT they have been participating in a number of indoor and outdoor shows, with their work selling well.

They have connections with Paul Thomas and Michael Warfield, leading Pacific Coast promoters of art festivals.

They hope, eventually, to open a retail store, "somewhere in Marin," that would handle not only their own work, but that of other fine craftsmen as well.

Comparing wire sculpture with its close relative, string sculpture, Smith says:

"The principles are almost identical. But wire has certain advantages in that it is not as inclined to be affected by weather conditions. Whereas string tends to lose its tension over a period of time, wire remains just as you lay it. The wire is non-tarnishable, and therefore holds its sheen and color.

"And, contrary to general opinion, wire is easier to work with than string.

"THIS IS because when you get tired, you can just wrap the wire around the last nail one time, leave it two or three days, and then return, pick it up and resume work. With string, you have to tie it off each time you stop, then untie it when you resume. And string has to be held very tightly, or it will slip and unravel."

For a wire sculpture piece, the design usually takes considerably longer than the actual labor of putting it together. For the skilled Smith that labor might not require more than four or five hours. But a great deal of planning has preceded this.

Smith and his co-workers use non-tarnishable copper wire or anodized aluminum wire for their sculpture and in their kits.

The aluminum wire has been readily available from Alcoa, they say.

The availability of copper wire, however, fluctuates, and it is sometimes difficult to obtain.

Regular stainless steel flooring nails are used.

An Island Industries kit in its large, colorful box, will contain fabric backing, nails, wire, picture hanger, backboard (20 by 18 inches), "explicit instructions," nailing pattern and boat hull.

ALL KITS by Island and Hann to date have had nautical themes, since sailing vessels seem to be the overwhelming favorite of wire sculptors and wire sculpture fans.

A kit for an 18-by-20 sculpture, that sells for $16.95, should provide the purchaser with six to 10 hours of pleasant preoccupation, "and with something that you wind up with that you can be proud of."

"Anyone 12 or older who carefully reads and follows the instructions should be able to assemble one of our kits with little difficulty," Smith says.

In their own work, Smith and Scott Hann have produced replicas of antique cars and airplanes and shipwheels as well as the sailing vessels and boats.

And for a change of pace from the usual nautical theme, they plan to turn out a kit for a wire sculpture of the Golden Gate Bridge. "Scott is working on the patterns right now, and as soon as he finishes, I will write the instructions," Smith says.

In this area, Island Industries kits are available at such places as the Hobby Tree in the Corte Madera Shopping Center, the Fairfax Lumber Co., and the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center and in downtown San Francisco. In Los Angeles, the Broadway Stores are handling them.

There are other dealers, and still more soon to stock the kits.

THE MARIN branch of the now far-flung wire sculpture enterprise that began so modestly in the South operates quite informally.

There's no president, nor other formal officers.

"We just kind of all work together on everything," says Smith, "but I guess you would have to say that Scott and I make most of the decisions, since it is sort of our thing. But we try to get everybody involved, and let everyone have a voice. And we try to maintain harmony in the house. Then everything kind of takes care of itself."

"With them they brought three young people from the Charlotte area, Tommy Wingate, Nancy Moore and Bob Cronin, to work with them. They live and work together, 'as a family of friends' in an old house in Sleepy Hollow."

In wire sculpture, Smith says, they have an art form of ancient origins — "I think it must have begun with the old Greeks at the time they discovered the parabolic line."

The use of wire, however, was largely forgotten. What work that was done was generally with string, "probably because string is chaper, and a lot easier to obtain."

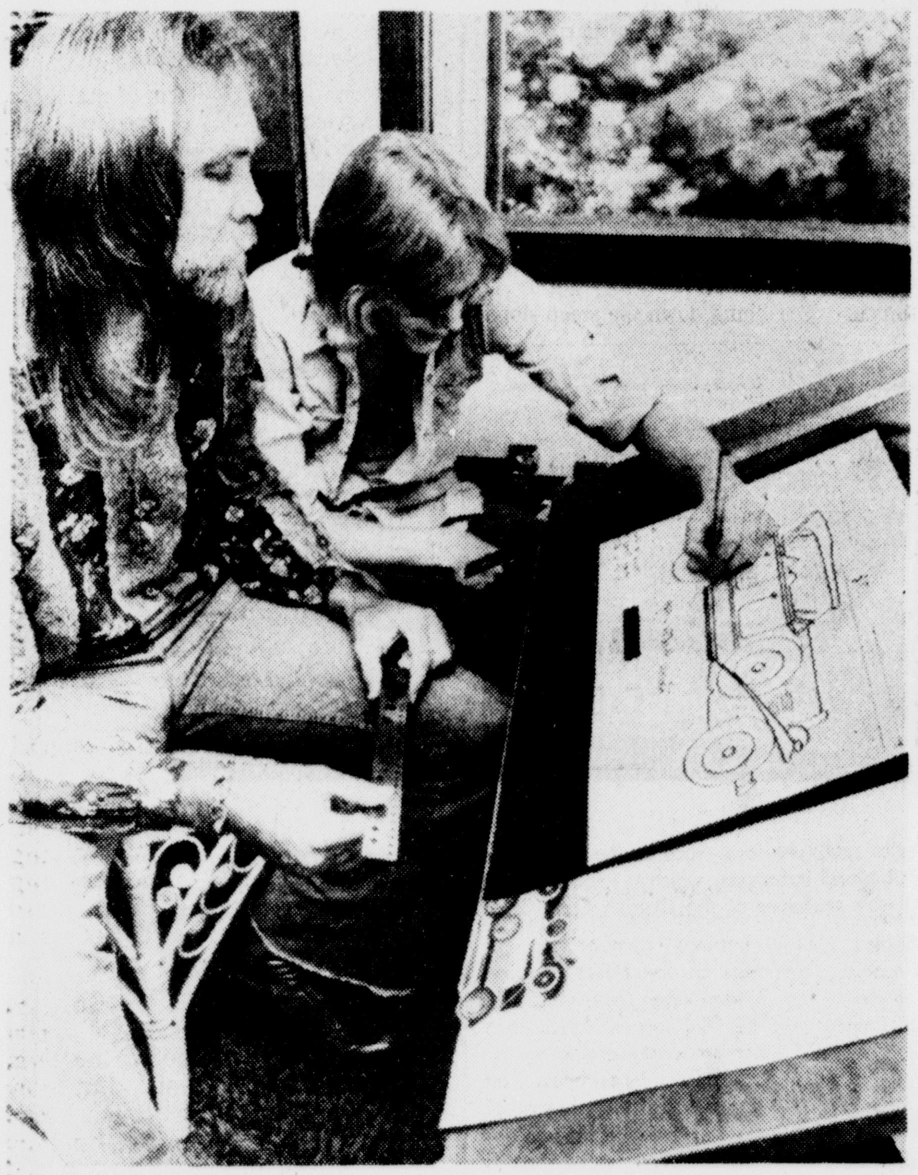
BUT SMITH and his group do nothing with string. "To us, wire is a step up from string," he says. "We've noticed that many who start with string now graduate to working with wire. We just skipped that first step and went directly into wire."

And as for the future, "we will just take the art form as far as we can from the creative standpoint."

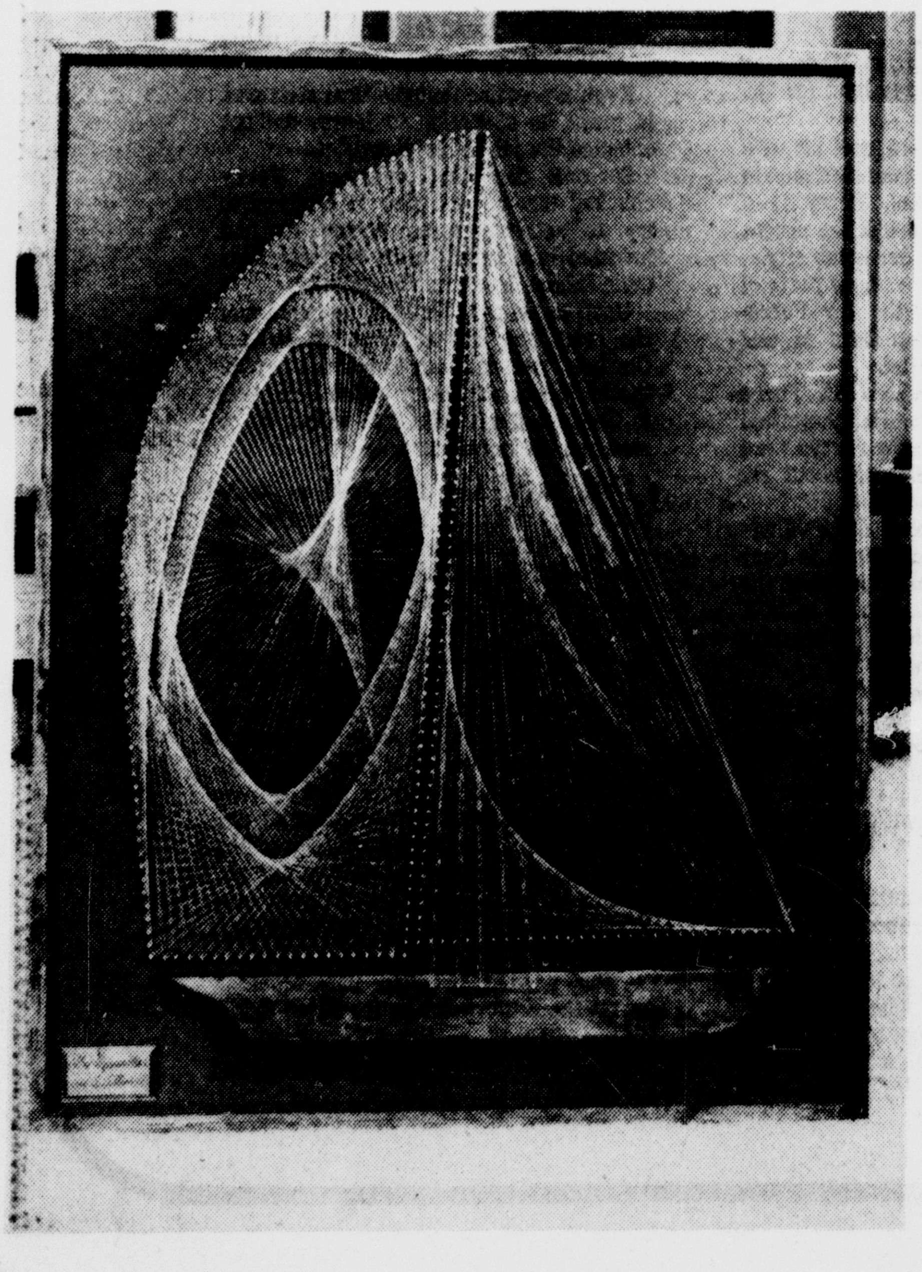
And along with this objective in their own work, they look upon the kits as "an opportunity to continue to produce something from which people can achieve genuine enjoyment and real benefits."

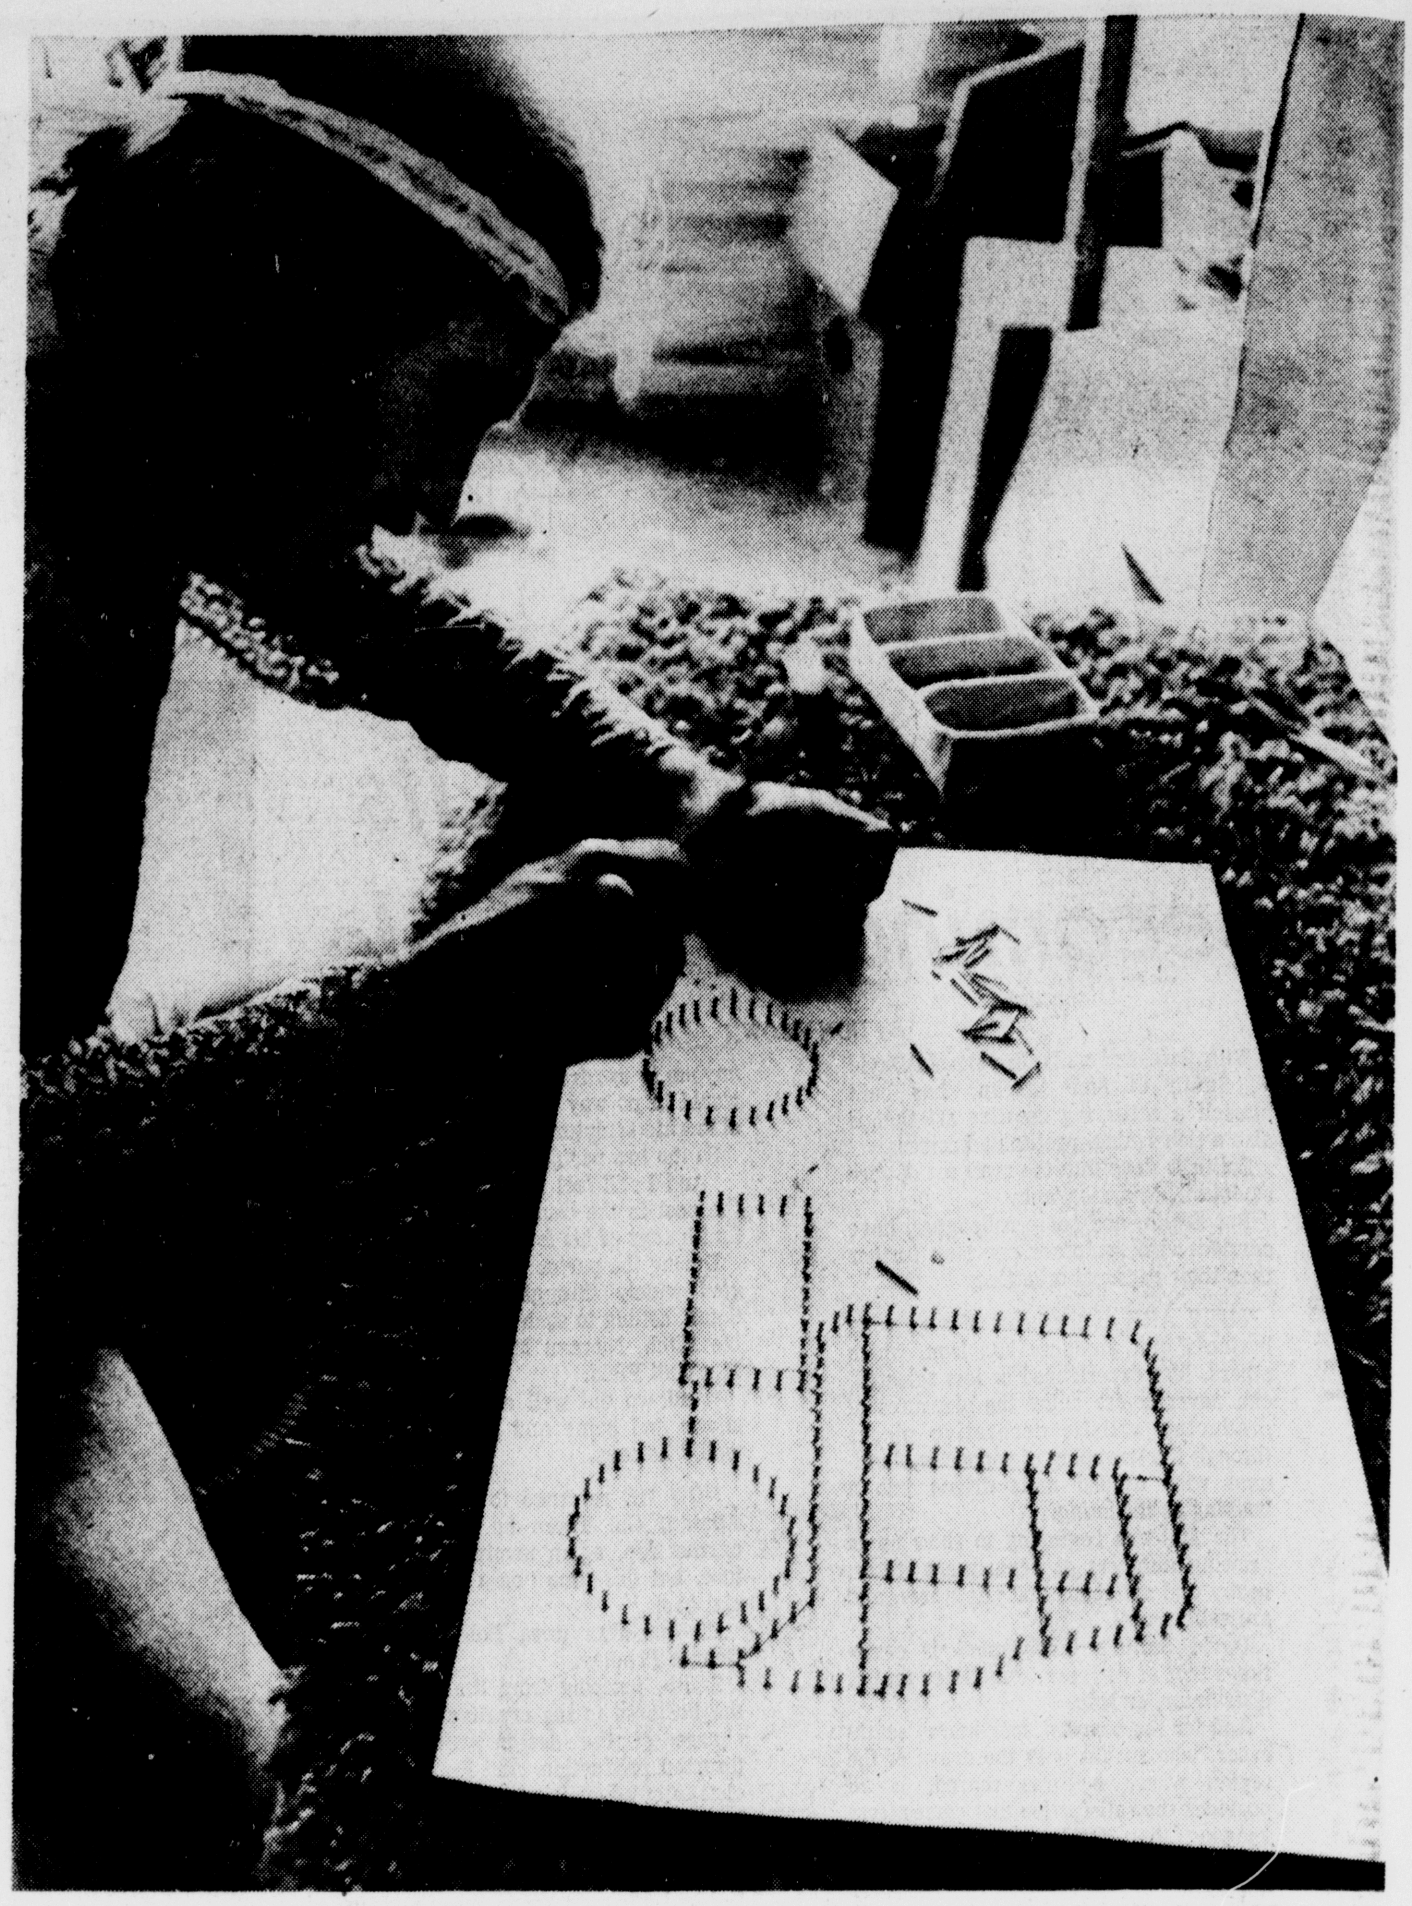
Then Smith begins talking enthusiastically of a future kit project combining wire sculpture and junk art.

"It sort of works out that we explore the new ground first," he says. "Then if it works out, we're eager to share it with others. That is what art is all about — a sharing of creative ideas and opportunities."

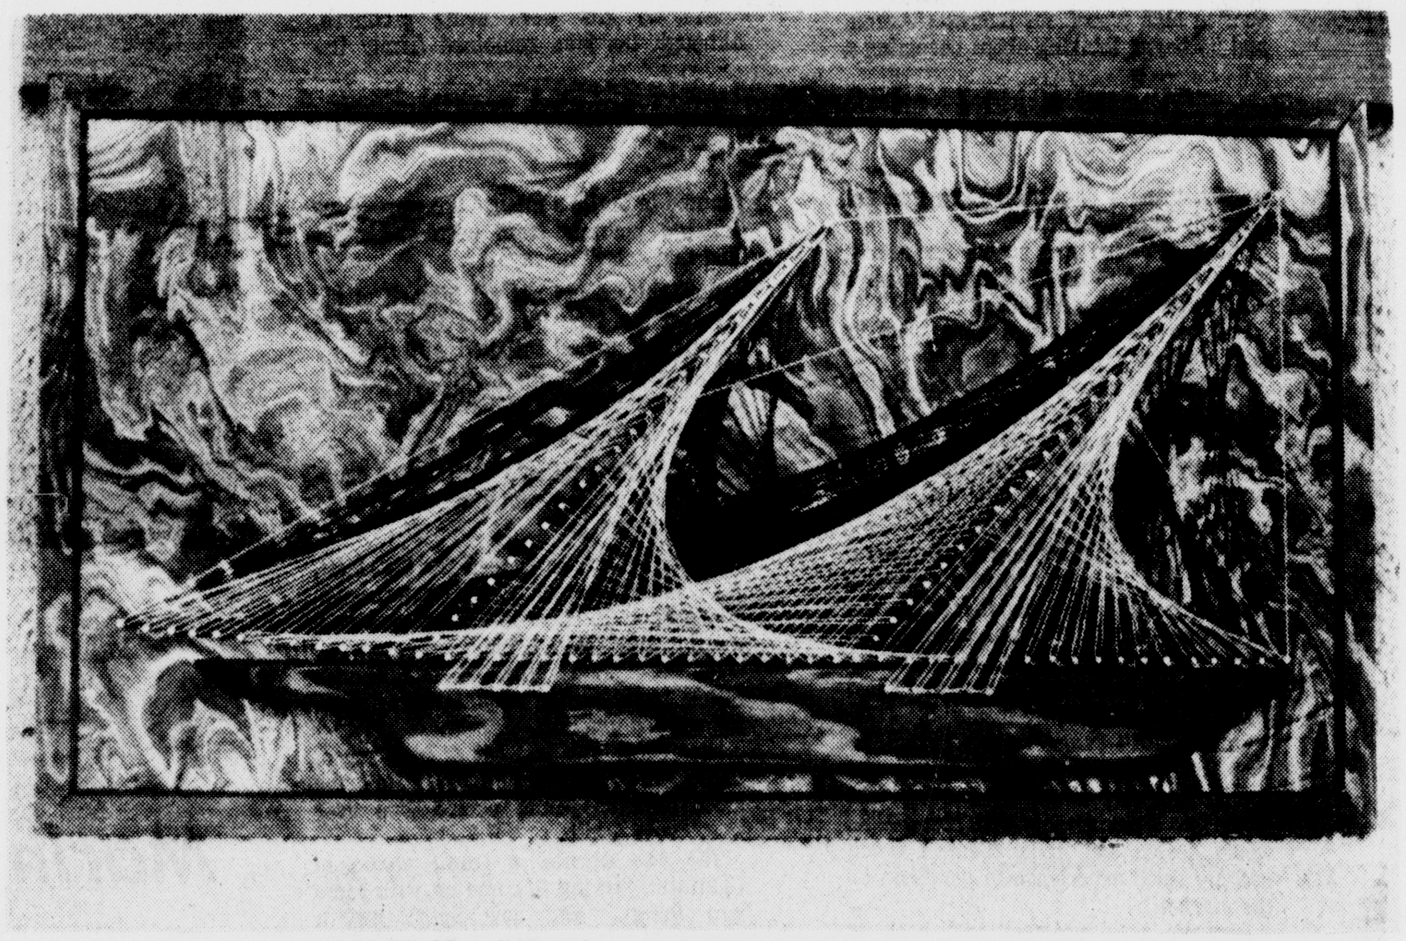


A PLAN FOR an antique car is prepared by partners, Scott Hann, left, and David Smith, who are thinking of writing a book on wire sculpture and opening a retail store somewhere in Marin.

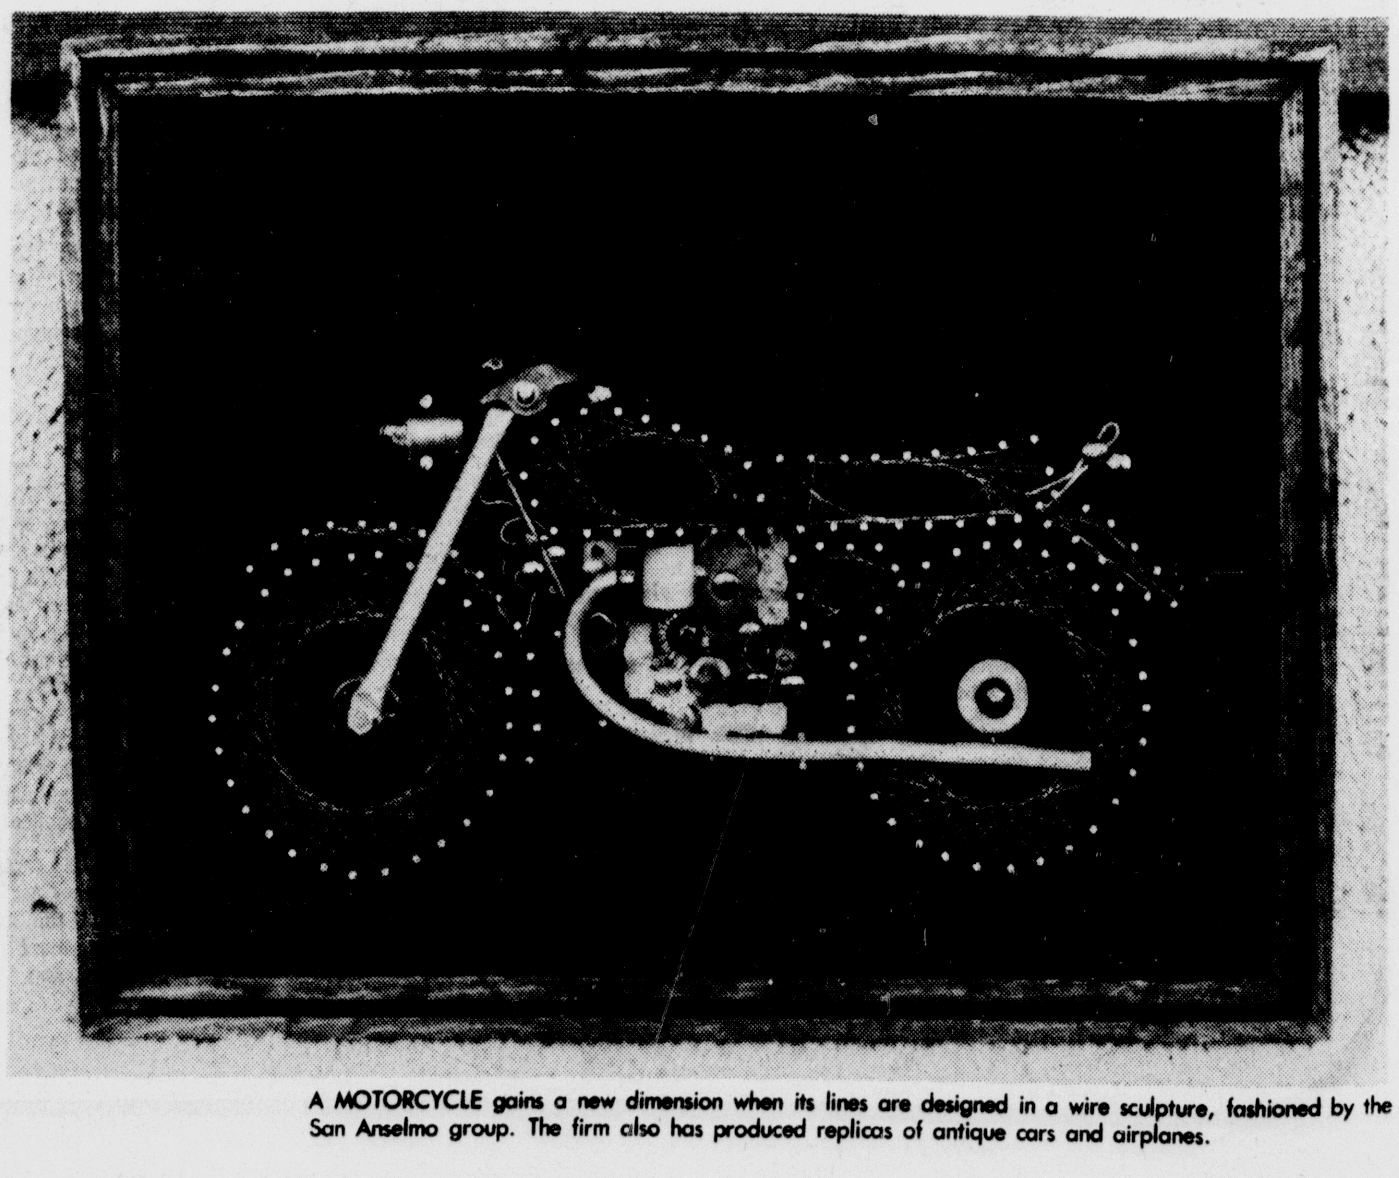




A CAR DESIGN is laid out by Bob Cronin, one of the artists who moved from Charlotte, N.C., when the Pacific Coast branch of Island Industries was established in San Anselmo.



THE LINES OF A SHIP and its sails lend themselves to artistic interpretation in wire sculpture, an art form that Smith believes began with the ancient Greeks.



A MOTORCYCLE gains a new dimension when its lines are designed in a wire sculpture, fashioned by the San Anselmo group. The firm also has produced replicas of antique cars and airplanes.

country.

Smith and Scott Hann, however, were not a formal part of the new company. "We just had an arrangement whereby we would get paid for our work on behalf of the company, and we were free to do other things for ourselves and for other firms."

So Scott Hann, his father and a brother opened a second manufacturing company with a separate line of wire sculpture kits out of Brunswick, Ga. Because the plant was located on Jeckyl Island, the new firm was called Island Industries.

SMITH WAS awarded stock in and made a director of Island Industries.

Next Smith and Scott Hann came West and to San Anselmo to set up a Pacific Coast branch of Island Industries.

With them they brought three young people from the Charlotte area, Tommy Wingate, Nancy Moore and Bob Cronin, to work with them. They live and work together, "as a family of friends," in an old house in Sleepy Hollow.

Meanwhile a second manufacturing company, Hann Industries Inc., with a new set of stockholders, but under Island Industries control, had been established in Minneapolis, Minn.

The Marin group formed Hann Warehousing as an affiliate of the Minneapolis company. Its purpose is to distribute Hann Industries kits in the West through its own sales people.

"What it amounts to is that we are buying merchandise from ourselves, and then re-selling it," says Smith. "We are distributing on a direct basis only in the state of California. But in other western states, we are locating craft distributors who sell for us to the trade."

Creative efforts continue as well.

Smith, Hann and their three colleagues continue to design and to create for the manufacturing firms in the East.

SMITH HAS also done a wire sculpture kit line "on a strict royalty basis" for Cunningham Art Products. "These are larger, more expensive kits," he explains, "intended for the kind of people who have done a considerable amount of string or wire sculpture, and who now want to advance to something more elaborate."

Smith adds: "I always try to keep my work for different outlets non-competitive."

In their own creative work, Smith, Hann and their friends are beginning to combine junk art with wire sculpture.

"And our next big project will be a book on wire sculpture," he says. "We may do it for Cunningham, or we may publish it ourselves."

Around the first of the year they hope to be turning out a line of tables with tops of wire and nail designs under glass.

"With the kits on the market and fairly well established, we are able to devote more attention to our own creative work," Smith says.

AS A RESULT they have been participating in a number of indoor and outdoor shows, with their work selling well.

They have connections with Paul Thomas and Michael Warfield, leading Pacific Coast promoters of art festivals.

They hope, eventually, to open a retail store, "somewhere in Marin," that would handle not only their own work, but that of other fine craftsmen as well.

Comparing wire sculpture with its close relative, string sculpture, Smith says:

"The principles are almost identical. But wire has certain advantages in that it is not as inclined to be affected by weather conditions. Whereas string tends to lose its tension over a period of time, wire remains just as you lay it. The wire is non-tarnishable, and therefore holds its sheen and color.

"And, contrary to general opinion, wire is easier to work with than string.

"THIS IS because when you get tired, you can just wrap the wire around the last nail one time, leave it two or three days, and then return, pick it up and resume work. With string, you have to tie it off each time you stop, then untie it when you resume. And string has to be held very tightly, or it will slip and unravel."

For a wire sculpture piece, the design usually takes considerably longer than the actual labor of putting it together. For the skilled Smith that labor might not require more than four or five hours. But a great deal of planning has preceded this.

Smith and his co-workers use non-tarnishable copper wire or anodized aluminum wire for their sculpture and in their kits.

The aluminum wire has been readily available from Alcoa, they say.

"And I still feel that John M. Barton is the best in the country at symography."

The availability of copper wire, however, fluctuates, and it is sometimes difficult to obtain.

Regular stainless steel flooring nails are used.

An Island Industries kit in its large, colorful box, will contain fabric backing, nails, wire, picture hanger, backboard (20 by 18 inches), "explicit instructions," nailing pattern and boat hull.

ALL KITS by Island and Hann to date have had nautical themes, since sailing vessels seem to be the overwhelming favorite of wire sculptors and wire sculpture fans.

A kit for an 18-by-20 sculpture, that sells for $16.95, should provide the purchaser with six to 10 hours of pleasant preoccupation, "and with something that you wind up with that you can be proud of."

"Anyone 12 or older who carefully reads and follows the instructions should be able to assemble one of our kits with little difficulty," Smith says.

In their own work, Smith and Scott Hann have produced replicas of antique cars and airplanes and shipwheels as well as the sailing vessels and boats.

And for a change of pace from the usual nautical theme, they plan to turn out a kit for a wire sculpture of the Golden Gate Bridge. "Scott is working on the patterns right now, and as soon as he finishes, I will write the instructions," Smith says.

In this area, Island Industries kits are available at such places as the Hobby Tree in the Corte Madera Shopping Center, the Fairfax Lumber Co., and the Emporium at Northgate Shopping Center and in downtown San Francisco. In Los Angeles, the Broadway Stores are handling them.

There are other dealers, and still more soon to stock the kits.

THE MARIN branch of the now far-flung wire sculpture enterprise that began so modestly in the South operates quite informally.

There's no president, nor other formal officers.

"We just kind of all work together on everything," says Smith, "but I guess you would have to say that Scott and I make most of the decisions, since it is sort of our thing. But we try to get everybody involved, and let everyone have a voice. And we try to maintain harmony in the house. Then everything kind of takes care of itself."

"With them they brought three young people from the Charlotte area, Tommy Wingate, Nancy Moore and Bob Cronin, to work with them. They live and work together, 'as a family of friends' in an old house in Sleepy Hollow."

In wire sculpture, Smith says, they have an art form of ancient origins — "I think it must have begun with the old Greeks at the time they discovered the parabolic line."

The use of wire, however, was largely forgotten. What work that was done was generally with string, "probably because string is chaper, and a lot easier to obtain."

BUT SMITH and his group do nothing with string. "To us, wire is a step up from string," he says. "We've noticed that many who start with string now graduate to working with wire. We just skipped that first step and went directly into wire."

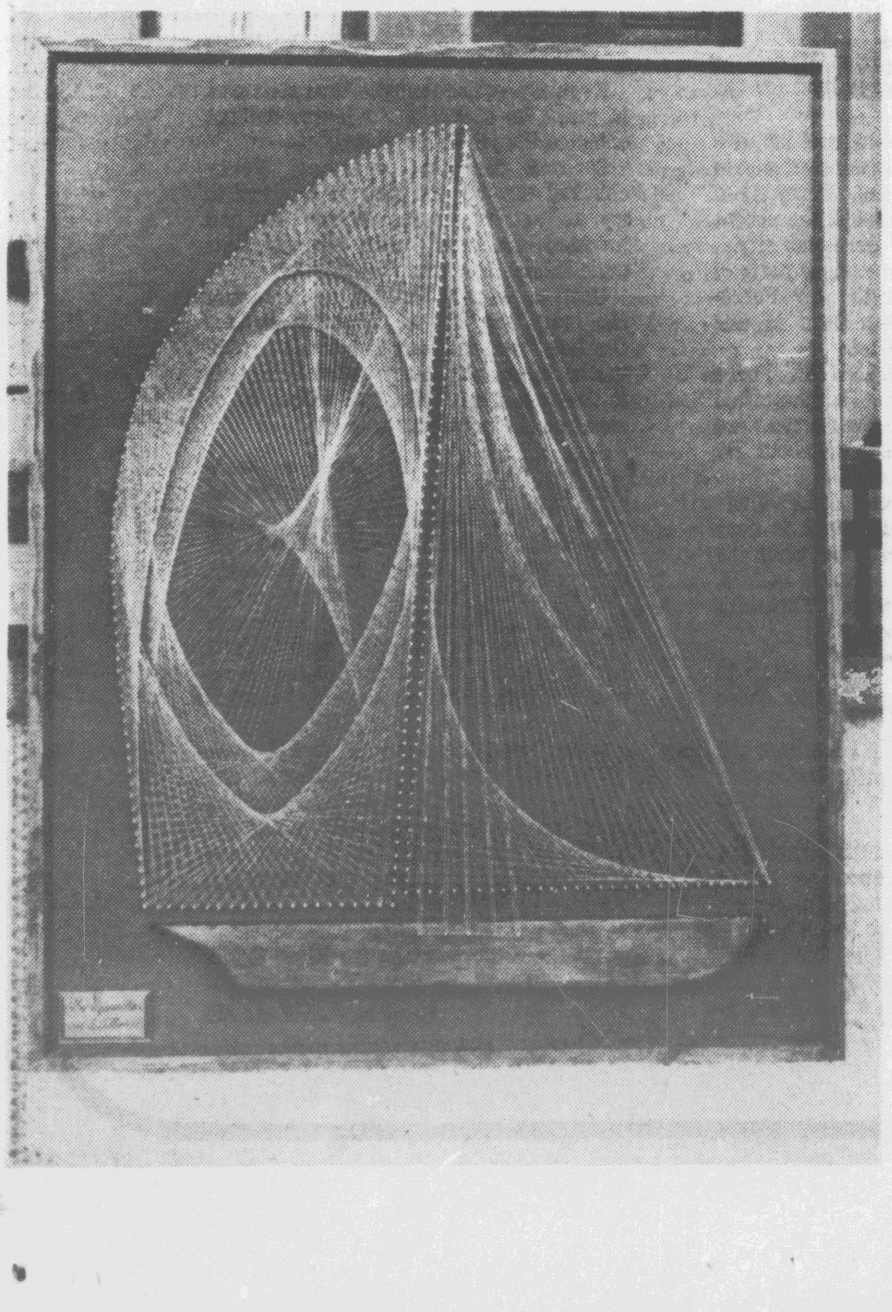
And as for the future, "we will just take the art form as far as we can from the creative standpoint."

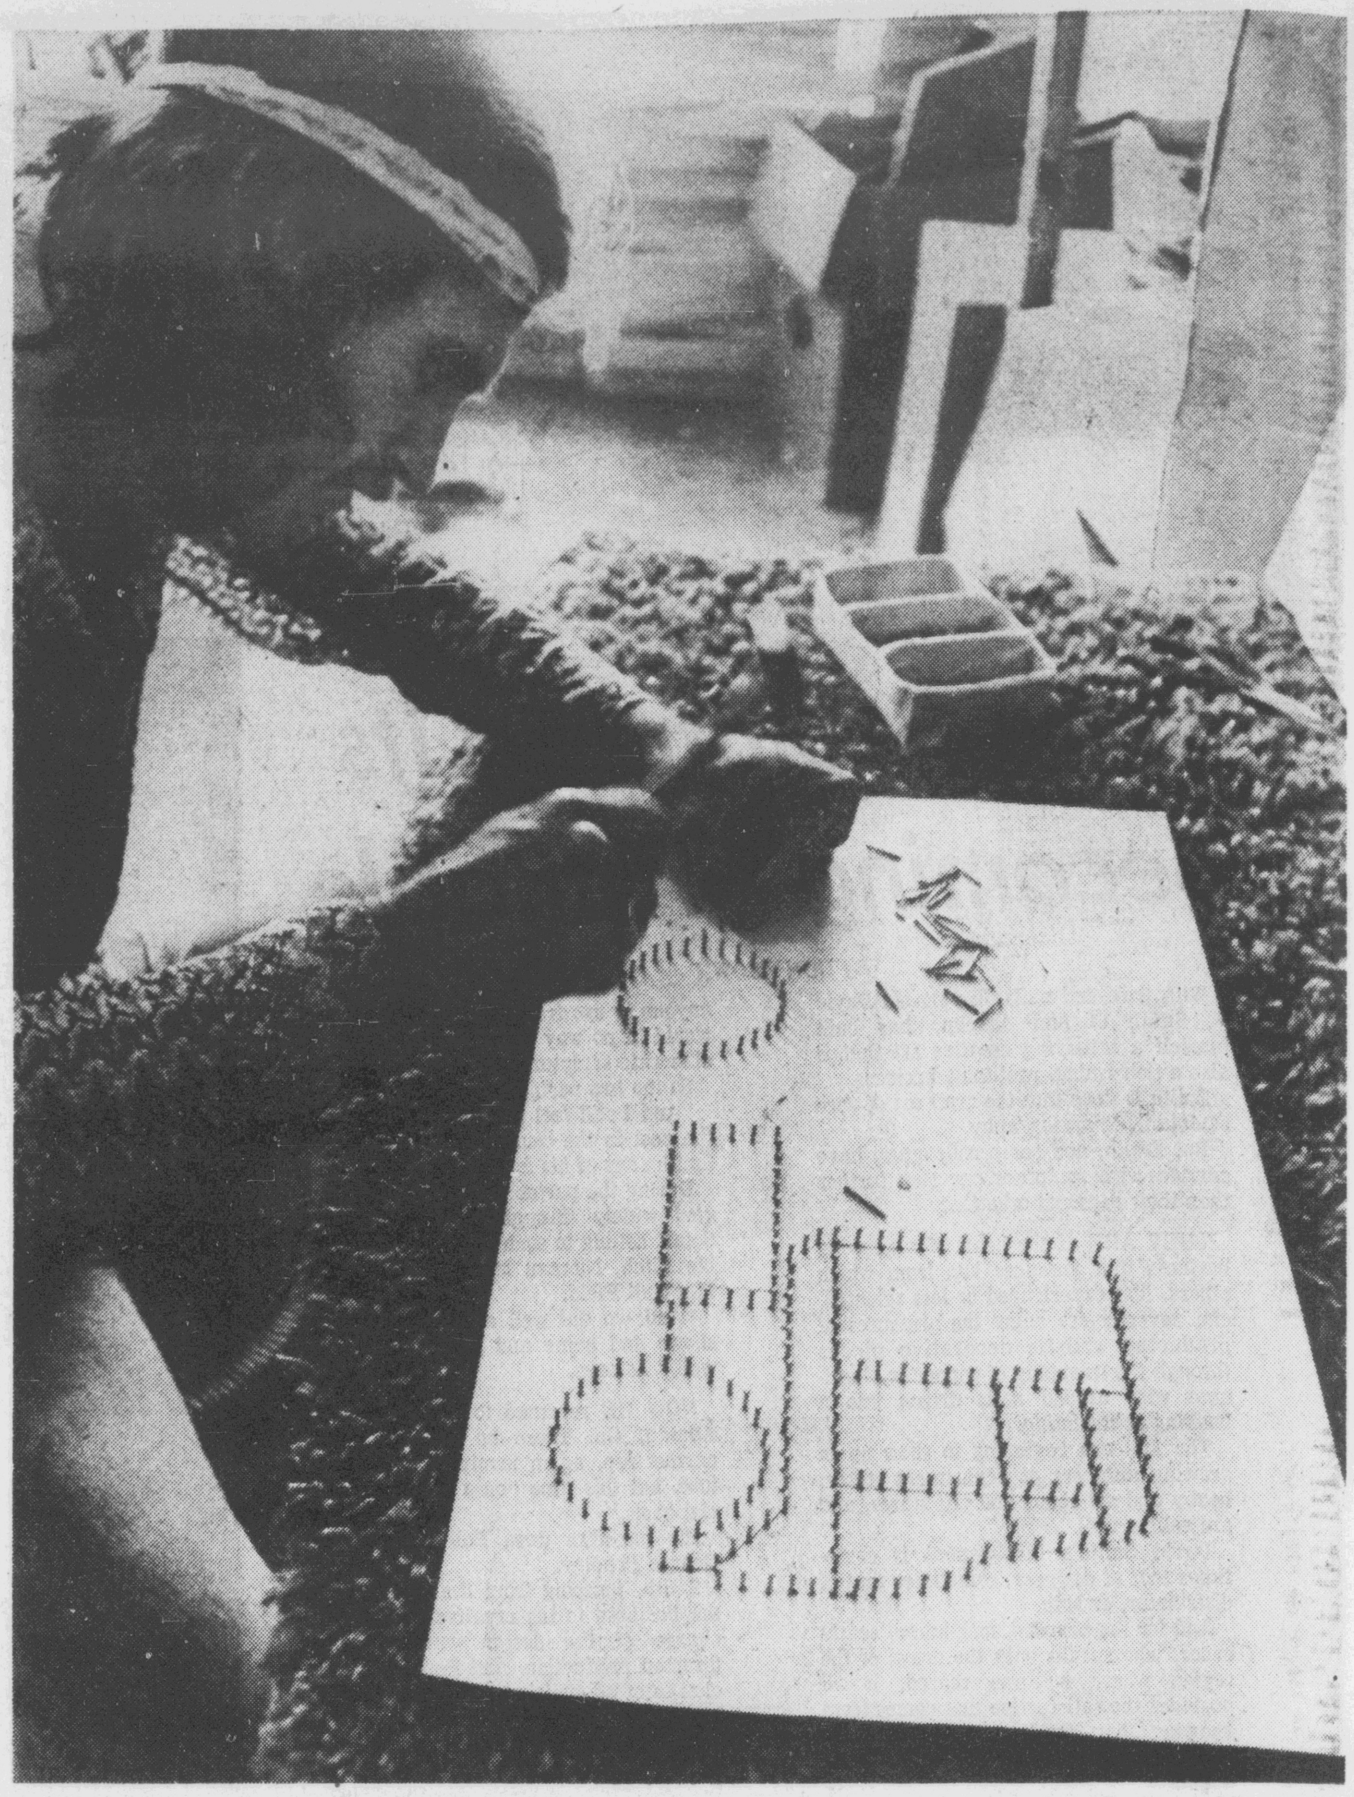
And along with this objective in their own work, they look upon the kits as "an opportunity to continue to produce something from which people can achieve genuine enjoyment and real benefits."

Then Smith begins talking enthusiastically of a future kit project combining wire sculpture and junk art.

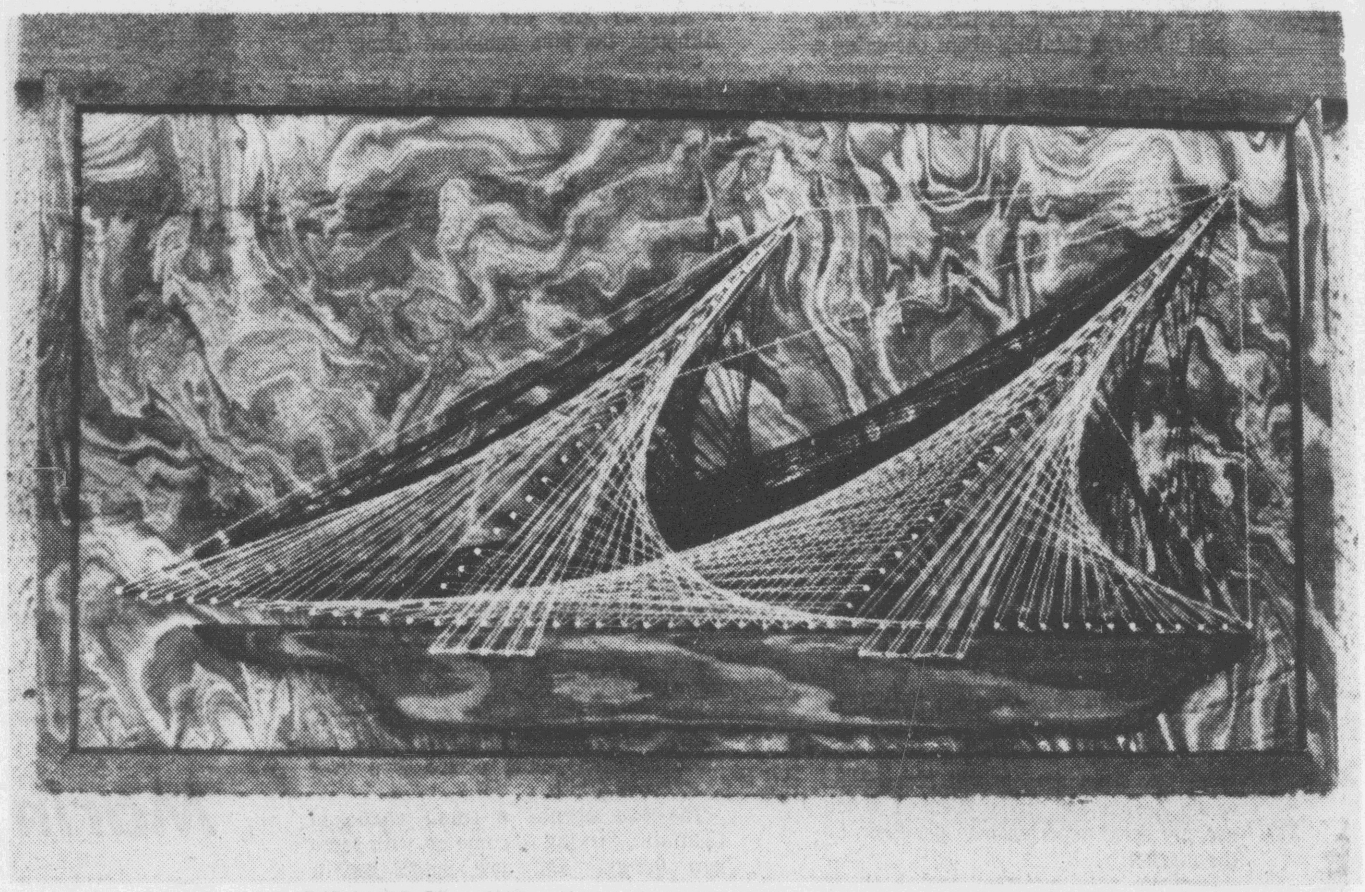
"It sort of works out that we explore the new ground first," he says. "Then if it works out, we're eager to share it with others. That is what art is all about — a sharing of creative ideas and opportunities."

A PLAN FOR an antique car is prepared by partners, Scott Hann, left, and David Smith, who are thinking of writing a book on wire sculpture and opening a retail store somewhere in Marin.

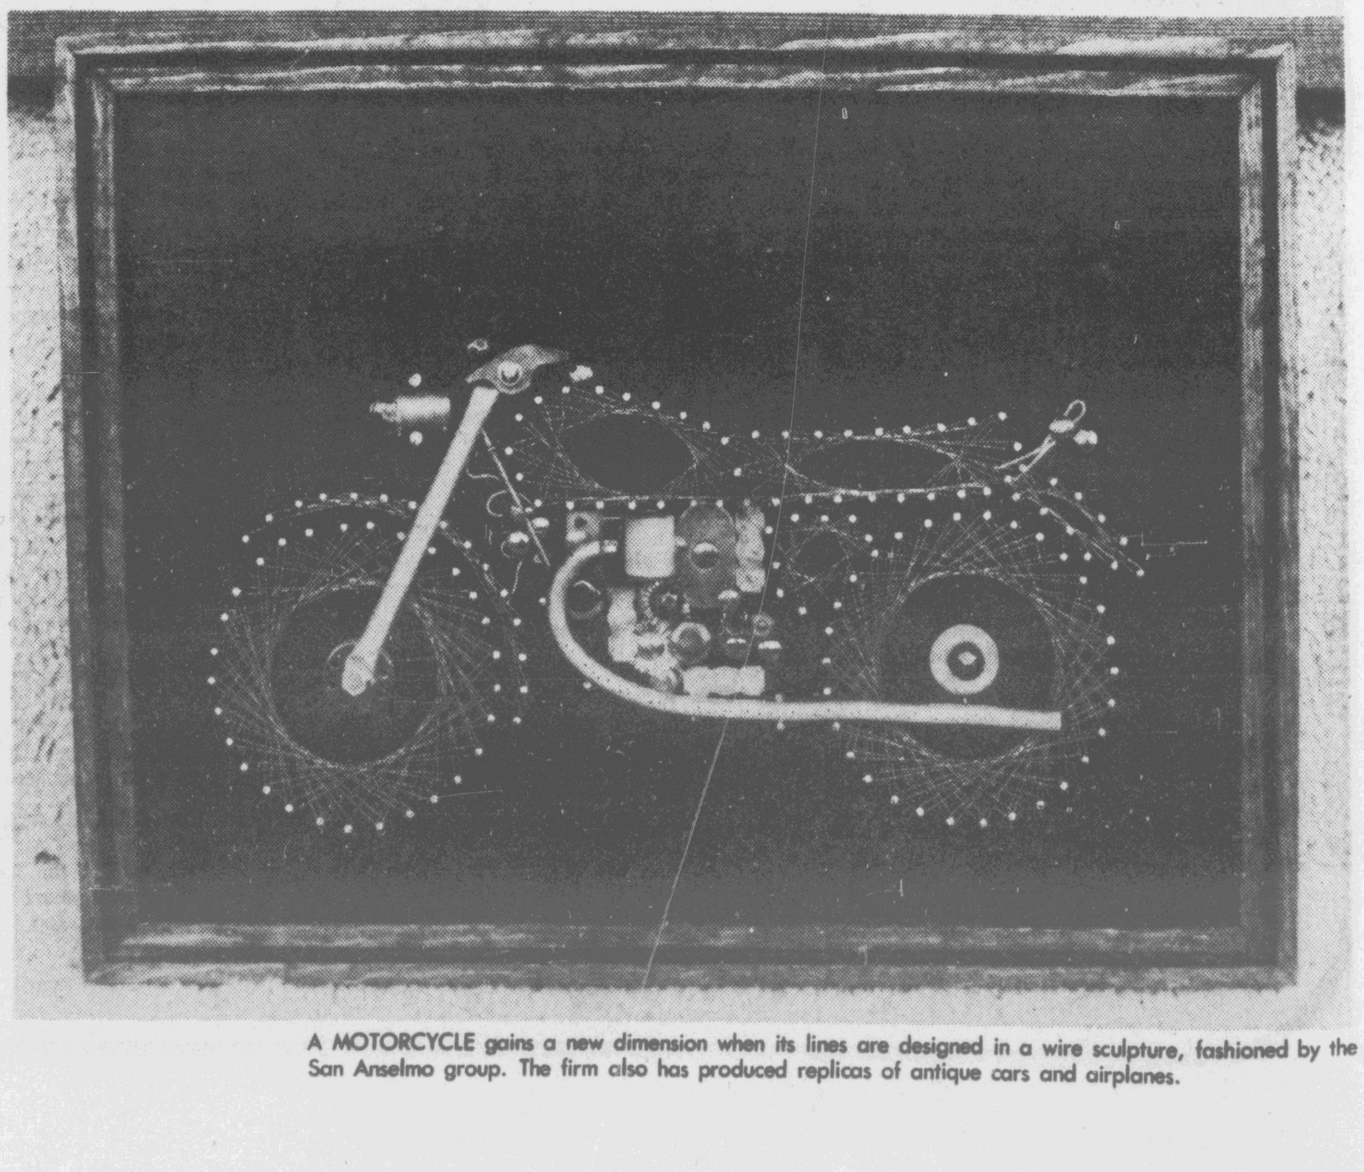




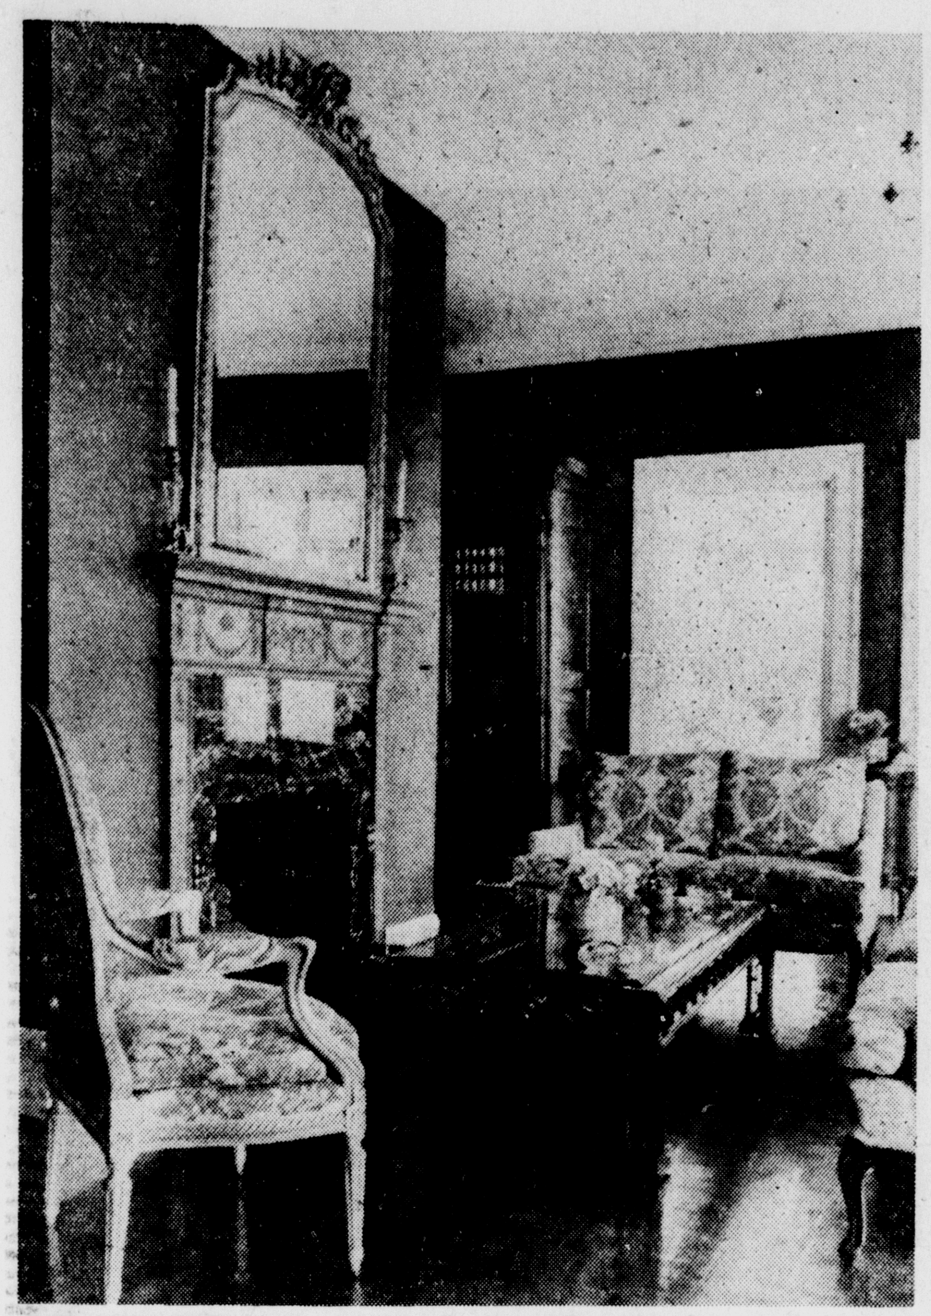
A CAR DESIGN is laid out by Bob Cronin, one of the artists who moved from Charlotte, N.C., when the Pacific Coast branch of Island Industries was established in San Anselmo.



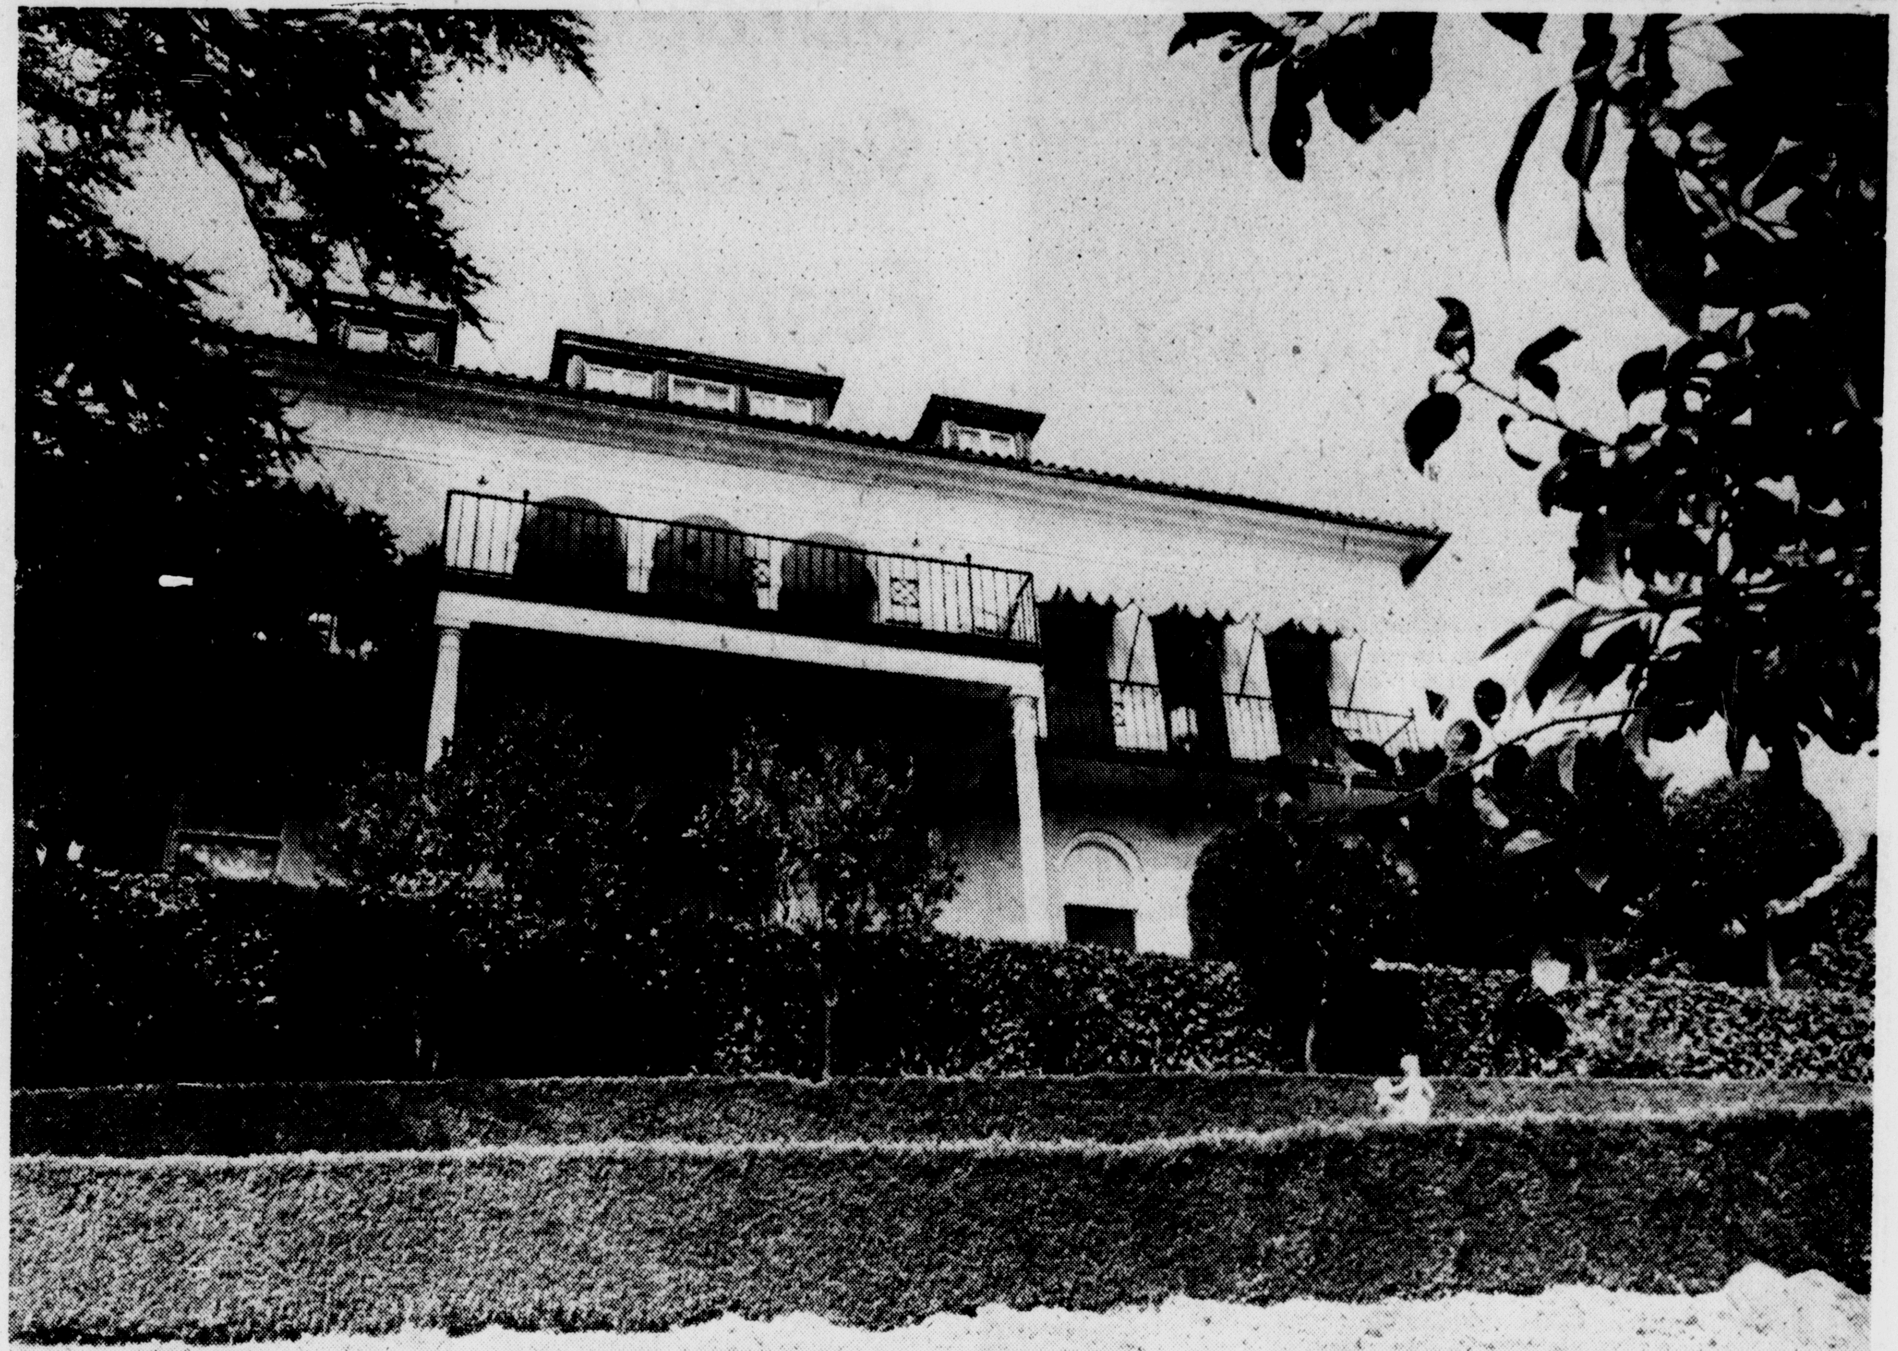
THE LINES OF A SHIP and its sails lend themselves to artistic interpretation in wire sculpture, an art form that Smith believes began with the ancient Greeks.



A MOTORCYCLE gains a new dimension when its lines are designed in a wire sculpture, fashioned by the San Anselmo group. The firm also has produced replicas of antique cars and airplanes.



THE LIVING ROOM with its marble fireplace reflects the elegance of the home constructed more than 60 years ago for Gordon Blanding, who also had a carriage house, a boat house, a gardener's house and a house for his pipe organ.



THE STATELY Marshall home in Belvedere, designed by the architect whose assignments included San Simeon, has a spectacular, 18-degree view of San Francisco Bay. It will be the scene Wednesday of the annual Associates Members party of the Raccoon Branch of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

Belvedere House Reflects Charm Of Yesteryear

It started as a guest house designed by the architect whose assignments included the fabulous San Simeon, and it was one of six post-Victorian structures built for the owner of the entire southern tip of the Belvedere island.

Now, more than 60 years later, the lovely pink stucco house has been graced with certain modern amenities, two kitchens, for example, but graceful high ceilings, parquet floors and marble fireplaces attest to its age and the charm.

THE HOUSE was designed by architect Julia Morgan for owner Gordon Blanding, who also built a main house, a carriage house, a boat house, a gardener's house and a house for his over-sized pipe organ on his Belvedere acreage.

It is now the Marshall house, with a spectacular, 180-degree view of San Francisco Bay from Sausalito to the Bay Bridge.

It will be the scene on Wednesday of the annual Associates Members party of the Raccoon Branch of the Marin General Hospital Volunteers.

The theme of the luncheon this year will be "A Day on the Riviera," and the menu to be served in the beautiful gardens overlooking the San Francisco skyline will be a selection of Mediterranean finger food prepared by the members of the Raccoon Branch.

IT WOULD be hard to find a more appropriate Marin County home to fit the Riviera setting. Resting on a slope of the island, above the bay, the house has three levels, each a reminder of the pre-World War I era when it was built.

The first level, fronted with a long, rather narrow lawn featured by a stone fountain of Italian design, includes a butler's pantry, a custom St. Charles kitchen which was one of the additions by the previous owners, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Blumenfeld, a wine cellar, and a workshop and utility area.

There is also a family room which is where the Marshalls spend much of their time, highlighted by one of the marble fireplaces and with an outside entrance to the swimming pool and deck, another Blumenfeld addition.

The main entrance to the first level includes a wide staircase which leads to the second level, the main living area.

THE LIVING ROOM, dining room, library, warm-up kitchen with a dumbwaiter connecting it to the main kitchen downstairs, gallery and master bedroom are on the second floor.

The fireplaces, all in marble, are located in the living room, dining room, library and master bedroom. The dining room also includes a lovely crystal chandelier and parquet floors which extend to the living room and gallery.

The master bedroom is part of a suite which includes a dressing room and bath with steam room and bidet. The library also has its own bath and steam room, and both steam rooms were part of the original design on the house by the architect.

On the bay side of the second level there is a small, intimate brick terrace with its magnificent view, while on the other side there is a small formal garden with another Italian fountain.

OUTSIDE at this level there is a funicular stretching down the steep slope of the property to a garage level.

The third floor has four bedrooms and two more baths, all designed to encompass the dormers that homes included in 1912, the year of construction.

The home has the charm of the Marin of yesteryear, but with the modern touches that a 1974 family provides. It is still useful and still ornamental, a lovely reminder of a Marin of yesteryear.

Wine Pressings

by ALFRED LOVI

The therapeutic value of wine has been known since the earliest days of medicine. Some ancient writings demonstrate an uncanny awareness of the effect of wine on the human system; often they anticipate by more than 2,000 years conclusions established by contemporary physiologists.

Around 300 B.C., Mnesitheus, an Athenian physician who was a student of Hippocrates, wrote a treatise titled Diet and Drink. He said, "While dark wine is most favorable to bodily growth, white wine is thinnest and most diuretic; yellow wine is dry, and better adapted to digesting foods."

In 1939, a researcher in California demonstrated that wine contains sufficient quantities of all of the B-vitamins to be an important dietary source of these nutrients. In general, the highest concentrations of vitamins were found in sweet red wines such as Port. These findings tend to confirm Mnesitheus' belief in the blood building capabilities of dark wines.

Mnesitheus' statement that white wine can act as a diuretic was substantiated in 1911 when a French researcher isolated Potassium bitartrate from wine. Potassium bitartrate (or cream of tartar) has long been recognized as an effective diuretic. And in 1969, wine was administered to 24 patients in California who were unable to digest fatty foods. The inclusion of a dry white wine with their meals increased their absorption of fat and vitamin A by 35% to 430%. All of the patients reported a marked decrease in their discomfort.

Now I wouldn't want to imply that you should drink wine only for therapeutic purposes. Wine is also one of nature's most enjoyable beverages. About Carpets

by Doug Emerson

CARPET TERMS are second nature to us, so it's natural for us to talk about Olefin fibers, about cut pile and backing and broadloom, shags and plushes, without giving a second's thought to the meaning of what we're saying, since these terms are as familiar to us as a carpenter's tools are to him.

But they may be a mystery to many of you, so let's look at a few of them. You've all heard the term broadloom, for instance, but how many know that this doesn't mean a type of yarn or fabric, but any carpet woven or tufted on a broad or wide loom, at least six feet wide, and often twelve or fifteen feet wide?

Fibers are the basic "thread" of the carpet yarn, many fibers being combined to make a single yarn. These fibers may be natural, like wool, or man-made, such as the popular nylons, polyesters and acrylics.

Pile simply refers to the exposed or top surface of the fibers. When these are cut, the result is a cut pile, or plush. When looped, they create a loop pile. These can be combined in sculptured effects. Shags are loosely tufted long pile carpets, the pile being an inch or inch-and-a-half long, or longer.

But words tell only part of the carpet story. Seeing for yourself is convincing when you look over our great collection. If words fail you, the carpets won't. And you can buy on convenient "terms." Come in . . . to your carpet headquarters!

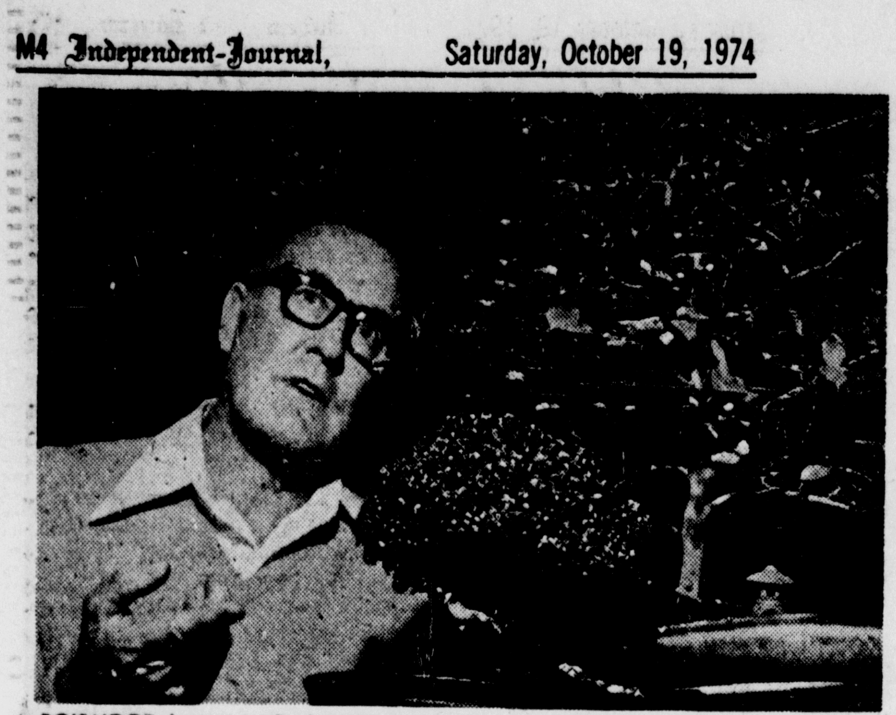
Garden Society Festival



A BOXWOOD bonsai is displayed by Alec Thomas of Sleepy Hollow while the tree, at right, is a bonsai green beech tree, part of his collection of about 80 bonsai.

It's that time of the year again for gardeners.

The 29th annual fall flower festival of the Garden Society of Marin will be held next Saturday from noon to 6 p.m. and Oct. 27 from noon to 4 p.m. at the Marin Art and Garden Center, Ross.

Perhaps the one most feverishly preparing for the show and plant sale is Alec Thomas, show chairman, of Sleepy Hollow, who has about 80 bonsai plants in his garden.

DESPITE ALL his garden work, Thomas said "my main hobby is showing dogs, and we have a grand-champion, No. 1 in the United States, Champion Soo Hoo's Inga of Sleepy Hollow, the top winning female pekingese."

Amateur gardeners have been invited to attend, and Hugh Paterson, general chairman of the festival, said, "If you have anything horticultural that you are proud of regardless of variety, bring it and join the fun."

Thomas, a longtime resident of Marin and member of the Marin Bonsai Society, has developed a garden considered a showplace, from a shaky start years ago when "we were overrun by cows, horses, deer, raccoons — you name it."

IN 1966 his garden was viewed on the Garden Tour for Gardeners, which is sponsored by the society.

The festival, entitled "Kaleidoscope of Colors," will include competition in a wide variety of flower arrangements, container-grown ornamental plants, chrysanthemums and other cut flower and home-grown fruits and vegetables.

The funds raised from the plant sale go to support the Marin Art and Garden Center. Admission to the flower festival and plant sale is a 50-cent donation which can be applied as a credit toward the purchase of a chrysanthemum plant.

Featured will be more than 20 of the latest and best chrysanthemum cultivars, succulents, ferns and other varieties. Entries will be received Thursday and Friday during the day immediately preceding the festival which will be held in the Livermore Room and adjacent area. Included will be bonsai and orchid exhibits, lectures, demonstrations and displays.

Hard Work In Peaceful Atmosphere

words of one of the neighbors.

A freshly painted sign advertising, "River Gardens . . . Cafe open . . . Teas . . . Lunches" is put out each morning, and the tourists begin trooping in, dozens of them on the fine days that are interspersed with the drizzle of Northern England.

MOST COME to gorge on scones, pies, cucumber and salmon sandwiches, fish and chips, sausages, beans and eggs along with the "chips" and green peas so dear to the English stomach. All of this is consumed in a freshly renovated cafe along the river or outside on an emerald green lawn or along the quiet River Esk.

Numerous pots of tea (each complete with its jug of milk and another of hot water) along with orange squashes for the children wash down the calories, quickly leaving a pile of dishes that seems monumental to Americans used to eating snacks on paper plates.

Some of the guests rent the new "rowing boats" (the old ones had a "habit of sinking," Mrs. Perry explained), and others try their skill on the putting green or at an English version of croquet in which the wickets seem in the wrong places to a Californian.

A few of the tourists (virtually all are English and many are from nearby industrial areas of Yorkshire) park "caravans" (house trailers) on the River Gardens' two acres or rent one of the few "chalets" (cabins).

THE FISHING is good at the River Esk, and if the guests don't want to go out in a boat, they can sit on peaceful benches under trees along the river and try their luck.

Adding to the rural atmosphere — and sometimes certain amount of confusion — are two white goats, "Snowdrop" and her daughter, who are the prize possessions of the middle Perry youngster, Richard. The mother goat provides milk, too, for the scones which are made daily at the River Gardens either by Mrs. Perry or the 17-year-old village girl who is chief cook.

> "So one day last summer, Perry chucked the job and flew to England to try to retrieve some money he had invested in a small resort business near their former home in Yorkshire."

The peaceful air on a late fall afternoon at the River Gardens belies the vast amount of work done by the Perrys last winter. An old stone inoperative fountain ("a real horror" in Mrs. Perry's words) was removed laboriously, flowers planted, walks spruced up, buildings refurbished and old furniture restored.

There is evan a touch of California, as Mrs. Perry has decorated the cafe with hanging greenery, — some of which are for sale.

Although most of the Perrys' guests are as courteous and well-behaved as the English usually are, occasionally there is a hot word or too.

"There is a breed of English mothers who feel that their offspring can do no wrong," Mrs. Perry laughed. Some of the little darlings pick the River Gardens for their misbehavior, and some of the adult guests would like to picnic at the resort without paying for anything there. Mrs. Perry quickly tells the latter they are welcome "if I can come picnic in your garden at your house."

There are days when the constant hard work during the summer months got to Perry, and his wife would comment, "This is one of the days he wishes he were back at Fireman's Fund (the San Francisco firm for which he worked)," but by and large, the River Gardens is viewed as a success by the Perrys.

And it's certainly home for the family now — with the Marinwood house and suburban life of Marin only a memory for the Perrys as they view life from a tiny English village, near the timeless moors.

A VICTORIAN ERA house, viewed from the back, is the home of William and Patricia Perry, former Marin residents, who now operate a small resort, the River Gardens, in Yorkshire, England. Bright new flowers planted by Mrs. Perry and a sparkling green lawn (foreground) enhance the property, where guests can eat, fish, go rowing, play croquet, or just stroll along the banks of the River Esk.

Hard Work In Peaceful Atmosphere

words of one of the neighbors.

A freshly painted sign advertising, "River Gardens . . . Cafe open . . . Teas . . . Lunches" is put out each morning, and the tourists begin trooping in, dozens of them on the fine days that are interspersed with the drizzle of Northern England.

MOST COME to gorge on scones, pies, cucumber and salmon sandwiches, fish and chips, sausages, beans and eggs along with the "chips" and green peas so dear to the English stomach. All of this is consumed in a freshly renovated cafe along the river or outside on an emerald green lawn or along the quiet River Esk.

Numerous pots of tea (each complete with its jug of milk and another of hot water) along with orange squashes for the children wash down the calories, quickly leaving a pile of dishes that seems monumental to Americans used to eating snacks on paper plates.

Some of the guests rent the new "rowing boats" (the old ones had a "habit of sinking," Mrs. Perry explained), and others try their skill on the putting green or at an English version of croquet in which the wickets seem in the wrong places to a Californian.

A few of the tourists (virtually all are English and many are from nearby industrial areas of Yorkshire) park "caravans" (house trailers) on the River Gardens' two acres or rent one of the few "chalets" (cabins).

THE FISHING is good at the River Esk, and if the guests don't want to go out in a boat, they can sit on peaceful benches under trees along the river and try their luck.

Adding to the rural atmosphere — and sometimes certain amount of confusion — are two white goats, "Snowdrop" and her daughter, who are the prize possessions of the middle Perry youngster, Richard. The mother goat provides milk, too, for the scones which are made daily at the River Gardens either by Mrs. Perry or the 17-year-old village girl who is chief cook.

> "So one day last summer, Perry chucked the job and flew to England to try to retrieve some money he had invested in a small resort business near their former home in Yorkshire."

The peaceful air on a late fall afternoon at the River Gardens belies the vast amount of work done by the Perrys last winter. An old stone inoperative fountain ("a real horror" in Mrs. Perry's words) was removed laboriously, flowers planted, walks spruced up, buildings refurbished and old furniture restored.

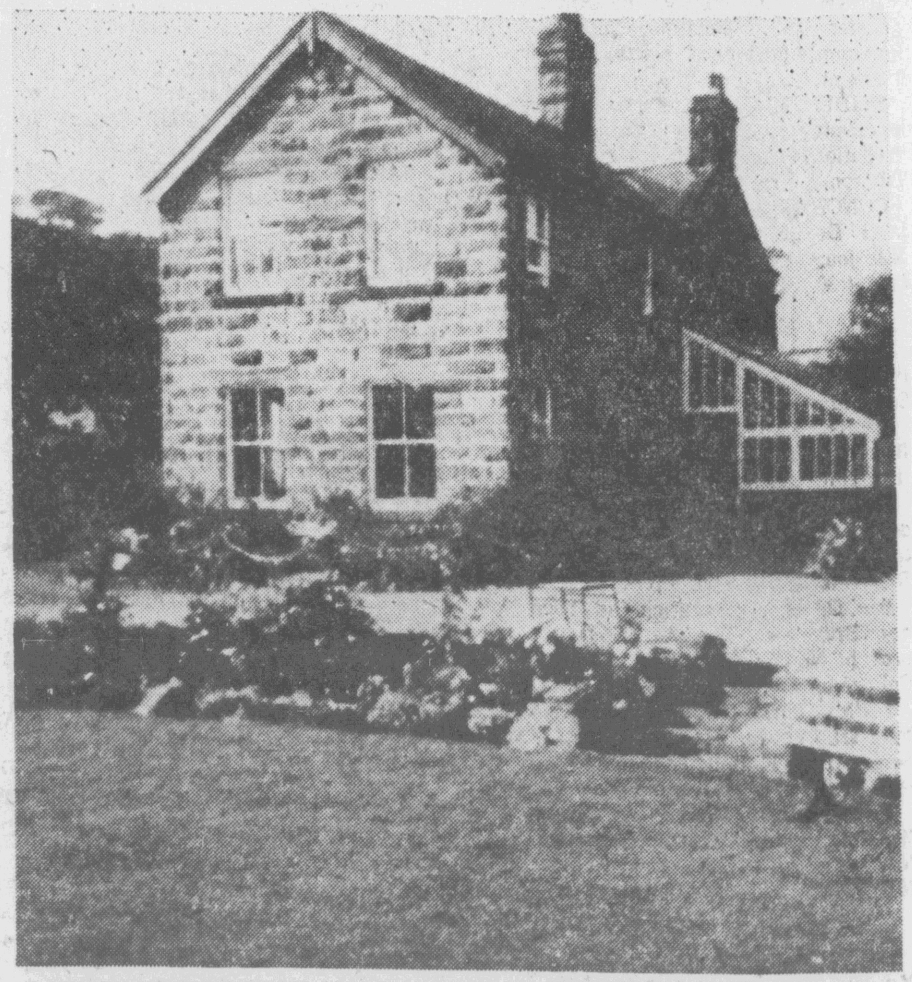
There is evan a touch of California, as Mrs. Perry has decorated the cafe with hanging greenery, — some of which are for sale.

Although most of the Perrys' guests are as courteous and well-behaved as the English usually are, occasionally there is a hot word or too.

"There is a breed of English mothers who feel that their offspring can do no wrong," Mrs. Perry laughed. Some of the little darlings pick the River Gardens for their misbehavior, and some of the adult guests would like to picnic at the resort without paying for anything there. Mrs. Perry quickly tells the latter they are welcome "if I can come picnic in your garden at your house."

There are days when the constant hard work during the summer months got to Perry, and his wife would comment, "This is one of the days he wishes he were back at Fireman's Fund (the San Francisco firm for which he worked)," but by and large, the River Gardens is viewed as a success by the Perrys.

And it's certainly home for the family now — with the Marinwood house and suburban life of Marin only a memory for the Perrys as they view life from a tiny English village, near the timeless moors.



A VICTORIAN ERA house, viewed from the back, is the home of William and Patricia Perry, former Marin residents, who now operate a small resort, the River Gardens, in Yorkshire, England. Bright new flowers planted by Mrs. Perry and a sparkling green lawn (foreground) enhance the property, where guests can eat, fish, go rowing, play croquet, or just stroll along the banks of the River Esk.

IN SEARCH OF THE AMERICAN DREAM: Colonies Become "Un-English"

(Editor's Note: This is the fourth of 18 articles exploring the theme, In Search of the American Dream. This article discusses development of religious freedom and ethnic aspects of the early American colonies. The series is designed as a study course, with or without college credit. And the other 14 articles or lectures will follow each week in the I-J's Marin Living section.

By WINTHROP D. JORDAN

William Penn's experiment in religious toleration in Pennsylvania was novel both in terms of deliberate planning and in terms of scale. The idea of religious freedom had been gradually gaining favor in Europe as men began to tire of slaughtering each other in religious warfare. One of the earliest proponents of the idea of religious freedom in New England was Roger Williams.

Banished from Massachusetts because of his criticism of the authorities, Williams had established a new colony in Rhode Island, where religious freedom was guaranteed. From there, he debated the "Bloody Tenet of Persecution" with Massachusett's Puritan leader John Cotton.

IN GENERAL, however, religious freedom developed in America for more practical reasons. Maryland, for example, adopted a policy of toleration in 1649 out of sheer necessity: Lord Baltimore's Roman Catholic settlers had by that time become outnumbered by Protestants.

"Yet the fact remains that by the eve of the American Revolution, nearly a majority of the people of the 'English' colonies were, by any contemporary definition, not English at all."

There had been some skirmishing but no full-scale religious warfare, and it became clear the inhabitants of the struggling little colony preferred peace to combat over the question of enforced religious orthodoxy. In similar fashion, religious multiplicity compelled adoption of the same policy in other colonies.

Even when a single church was "established," as with the Church of England in the Southern colonies and the Puritan churches in New England, other sects were permitted to worship openly. Because the English colonies in America were founded relatively late, they largely escaped involvement in a European tradition of religious conflict.

FOR THE most part, in fact, America was originally intended as a haven for religious liberty and diversity. A major and much praised American value was let in, largely out of necessity, by the back door. Real utopias make strange entrances.

Another important, and related, characteristic of the new societies made a similar entry. In advocating colonization, Richard Hakluyt had appealed to a self-consciously nationalistic "English nation;" yet ironically, England succeeded in establishing colonies which, at least so far as the ethnic backgrounds of the settlers were concerned, turned out to be very un-English.

In the long run, of course, English laws, government, language, and customs prevailed in the new land, partly because they arrived first on the scene and partly because imperial governance and social focus remained for so long in London.

Yet the fact remains that by the eve of the American Revolution, nearly a majority of the people of the "English" colonies were, by any contemporary definition, not English at all.

SOME OF the near majority were, to be sure, English-speaking, but that they were not truly English was equally clear to themselves and to truly English settlers. There were many Scots and perhaps a similar number of Dutch, the latter in New York and New Jersey.

William Penn's grand experiment and strenuous efforts at recruiting settlers for his colony made Pennsylvania one-third German (and, not accidentally, Protestant).

The Calvinist Scotch-Irish, descendants of Scots who had colonized in northern Ireland, and ancestors of a tradition of religious conflict which remains there to this day, also came in great numbers to the colonies from Pennsylvania southwards. And other groups came as well: Protestant French (Huguenots), and in lesser numbers, Catholic Irish, Jews, even Poles.

"So in a crucial sense, 'Middle-America' began not in the Mississippi River heartland but on the Atlantic beach-heads."

Happily for the predominating sorts of English who came, they were nearly all Christian, heavily of the low-church, modified-Calvinist sort.

More than anything else, this fact brought a measure of unity out of ethnic multiplicity. America was to fulfill, for a time, the expectation that England's offspring would be, necessarily, Protestant.

ON THIS COUNT, as on several others, the Africans were a group apart. Much the next largest group to the English, they concentrated their settlement, without any say in the matter, in the southern half of the English-controlled portion of the New World.

They came, captives, in small numbers at first, their status not altogether clear. Within several decades, however, during the first half of the seventeenth century, it had become certain and apparent that the Africans in these colonies would be accorded a status which conflicted sharply with important English pretensions.

One of the major tenets of English pride and indeed of English nationalism was that they were themselves the freest people in the world: freer, clearly, than the Turks and other "infidels"; and much freer, even, than the Spaniards and the French. It was perhaps this justifiable consciousness which helped enable English settlers to create a social condition for Africans that ran radically counter to English custom and law.

AFRICANS, who were by the standards of Englishmen neither Christian, civilized, nor appropriate in appearance, came rapidly to be set apart for a special kind of exploitation.

As Africans came to the American colonies in increasing numbers, particularly after 1700 — which was, roughly, when the other non-English came — Englishmen began rapidly to realize that their New World lands would not automatically be English.

Indeed, as one Virginian put it, "I fear this Colony will some time or other be confirmed by the name of New Guinea." Or, as Benjamin Franklin once described Pennsylvania, "New Germany."

But while Franklin and others fretted about the ethnic composition of America, ethnic diversity seemed to be just happening.

SIR THOMAS MORE'S utopian society was developing its own peculiar directions in the New World. From Sir Humphrey Gilbert's vantage point on the stern-sheets of a fishing smack and from Richard Hakluyt's study chair, the new societies would not have been quite as Always, of course, with the exception of the Africans, whose standing on the lowest rung of the social ladder gave the English increased status, as African labor gave the English increased prosperity.

Because they prided themselves on being a free people, the English settlers in America worked out political forms conducive to still greater political freedom that existed at home.

Once again, though, we must distinguish between original intentions and eventual results. In successfully asking for the establishment of representative assemblies in each colony, the settlers were far from taking a radical step toward adoption of new political institutions.

IF ANYTHING, the establishment of representative government in America was a conservative step.

Elective assemblies were meant to conserve already existing English liberties and institutional practices. (It was no accident that New York, the last colony to gain an assembly, was the one originally settled by another nation, the Dutch).

The attempt to recreate in America what was valued in England resulted in the political forms which Americans came eventually so greatly to value.

No one realized at the time, of course, that by establishing little parliaments in America, the settlers were eracting political institutions which eventually would challenge imperial authority and, in the process of a Revolution, form the basis of a federated nation-state.

The actual practice of politics in the colonies was so ridden by factional bickering and so assiduously concerned with mundane tasks that no one thought the colonists were engaged in a utopian project.

YET WHAT emerged was, by the standards of history and the world, a utopian dream. Popular self-government by means of representative, elective institutions was then and is today a rarity. That it had and still has serious flaws is obvious.

But it is also clear that those who originally conceived of English settlement in America, had lived to see this outcome, would have approved. And, as freeborn Englishmen, they would not have been exactly surprised. If they were dreamers, they were among those who seal their dreams by activity.

William Penn's grand experiment and strenuous efforts at recruiting settlers for his colony made Pennsylvania one-third German (and, not accidentally, Protestant).

The Calvinist Scotch-Irish, descendants of Scots who had colonized in northern Ireland, and ancestors of a tradition of religious conflict which remains there to this day, also came in great numbers to the colonies from Pennsylvania southwards. And other groups came as well: Protestant French (Huguenots), and in lesser numbers, Catholic Irish, Jews, even Poles.

Happily for the predominating sorts of English who came, they were nearly all Christian, heavily of the low-church, modified-Calvinist sort.

More than anything else, this fact brought a measure of unity out of ethnic multiplicity. America was to fulfill, for a time, the expectation that England's offspring would be, necessarily, Protestant.

> "So in a crucial sense, 'Middle-America' began not in the Mississippi River heartland but on the Atlantic beachheads."

ON THIS COUNT, as on several others, the Africans were a group apart. Much the next largest group to the English, they concentrated their settlement, without any say in the matter, in the southern half of the English-controlled portion of the New World.

They came, captives, in small numbers at first, their status not altogether clear. Within several decades, however, during the first half of the seventeenth century, it had become certain and apparent that the Africans in these colonies would be accorded a status which conflicted sharply with important English pretensions.

One of the major tenets of English pride and indeed of English nationalism was that they were themselves the freest people in the world: freer, clearly, than the Turks and other "infidels"; and much freer, even, than the Spaniards and the French. It was perhaps this justifiable consciousness which helped enable English settlers to create a social condition for Africans that ran radically counter to English custom and law.

AFRICANS, who were by the standards of Englishmen neither Christian, civilized, nor appropriate in appearance, came rapidly to be set apart for a special kind of exploitation.

As Africans came to the American colonies in increasing numbers, particularly after 1700 — which was, roughly, when the other non-English came — Englishmen began rapidly to realize that their New World lands would not automatically be English.

Indeed, as one Virginian put it, "I fear this Colony will some time or other be confirmed by the name of New Guinea." Or, as Benjamin Franklin once described Pennsylvania, "New Germany."

But while Franklin and others fretted about the ethnic composition of America, ethnic diversity seemed to be just happening.

SIR THOMAS MORE'S utopian society was developing its own peculiar directions in the New World. From Sir Humphrey Gilbert's vantage point on the stern-sheets of a fishing smack and from Richard Hakluyt's study chair, the new societies would not have been quite as Always, of course, with the exception of the Africans, whose standing on the lowest rung of the social ladder gave the English increased status, as African labor gave the English increased prosperity.

Because they prided themselves on being a free people, the English settlers in America worked out political forms conducive to still greater political freedom that existed at home.

Once again, though, we must distinguish between original intentions and eventual results. In successfully asking for the establishment of representative assemblies in each colony, the settlers were far from taking a radical step toward adoption of new political institutions.

IF ANYTHING, the establishment of representative government in America was a conservative step.

Elective assemblies were meant to conserve already existing English liberties and institutional practices. (It was no accident that New York, the last colony to gain an assembly, was the one originally settled by another nation, the Dutch).

The attempt to recreate in America what was valued in England resulted in the political forms which Americans came eventually so greatly to value.

No one realized at the time, of course, that by establishing little parliaments in America, the settlers were eracting political institutions which eventually would challenge imperial authority and, in the process of a Revolution, form the basis of a federated nation-state.

The actual practice of politics in the colonies was so ridden by factional bickering and so assiduously concerned with mundane tasks that no one thought the colonists were engaged in a utopian project.

YET WHAT emerged was, by the standards of history and the world, a utopian dream. Popular self-government by means of representative, elective institutions was then and is today a rarity. That it had and still has serious flaws is obvious.

But it is also clear that those who originally conceived of English settlement in America, had lived to see this outcome, would have approved. And, as freeborn Englishmen, they would not have been exactly surprised. If they were dreamers, they were among those who seal their dreams by activity.

IF YOU HAVE A LITTLE GIRL

If you have a little girl all your very own,
Then you have enough and more to make a happy home;
And if but once each day you should see her smile,
They you have enough and more to make your life worthwhile.

If you should chance to watch her while she kneels to pray,
Then you have enough and more to complete a happy day;
And if you get to rock her and kiss her while she sleeps,
Then you have enough and more to make your life complete.

Nature Glows

A NATURALIST BUYS AN OLD FARM by Edwin Way Teale; Dodd, Mead, 306 pages, $10.
THE SHINING LEVELS by John Wyatt; Lippincott, 209 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

We have had occasion before in book reviews to dwell upon the remarkable ability of many nature-lovers for transmitting through the written and spoken word their special empathy with other living things.

It is a remarkable coexistence of sensitivities, and also a happy one. For it permits those of us not so gifted to share something of the job that these people derive from their special powers of observation and understanding.

The talent of the American environmentalist Edwin Way Teale for conveying his affinity for nature, as demonstrated in "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm," will surprise no one. That Pulitzer Prizewinner has to his credit a long list of delightful works, including the brilliant American Seasons series, to his credit.

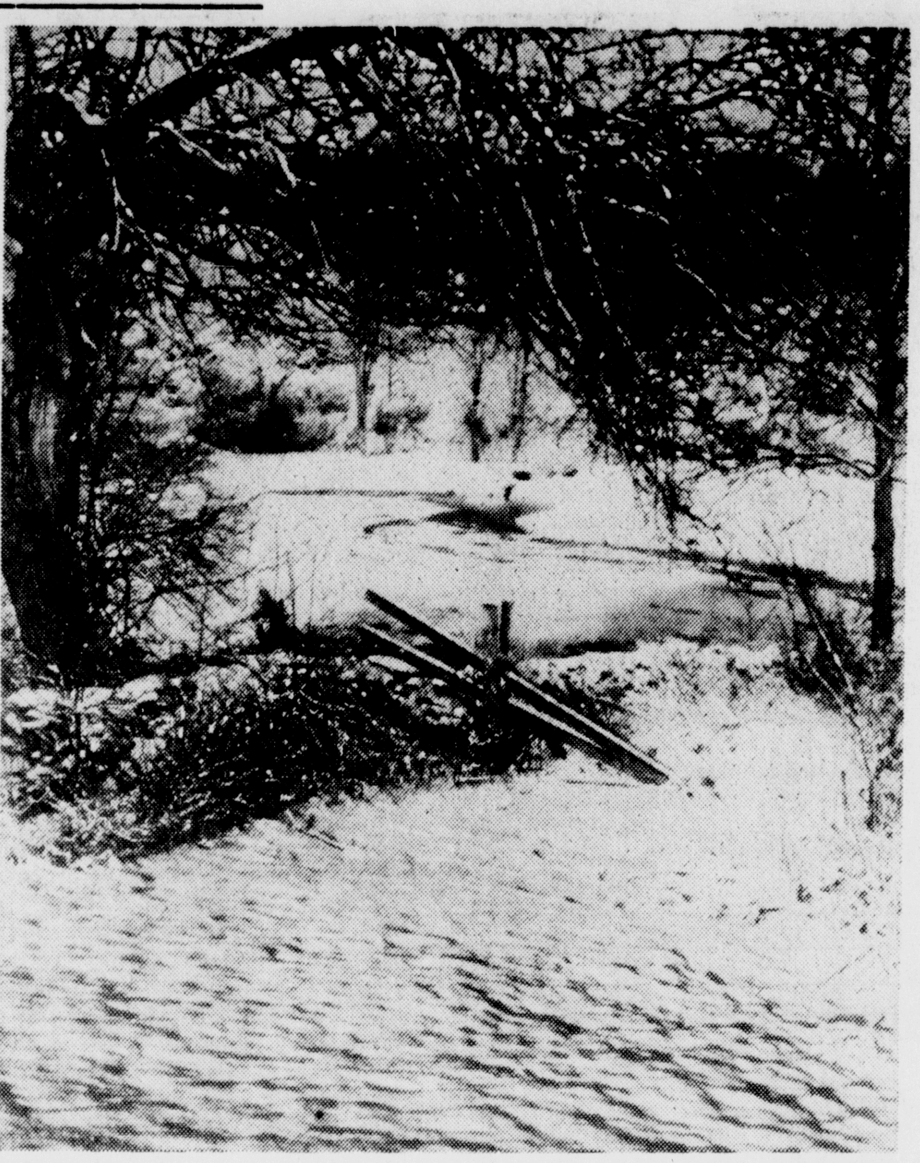
More of a surprise is "The Shining Levels" and its author, John Wyatt. It is Wyatt's first book, although he has written frequently for English periodicals and newspapers.

The two men write about places widely separated in miles.

Teale writes about his Trail Wood homeplace near the historic Connecticut village of Hampton, and where, since 1959, he and wife Nellie have resided in a farmhouse surrounded by what is virtually a wildlife preserve.

There the Teales have kept watchful vigil upon plants, birds, insects and animals, adding daily to their store of knowledge about wildlife. And "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" represents a sharing of this knowledge, and of the pleasures of 15 years of such observation.

John Wyatt writes about northern England's wild and beautiful Lake Country to whence he went as a young man, leaving behind a city newspaper job, and where today he serves as head warden of the Lake District National Park.



THE BEAUTY of a trail wood in winter is captured in this picture by Edwin Way Teale, whose book "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" has been published by Dodd, Mead.

Let it be noted that Wyatt's "Lake Country" is not the Windermere, Bowness, Ambleside, etc., known to many tourists, lovely as these places are. Wyatt's home grounds are the more remote woods seen only by the hardier park visitors.

Thus both Teale and Wyatt, despite the ocean that separates them, are writing about essentially the same place — the unspoiled, still largely wild lands, shrinking in their size but still to be found by those willing to give up certain conveniences in exchange for quiet and beauty and a close relationship with God's simpler creatures.

Whereas Teale's book teems with a cast of wildlife and wild plants in which there is no one star, Wyatt does focus most strongly upon his relationship with a single animal — the deer he called Buck. It is an honest and beautiful relationship, not sentimentalized or dramatized. Just told the way it was.

Both "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" and "The Shining Levels" are books that send a surge of warmth through the reader's veins. In these hectic, cynical times, it is nice to know there are people like John Wyatt and the Teales who still live calmly and in candid harmony with the woods and the woods-dwellers.

Realism Brings Power To Tale Of Hostages

GOOD-BYE AND AMEN by Francis Clifford; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 225 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Other writers of suspense novels who turn out bulky books with complex plots could well learn a lesson in brevity from Londoner Francis Clifford.

Clifford crashed the big-time with his "The Naked Runner," and has been a consistently fine writer ever since. He gives his readers clean, uncomplicated plots, presented in spare, to-the-point rhetoric.

"Good-Bye and Amen" finds Clifford in typically fine form. Inside a Grosvenor Square hotel, across the street from the United States Embassy, a demented gunman has holed up. He has already killed one man with his sniper fire, and now he holds two hostages. Soon he adds a third hostage — the U.S. ambassador, no less.

With a documentary realism that is at times so frightening as to be almost unbearable, the reader shares the tensions and the crises that come with these kinds of situations with which we have become all too familiar in recent years.

Clifford jolts us with a series of surprises — including the well-hidden identity of the gunman —, and then gives us a final, astonishing twist at his conclusion.

The bi-national cast of characters, British and American, is real and believable.

It's the kind of book that doesn't allow for interruption in its reading. And, fortunately, Clifford's simple, effective writing style makes for rapid and easy reading.

"Good-Bye and Amen" is splendid suspense. The only possible criticism is that in this day and age of so many actual acts of this kind by the crazed or the fanatic, some might ask: "Should we force ourselves to undergo these experiences in our fiction as well as our newspapers?" But so well does Francis Clifford write and analyze that in his revealing exploration, the roots of at least one kind of violence become more apparent and more understandable than in even the starkest press account of the latest headlined aberration of human nature.

Refugee Family Woes

REFUGEE by Linda and Khalid Shah; Crowell, 392 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

The symbolic figure of the 20th century is that of the refugee, one of the faceless millions driven from homes, separated from families, wrenched from life's work.

Abused, ignored and generally forgotten, or left to rot in squalid camps, the plight of the refugee is a disgrace and an enigma. This sea of misfortune benumbs the mind; and, really, what is the solution?

Such sacrificial victims to human cruelty are the subject of "Refugee," a first novel by a husband and wife team, Khalid and Linda Shag. Though the novel concerns the 1947 partition of India, and is based partly upon the experience of Khalid Shah's own family, the book is not partisan, and deals movingly with the theme of innocent people dispossessed.

"Refugee" would have been marred by shrill polemicism, so the authors wisely stick to describing the sometimes cliff-hanging flight of an upper class and appealing family from Indian to Pakistan. Their experiences are terrible, and are contrasted in flashbacks with a formerly happy life. This technique lends dimension to the story, while giving a very accurate and detailed account of Moslem customs, attitudes and values.

The varied landscape as well as the cultural and political ambiguities of the Indian subcontinent are skillfully evoked in "Refugee," and the details of one family's desperate escape are both suspenseful and believable.

Photography is explored in an unusual way, through the human and artistic experiences of famous living photographers in a four book collection "Masters of Contemporary Photography" published by the Thomas Y. Crowell Co. and Alskog Books.

The color and black and white photos are reproduced clearly and the photographers not only examine their creative processes but also styles and techniques.

The books are "The Photo Illustration" by Bert Stern, "The Photojournalist" by Mary Ellen Mark and Annie Leibovitz, "The Photo Essay" by Will McBride and Paul Fusco, and "The Private Experience" by Elliott Erwitt.

Each is priced at $7.95 in hardcover and $3.95 in paperback. They are filled with ideas for serious amateur and professional photographers.

A PROFUSELY illustrated guide to defending yourself against attack has been compiled by Robert V. Masters in "The Complete Book of Karate and Self Defense" which has been reissued by Sterling Publishing Co. at $7.95.

The book was prepared especially for young adults and it shows how you can develop your body to the point where you can use self-defense techniques most effectively.

INSTRUCTOR IN CONFLICT

LAUGHTER IN DARKNESS, by Robert O'Neil Bristow, Crown Publishers, 230 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Mitchell Ashley, English instructor at an obscure Southern college, appears to have everything: looks, money, devoted friends, and a beer-drinking dog named Bruce.

But Mitch Ashley lacks two gifts: self-confidence and sight. The amiable Bruce is a seeing-eye dog.

The conflict in Mitch Ashley's life, and hence the theme of this novel, is dependence vs. independene. He is determined, at the risk of his life, limbs, and sanity, to be independent. To this end he wrecks himself physically — walks through glass doors, inadvertently takes LSD, falls off balconies, steps in front of trucks — and almost loses his one chance of salvation.

That chance is Georgia, beautiful of body, large of soul, Everyman's dream of consenting, non-critical Woman. Georgia loves Mitch and — in a convenient arrangement for an English teacher — also grades his papers.

The crisis comes when she finishes her M.A. and leaves town. Will Mitch let her go, thereby maintaining the fiction of his independence? Or will he succumb to the interdependence that binds us all together and admit that he needs and loves her?

Spend a few relaxed hours reading about thoroughly-mixed-up Mitch and find out for yourself. Author Bristow's style is slightly "little literary magazine," but Mitch, Georgia, and especially Bruce, are amusing.

The Now Forgotten Force Of Religion

Inside Woody Hayes

BUCKEYE by Robert Vare; Harper's Magazine Press, 243 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Ron Lent.

Middle America. Fall, Saturday afternoon. Buckeyes. Columbus, Ohio. College football. Woody Hayes.

This is the setting for the football machine that is Ohio State. Its operator is coach Wayne Woodrow Hayes, 61.

Author Robert Vare depicts Coach as tough, independent, violent, militaristic, well-read, unpredictable, and cunning. The description seems justified.

A voracious reader, the pouchy, grouchy mentor is a student of military history and (surprise) poetry. He enjoys quoting poet Ralph Waldo Emerson and General George Patton, among others.

Despite his expertise from reading, Ohio State University football remains the same. Since earning the head coaching job in February, 1951, the Buckeyes have won national titles, Rose Bowls, and seemingly countless victories. This has been accomplished by a year-round recruiting program staffed by Hayes and an alumni committee.

In their constant search for top football talent, they turn up blue-chip athletes who perpetuate the success of the Ohio State University football machine. The machine utilizes a grind-em-out offensive with hard-charging fullbacks and darting halfbacks. Hulking line-men produce large holes in enemy defenses for the runners to churn through.

Their efforts consume valuable time on the game clock while producing touchdown after touchdown. This, then, is the essence of Buckeye formula for success.

Author Vare offers similar strategy in writing his book: he churns out those pages — fast. It appears that the writing was assembled hastily to be ready for the 1974 football season.

Ohio State destroyed Southern California, 42-21, in the January, 1974 Rose Bowl and this is examined closely in the book.

Other noteworthy periods covered by Vare were: the 1956 suspension for payments made to his players, 1961 faculty council uprising when the body voted not to allow Ohio State to play in the Rose Bowl, the 1966 losing season, and an assistant coaches slush-fund furor last season.

Vare's efforts in relating these incidents are commendable. The subject material is provocative and articulated well. Possibly more time could have been spent examining Hayes' football highlights at Ohio State. Certainly that point is a matter of preference, not necessity.

Overall, Buckeye gives the reader an inside look at Ohio State football recruiting and Woody Hayes. It is worthwhile sports writing.

British Officer Views Patton

PATTON: A Study in Command by H. Essame; Scribner's, 261 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

In the doldrums of peace time surrounding World Wars I and II, Gen. George S. Patton often would combat his restlessness by fantasizing himself fighting alongside great warriors of history: Napoleon, Hannibal, and Frederick the Great.

It is the final judgment of this biography that the controversial American general indeed would deserve ranking with this select group but for his never having held independent command.

The creation of a retired British officer, "Patton" is crafted with a detailed military preciseness that gives an admirable surge to the scenarios of landmark battles, along with deeply sympathetic insights into the early life and myriad eccentricities of his subject.

Patton's bizarre self-styled uniforms, disregard for personal danger, severe discipline of troops and penchant for profanity are legend. Now filmic as well as verbal. Not so, the story of his birth to wealth outside fashionable Pasadena and later studied preparation in all phases of soldiering.

Despite his zest for war, the general is portrayed as having intensely disliked a pitiable consequence of it, the wounded and disfigured men in the hospital wards. Essame accords prolonged and moving treatment to the disastrous Second World War slapping incident wherein Patton struck an enlisted man whom he thought malingering, precipitating harsh waves of displeasure and protest.

If this account borders on apology, it typically reflects Essame's high esteem for the American officer — fact hardly concealed prior to the concluding gust of adulation.

But Patton's military fate is sealed. Supreme Allied Commander Dwight D. Eisenhower is revealed to have noted in a communique: "In no event will I advance Patton beyond Army Commander."

Finally transferred from the field to an office following other unfortunate incidents, Patton died shortly after victory, and occupation of Europe.

Not from enemy steel, as he would have preferred, but victim of a senseless roadside accident.

Elders Pick Up On Rock Scores

By WILLIAM D. LAFFLER

There was a time when older musicians would not touch rock music with a ten foot pole.

But over the years the better rock groups convinced their elders they had something to say.

SUCH respected conductors as Arthur Fiedler and Enoch Light played their own orchestral arrangements of compositions by the Beatles and Simon and Garfunkel. Other leaders also picked up the baton on rock scores.

Now we have the jazz bands moving into the scene, notably Stan Kenton and Gil Evans. "Stan Kenton Plays Chicago" (Creative World Records ST 1072) includesmusic created by Chicago and Blood, Sweat and Tears as well as original compositions by Bob Kurnow, who produced the album and once was a trombonist in Stan's band.

Chicago and Blood, Sweat and Tears spiced their rock with some jazzy strains, so Kenton did not have to work with purely alien music.

KENTON'S music has changed since the "Eager Beaver" days but his revolutionary ideas about jazz still prevail and those who rejected his offerings during those World War II days may find his present output too abrasive.

"The Gil Evans Orchestra Plays the Music of Jimi Hendrix" (RCA CPL1 0667) is a posthumous tribute to the rock guitarist. The band on this recording is the same group of jazz and rock musicians who played at Carnegie Hall.

STAN KENTON
Still changing

Like Kenton, Evans is an innovator whose career has spread over about 40 years. Most innovators refuse to reject the changing times so it is only logical to find a synthesizer in the array of Evans' instruments.

Evans leads off with "Angel" and follows with "Crosstown Traffic" and "Little Miss Lover" before finishing the first side with "Castles Made of Sand" and "Foxey Lady." The second side begins with an imaginative arrangement by Evans of "Up From The Skies" and then moves into "1983-A Mcrman I Should Turn to Be." The concluding numbers are "Voodoo Chile" and "Gypsy Eyes."

ERROLL GARNER, who recently concluded a tour of Europe, will delight his large following with "Magician" (London APS 640.)

Garner leans heavily on other composers but includes three of his own works in this selection. He goes back to the Gershwin years for a pianistic reappraisal of "Someone to Watch Over Me" and to Jerome Kern for "Yesterdays." Erroll gives the Garner touch to Harry Warren and Al Dubin on "I Only Have Eyes For You." Moving into the contemporary scene, Garner chooses Burt Bacharach's "Close to You" and Michael Legrand's "Watch What Happens."

Garner is backed by Grady Tate on percussion, Jose Mangual on congo drum and Bob Cranshaw on Fender and acoustical bass.

"It Gets Better Every Time" is the first of the three Garner originals. The others are "Nightwind" and "Mucho Gusto."

Neill Young Album Good

By ROBIN WELLES

To borrow a Madison Avenue phrase, Young isn't getting older — he's getting better. Neil Young, once of the Buffalo Springfields and the Young member of Crosby, Stills, Nash and Young, has just come out with a really great album, "On the Beach," on the Reprise label.

THE ACOUSTIC tunes are best though there isn't one bad cut in the whole album. It's a tossup whether "On the Beach" beats "After the Goldrush" but it's his best since that LP and proves Young is as good a writer as he is a musician and singer. His distinctive voice comes through clear and in complete control and his guitar and harmonica work is hot.

The title tune is among the best cuts along with "See the Sky About to Rain," "Revolution Blues" and "For the Turnstiles," but they're all good — eight out of eight, that's not bad.

PERRY COMO, who's been in the singing racket about as long as any of them, provides a pleasant blend of the old and the new in a new LP for RCA called "Perry." To show that he can still do it, Como includes his current hit, "Weave Me the Sunshine," a bouncy tune by Peter Yarrow. And, to please his old fans, the million seller "Temptation" also is there. Another great cut is the Como handling of "The Way We Were."

JEAN SHEPARD has a harsh, powerful voice that can belt out a country-pop swinger or turn softer like a tenor sax for the slow ones. And like all the really good singers, her enunciation is so precise that you can understand every word.

Her new album for United Artists, pegged on her hit, "I'll Do Anything It Takes," comes across like a winner. She also sings the popular "Would You Lay With Me," but the best two songs on the LP are the moody "I Love" and an excellent arrangement of the bouncy "Let Me Be There." This gal has star quality.

KILL WITH STYLE by Hal Gulliver; Scribner's, 282 pages, $5.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Hal Gulliver has ventured from the newspaper business (he's associate editor of the Atlanta Constitution) and political writing (he co-authored "The Southern Strategy") to spin his first mystery yarn. The results indicate he should have stayed with more familiar fields.

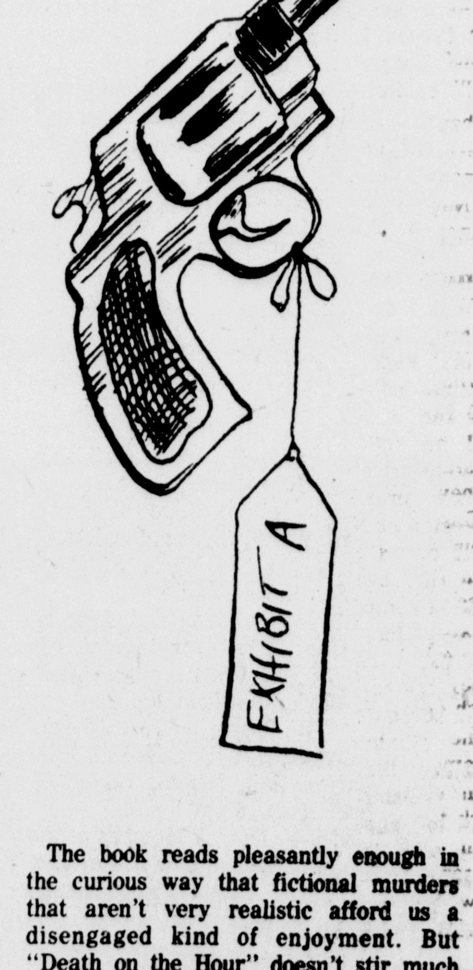
Jim Roundtree, lawyer and individualist, is hired by his old employer, the conglomerate Troup-Kincaid, to investigate what seems to be a take-over plot. The showdown takes place on the Caribbean island of Martinique, where assorted big business types try to out-finagle one another. And where, of course, murder occurs. Naturally, there's a pretty and somewhat promiscuous woman involved.

Despite his attractive setting, and despite Gulliver's demonstration of a considerable acquaintance with big business procedures, ethical and otherwise, "Kill With Style" just doesn't generate much excitement. This reader, at least, was restless through the last two-thirds of the book and eager to get it over with. And none too taken with the character Jim Roundtree, who is something of a bore.

DEATH ON THE HOUR by Richard Lockridge; Lippincott, 228 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Richard Lockridge's writing credits total nearly 80 novels written alone, or in collaboration with wife Frances. It is hardly surprising, then, that mysteries seem to come easily for Lockridge — perhaps too easily.

"Death on the Hour" concerns the highly competitive field of television network news programming, and the murder of one of the anchormen. The team of Assistant Dist. Atty. Bernie Simmons and Police Capt. John Stein directs the investigation, with assorted eastern suburbanite types involved and suspected. Big business, too, has a role in the story.



The book reads pleasantly enough in the curious way that fictional murders that aren't very realistic afford us a disengaged kind of enjoyment. But "Death on the Hour" doesn't stir much excitement, at least not in this reader. And Lockridge's latest turns out to be just another in a long series of mysteries that are quite satisfactory bits of escapist fluff, but fall a good deal short of the better, harder crime novels being authored today.

Nature Glows

A NATURALIST BUYS AN OLD FARM by Edwin Way Teale; Dodd, Mead, 306 pages, $10.

THE SHINING LEVELS by John Wyatt; Lippincott, 209 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

We have had occasion before in book reviews to dwell upon the remarkable ability of many nature-lovers for transmitting through the written and spoken word their special empathy with other living things.

It is a remarkable coexistence of sensitivities, and also a happy one. For it permits those of us not so gifted to share something of the job that these people derive from their special powers of observation and understanding.

The talent of the American environmentalist Edwin Way Teale for conveying his affinity for nature, as demonstrated in "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm," will surprise no one. That Pulitzer Prize-winner has to his credit a long list of delightful works, including the brilliant American Seasons series, to his credit.

More of a surprise is "The Shining Levels" and its author, John Wyatt. It is Wyatt's first book, although he has written frequently for English periodicals and newspapers.

The two men write about places widely separated in miles.

Teale writes about his Trail Wood homeplace near the historic Connecticut village of Hampton, and where, since 1959, he and wife Nellie have resided in a farmhouse surrounded by what is virtually a wildlife preserve.

There the Teales have kept watchful vigil upon plants, birds, insects and animals, adding daily to their store of knowledge about wildlife. And "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" represents a sharing of this knowledge, and of the pleasures of 15 years of such observation.

John Wyatt writes about northern England's wild and beautiful Lake Country to whence he went as a young man, leaving behind a city newspaper job, and where today he serves as head warden of the Lake District National Park.

THE BEAUTY of a trail wood in winter is captured in this picture by Edwin Way Teale, whose book "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" has been published by Dodd, Mead.

Let it be noted that Wyatt's "Lake Country" is not the Windermere, Bowness, Ambleside, etc., known to many tourists, lovely as these places are. Wyatt's home grounds are the more remote woods seen only by the hardier park visitors.

Thus both Teale and Wyatt, despite the ocean that separates them, are writing about essentially the same place — the unspoiled, still largely wild lands, shrinking in their size but still to be found by those willing to give up certain conveniences in exchange for quiet and beauty and a close relationship with God's simpler creatures.

Whereas Teale's book teems with a cast of wildlife and wild plants in which there is no one star, Wyatt does focus most strongly upon his relationship with a single animal — the deer he called Buck. It is an honest and beautiful relationship, not sentimentalized or dramatized. Just told the way it was.

Both "A Naturalist Buys an Old Farm" and "The Shining Levels" are books that send a surge of warmth through the reader's veins. In these hectic, cynical times, it is nice to know there are people like John Wyatt and the Teales who still live calmly and in candid harmony with the woods and the woods-dwellers.

Inside Woody Hayes

BUCKEYE by Robert Vare; Harper's Magazine Press, 243 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Ron Lent.

Middle America. Fall, Saturday afternoon. Buckeyes. Columbus, Ohio. College football. Woody Hayes.

This is the setting for the football machine that is Ohio State. Its operator is coach Wayne Woodrow Hayes, 61.

Author Robert Vare depicts Coach as tough, independent, violent, militaristic, well-read, unpredictable, and cunning. The description seems justified.

A voracious reader, the pouchy, grouchy mentor is a student of military history and (surprise) poetry. He enjoys quoting poet Ralph Waldo Emerson and General George Patton, among others.

Despite his expertise from reading, Ohio State University football remains the same. Since earning the head coaching job in February, 1951, the Buckeyes have won national titles, Rose Bowls, and seemingly countless victories. This has been accomplished by a year-round recruiting program staffed by Hayes and an alumni committee.

In their constant search for top football talent, they turn up blue-chip athletes who perpetuate the success of the Ohio State University football machine. The machine utilizes a grind-em-out offensive with hard-charging fullbacks and darting halfbacks. Hulking line-men produce large holes in enemy defenses for the runners to churn through.

Their efforts consume valuable time on the game clock while producing touchdown after touchdown. This, then, is the essence of Buckeye formula for success.

Author Vare offers similar strategy in writing his book: he churns out those pages — fast. It appears that the writing was assembled hastily to be ready for the 1974 football season.

Ohio State destroyed Southern California, 42-21, in the January, 1974 Rose Bowl and this is examined closely in the book.

Other noteworthy periods covered by Vare were: the 1956 suspension for payments made to his players, 1961 faculty council uprising when the body voted not to allow Ohio State to play in the Rose Bowl, the 1966 losing season, and an assistant coaches slush-fund furor last season.

Vare's efforts in relating these incidents are commendable. The subject material is provocative and articulated well. Possibly more time could have been spent examining Hayes' football highlights at Ohio State. Certainly that point is a matter of preference, not necessity.

Overall, Buckeye gives the reader an inside look at Ohio State football recruiting and Woody Hayes. It is worthwhile sports writing.

British Officer Views Patton

PATTON: A Study in Command by H. Essame; Scribner's, 261 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Francis M. Dozier Jr.

In the doldrums of peace time surrounding World Wars I and II, Gen. George S. Patton often would combat his restlessness by fantasizing himself fighting alongside great warriors of history: Napoleon, Hannibal, and Frederick the Great.

It is the final judgment of this biography that the controversial American general indeed would deserve ranking with this select group but for his never having held independent command.

The creation of a retired British officer, "Patton" is crafted with a detailed military preciseness that gives an admirable surge to the scenarios of landmark battles, along with deeply sympathetic insights into the early life and myriad eccentricities of his subject.

Patton's bizarre self-styled uniforms, disregard for personal danger, severe discipline of troops and penchant for profanity are legend. Now filmic as well as verbal. Not so, the story of his birth to wealth outside fashionable Pasadena and later studied preparation in all phases of soldiering.

Despite his zest for war, the general is portrayed as having intensely disliked a pitiable consequence of it, the wounded and disfigured men in the hospital wards. Essame accords prolonged and moving treatment to the disastrous Second World War slapping incident wherein Patton struck an enlisted man whom he thought malingering, precipitating harsh waves of displeasure and protest.

If this account borders on apology, it typically reflects Essame's high esteem for the American officer — fact hardly concealed prior to the concluding gust of adulation.

But Patton's military fate is sealed. Supreme Allied Commander Dwight D. Eisenhower is revealed to have noted in a communique: "In no event will I advance Patton beyond Army Commander."

Finally transferred from the field to an office following other unfortunate incidents, Patton died shortly after victory, and occupation of Europe.

Realism Brings Power To Tale Of Hostages

GOOD-BYE AND AMEN by Francis Clifford; Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, 225 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Don Keown.

Other writers of suspense novels who turn out bulky books with complex plots could well learn a lesson in brevity from Londoner Francis Clifford.

Clifford crashed the big-time with his "The Naked Runner," and has been a consistently fine writer ever since. He gives his readers clean, uncomplicated plots, presented in spare, to-the-point rhetoric.

"Good-Bye and Amen" finds Clifford in typically fine form. Inside a Grosvenor Square hotel, across the street from the United States Embassy, a demented gunman has holed up. He has already killed one man with his sniper fire, and now he holds two hostages. Soon he adds a third hostage — the U.S. ambassador, no less.

With a documentary realism that is at times so frightening as to be almost unbearable, the reader shares the tensions and the crises that come with these kinds of situations with which we have become all too familiar in recent years.

Clifford jolts us with a series of surprises — including the well-hidden identity of the gunman —, and then gives us a final, astonishing twist at his conclusion.

The bi-national cast of characters, British and American, is real and believable.

It's the kind of book that doesn't allow for interruption in its reading. And, fortunately, Clifford's simple, effective writing style makes for rapid and easy reading.

"Good-Bye and Amen" is splendid suspense. The only possible criticism is that in this day and age of so many actual acts of this kind by the crazed or the fanatic, some might ask: "Should we force ourselves to undergo these experiences in our fiction as well as our newspapers?" But so well does Francis Clifford write and analyze that in his revealing exploration, the roots of at least one kind of violence become more apparent and more understandable than in even the starkest press account of the latest headlined aberration of human nature.

Refugee Family Woes

REFUGEE by Linda and Khalid Shah; Crowell, 392 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Lee Hopkins.

The symbolic figure of the 20th century is that of the refugee, one of the faceless millions driven from homes, separated from families, wrenched from life's work.

Abused, ignored and generally forgotten, or left to rot in squalid camps, the plight of the refugee is a disgrace and an enigma. This sea of misfortune benumbs the mind; and, really, what is the solution?

Such sacrificial victims to human cruelty are the subject of "Refugee," a first novel by a husband and wife team, Khalid and Linda Shag. Though the novel concerns the 1947 partition of India, and is based partly upon the experience of Khalid Shah's own family, the book is not partisan, and deals movingly with the theme of innocent people dispossessed.

"Refugee" would have been marred by shrill polemicism, so the authors wisely stick to describing the sometimes cliff-hanging flight of an upper class and appealing family from Indian to Pakistan. Their experiences are terrible, and are contrasted in flashbacks with a formerly happy life. This technique lends dimension to the story, while giving a very accurate and detailed account of Moslem customs, attitudes and values.

The varied landscape as well as the cultural and political ambiguities of the Indian subcontinent are skillfully evoked in "Refugee," and the details of one family's desperate escape are both suspenseful and believable.

INSTRUCTOR IN CONFLICT

LAUGHTER IN DARKNESS, by Robert O'Neil Bristow, Crown Publishers, 230 pages, $6.95. Reviewed by Alice Dalbey.

Mitchell Ashley, English instructor at an obscure Southern college, appears to have everything: looks, money, devoted friends, and a beer-drinking dog named Bruce.

But Mitch Ashley lacks two gifts: self-confidence and sight. The amiable Bruce is a seeing-eye dog.

The conflict in Mitch Ashley's life, and hence the theme of this novel, is dependence vs. independene. He is determined, at the risk of his life, limbs, and sanity, to be independent. To this end he wrecks himself physically — walks through glass doors, inadvertently takes LSD, falls off balconies, steps in front of trucks — and almost loses his one chance of salvation.

That chance is Georgia, beautiful of body, large of soul, Everyman's dream of consenting, non-critical Woman. Georgia loves Mitch and — in a convenient arrangement for an English teacher — also grades his papers.

The crisis comes when she finishes her M.A. and leaves town. Will Mitch let her go, thereby maintaining the fiction of his independence? Or will he succumb to the interdependence that binds us all together and admit that he needs and loves her?

Spend a few relaxed hours reading about thoroughly-mixed-up Mitch and find out for yourself. Author Bristow's style is slightly "little literary magazine," but Mitch, Georgia, and especially Bruce, are amusing.

Problems Fade Away In Monterey And Beach Relaxing In Carmel

By PAUL BARNES

The Monterey Peninsula is one big refreshment center.

I don't mean that hamburger stands sparkle with neon on every corner or that the streets flow with Coca-Cola.

But any place I visit on the peninsula seems to clear the cobwebs from my thoughts and smooth out the wrinkles other areas in life have left me.

My problems become microscopic.

I CAN'T tell if the relaxation comes from the steady rhythm of the waves that sweep the sand and chisel the rocks on the peninsula or if watching the sandpiper dart after sand crabs makes my battle seem less frantic than his.

He has to work harder than I do.

Whatever the reason, time spent in Monterey is time spent in therapy.

And evidently thousands of other refugees from the walled streets of civilization feel the same. There are more than 150 hotels and motels in the area and they are said to be 90 per cent full all year.

One hundred and thirty thousand residents remain there year-round.

A tourist who chooses Carmel for a resting place has the advantage of being able to park his car and forget it. Monterey is a bigger town and to get to places of interest, transportation is necessary.

MY PREFERENCE is for Carmel, that tight little village where everything is within walking distance. The only exception might be the famous Carmel Mission founded by Father Junipero Serra on June 3, 1770.

It sits at the south end of the town about five miles from the village center.

The beach sprawls out at the foot of Ocean Avenue, the main boulevard in Carmel, with the famous Monterey cypress trees providing shade on sandy knolls that cascade to the surf.

The sand is white and deep and bathers occasionally risk splashes in the cool water. Gulls float overhead on the sea breezes and seem to take pleasure in gawking at and calling to the bathers.

AVERAGE SUMMER temperatures run in the high 60s, warm enough to coax almost anyone down to the sea. The hottest days are in September when the temperature may reach 90 degrees.

In Carmel you get beach when you want beach. There are no trimmings. The sand is about five blocks from the business district so you will not find a boardwalk, hot dog stand or candy floss counter near the water.

It's a welcome relief to walk barefoot in the sand without stepping in melted snow cones and kicking aside ice cream wrappers.

In fact, one of the most attractive aspects of Carmel is the separation of beach and business. While you will find no shops on the beach you will also find no beachwear on the street. Most of the tiny businesses crammed into downtown Carmel do not allow bare feet, food or drink inside.

Swimsuits are simply not seen.

Whether it's the old mission training or just upper-class propriety, modesty is worn like a badge in Carmel.

MODESTY does not preclude casual living, though. Don't buy anything to wear in Carmel, take what you have. You'll go unnoticed whether you wear faded jeans, a business suit or tennis shorts.

On the other hand, women will get to wear their foxy fashions at dinner time.

It seems almost every third shop is an eating place. You can find menus touting Chinese, American, continental, French, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Mexican and Polynesian food.

Prices are reasonable considering the peninsula is a vacation area. And if beef Wellington is $7.50 in one restaurant it's $7.50 down the street, too.

People tend to shirk some of the customary dinner habits. I planned an early dinner, about 6 p.m., to avoid the crowds. I found that it isn't necessarily chic to eat late in Carmel.

FAMILIES of all sizes were in the restaurant, and although I got a table immediately, a line for seating soon formed in the bar. Happy hours must begin at about 3:30 p.m. there.

But Carmel is really a daytime village anyway. You tend to get up early so as not to miss any of the day. People play, swim, shop, and sunbathe and then retire early.

The Monterey Peninsula offers a list of fast-moving and slow-moving time fillers that should make it the active and passive capital of the world.

There are 50 miles of golf courses. There are 74 tennis courts. The Big Sur and Little Sur rivers teem with trout. The ocean refreshes a multitude of divers.

FOR SPECTATORS, Monterey sponsors five sports car races a year at Laguna Seca and there are 10 horse shows annually and seven yacht races.

Sportfishing boats line Fishermen's Wharf and, in season, hunting parties bag their limit of wild boar in the Santa Lucia Mountains.

You don't have to breathe heavy in Carmel, though.

All the activities are optional and if your favorite sport is swinging a brush across canvas then there are few places in the world that might inspire an artist more.

THE FAMOUS 17-mile drive begins just outside Carmel and stretches and winds along some of the most spectacular ocean scenery in the world.

Whatever refreshment you seek on the peninsula you had better seek a room first.

You can get a lush room in one of the million-dollar complexes that even have their own golf courses, or a tidy room off the main street in Carmel. But confirm the reservation before you get there.

I was there during the Monterey Triple Crown race at Laguna Seca and there were no rooms for those without reservations. Since the Monterey area promotes itself so heavily during the year, the casual tourist may find himself there on a busy weekend.

And despite how casual and refreshing the whole area is, there is still one point they are sticklers about.

Sleeping on the beach is illegal.

Sonoma Coast Campground

THE TRAVEL PAGE

Dunes created from the sea have become the site of a new 98-unit campground called Cypress Dunes.

The campground is near the south end of Sonoma Coast State Beach, an ocean shoreline crammed with opportunities for hikers, picknickers, flower hunters, camera fans, sunbathers on the beach, and those who like to fill their days with looking at spectacular scens of sea and shore.

CYPRESS DUNES became, for the first time last summer, the base camp of thousands of visitors to a marvelously varied seacoast. There was something for everyone: the dunes, sandy beaches, rocky cliffs, a restless ocean stuffed with strange-shaped rocks rising from the surface, sea birds and song birds, and wildflowers by the millions.

More than 1,700 acres and 14 miles of ocean frontage have been acquired, during the last 44 years, for state park use at Sonoma Coast State Beach. These acquisitions preserve for public use some outstanding examples of coastal landscape and provide opportunities for outdoor recreation for California's citizens and visitors today and in future years.

Cypress Dunes campground is at the inland edge of the dunes, three-fourths of a mile from the ocean, just west of the Coastal Highway, and north of the town of Bodega Bay.

Pacific Ocean waves roll against the shoreline, but the rows of sand dunes 50 to 100 feet high, covered with grass, shrubs, and cypress trees, silence the waves and diminish the cold night winds and wet salt air.

ONLY IN the last 20 years has dune grass slowed, and perhaps stopped, the moving hills of sand. For many thousands of years, the ocean had piled sand onto the beach above Mussel Point, a hook in the coastline north of Bodega Head. Strong ocean winds had quickly picked up the sand and blown it inland toward Bodega Harbor.

In 1952, in an effort to protect the harbor from encroachment by the sand, state park employees started to plant the dunes with a variety of dune grass that had been imported to America from Holland. After a few false starts and tens of thousands of plantings, the grass took hold. The tough clumps, deep rooted to survive the long summer drought, tamed the desert dunes and turned them into vegetated hills.

With the sand hills held in place, other grasses also got a start, and a few shrubs began to grow. Some cypress trees were also planted on the dunes. The grasses, shrubs, and trees still have a tenuous hold on the sandy ridges, but the typical scene is gradually changing from Sahara tan to seacoast green.

Campsites at Cypress Dunes are found in great variety, some with Bodega Harbor views; some amid 70-year-old cypress trees, planted by settlers in the area around the turn of the century; some surrounded by dense growths of willow and coyote bush. Each campsite has a black-topped driveway for car, trailer, or motor home and enough level open space to put up a good-sized tent or two. A fireplace, a table, and a food locker complete the camp facilities. Piped water is nearby.

EVERY CAMPSITE is within a few hundred feet of a neat, clean restroom-shower building with hot water and flush toilets. The four buildings were designed to harmonize with the north-coast scene. Entrance walks are flanked by stark-white rail fences. The deep-yellow painted walls are easy to spot in the daytime. Large, high yellow-glowing windows mark the buildings at night.

To the south, from atop the dunes, campers can see Bodega Harbor, sheltering boats and ships for pleasure and commerce. Most are docked at the two main marinas; a few more in or or out of the harbor, most powered by motor, some by sail.

Ringing most of the harbor are rolling, pastoral hills up to 300 feet high. Few trees rise from the sloping grassland. Some hillsides are dotted with houses.

To the southeast, around a bend in the harbor shore, is Bodega Bay with its fish docks, stores, and homes.

Summer days at Cypress Dunes range from foggy-cool to cloudy-brisk to sunny-warm. The many clear nights, far from city lights and smog, offer sky views like Sierra mountain nights. Even on a moonless clear night, starshine lights the open paths and roadways.

By morning, the ocean fog has drifed in, and well-bedded campers are tempted to sleep late. But long before noon, the fog may rift and show bright blue patches of the sky. The is the time to be off to see the Sonoma coastline from Bodega Head to Goat Rock beach.

BODEGA HEAD, to the south, forms the western flank of the entrance to Bodega Harbor. The often fog-shrouded rocky headland stops the ocean waves in their full force and turns them into mist and foam and rising and falling walls of water. The harbor becomes a peaceful salt-water lake.

North along the coast from Bodega Heas stretch a series of coves and promontories, sandy beaches, rocky cliffs, grassy mesas, natural flower gardens, native shrubs, and cypress trees, all overlooking the Pacific Ocean.

About a mile of narrow sandy beach forms the beginning of the dunes. Then comes the mouth of Salmon Creek with a beach on either side. Sometimes a sand bar completely closes the mouth of the creek, forming a quiet freshwater lagoon.

Continuing north is another mile of beaches, all within a few hundred feet of Highway 1. Then, after a short gap in state-owned land, comes Gleason Beach and Rock Point, a popular headland with picnic tables giving a spectacular lunch-time view.

Just north of Rock Point, midway up the state beach, is Duncan's Landing, said to be the most dangerous rocky headland along the Sonoma Coast. Atop the cliffs at Duncan's Landing, the spring or summer traveler may find a gentle, small round hill full of uncountable wildflowers of seemingly endless variety.

Then comes Wright's Beach, with another campground, then Shell Beach and Blind Beach, with the well-known landmark Arch Rock just out to se.

Russians Plunge Into Cruises As Capitalist Countries Drop Out

By RALPH HUBLEY

The biggest splash on the cruise scene this season is being made by the Russians. They are plunging in just when many capitalist countries are getting out.

They have bought West Germany's five-year-old Hamburg and Britain's (Cunard Liners) Franconia and Carmania. Now they reportedly are eyeing the France.

THEY CAN make money on the same ships that drive capitalist owners toward bankruptcy because the state controls sailors' wages and pays them in nonconvertible rubles. They don't have to import fuel at inflated costs, and can get food and other materials at home at constant prices.

They can offer passengers cruising out of Boston or New York a good deal, too. Their prices to Bermuda and the Caribbean run several hundred dollars below those of competitors.

Except for shore excursions, there are few extra charges. And a no-tipping policy can save a couple nearly $100 on a plush seven-day cruise.

The Maxim Gorky, as the Russians renamed the 25,500-ton Hamburg, has been cruising out of Boston and New York to Canada, Nassau, and the Caribbean with mixed reactions from first passengers — high praise for the ship, crew, and price; complaints about food, service, and language problems.

THE RUSSIANS have left the ship virtually unchanged. Even some of the signs are still in German. It has contemporary decor and one of the cruise industry's highest ratios of space per passenger.

Biggest changes are in the staff, shops, and dining room. For instance, passengers say the stewardesses and waitresses, dressed neatly in blue uniforms, do not speak much English. And even those passengers who speak Russian say the staff is not very talkative.

The shops are well stocked, with most attention focused on the Russian boutique, which features furs, miniatures, and Russian balalaikas. Some of the world's finest amber from the Baltic republics was considered the best buy.

MOST COMPLAINTS came from the dining room, where the waiters are young Soviet students still learning English. The slow and poor service may improve with language practice. The kindest word from passengers about the cuisine, usually the highlight of cruise ships, is "undistinguished."

One passenger recommends: "Try to get a table in the Odessa Restaurant — a deck higher than the Crimea Restaurant — and ask to sit in the center of the room, where the service is best." It might help to make your table reservation when you book instead of waiting until going aboard as is the custom on most ships.

The Russians have hired Bob Smith, a veteran cruise director from the Holland America Line, to Americanize their cruises. So far he has been only partially successful. More of the staff now is being taught English, and Broadway entertainers with American orchestras are being brought aboard.

WHILE THE "Americanization" goes on aboard the Russian liners, the competition is offering a wide variety of specialty cruises and far-reaching fly-cruise packages.

Encouraged by recent sell-outs that saw astronomy buffs go to sea in search of a solar eclipse and the comet Kohoutek, and movie fans book for floating film festivals, passenger lines now are scheduling such diverse themes as radio nostalgia, jazz, and science fiction.

Other recent specialties that may be repeated this year include concerts, stamp collecting, conventions, big-name bands, bridge, and investment seminars.

Despite rising air costs, fly-cruise packages are reaching farther this year.

AIR INDIA, for instance, for the first time is offering a cruise of the Indian Ocean aboard the Jupiter, from Bombay to the Laccadives, Sri Lanka (Ceylon), and Goa. Seven departures are planned from December through January.

Pan American World Airways has joined with the Royal Viking Line to link up with world cruises through the South Seas and the Orient.

And Northwest Orient will fly passengers to "Indonesia Adventure" cruises on Holland America's new Prinsendam, from November through April.

Trans Australia Airlines and Sitmar Cruises are offering four voyages to the north coast of Australia, New Guinea, and the Solomon Islands. The last of these cruises leaves Sydney Nov. 8.

The passenger can choose his airline to link up with Pacific Far East Line's Mariposa sailing for the South Seas Nov. 6. The vacation package allows a $225 reduction on round-trip air travel to Hawaii.

Problems Fade Away In Monterey And Beach Relaxing In Carmel

By PAUL BARNES

The Monterey Peninsula is one big refreshment center.

I don't mean that hamburger stands sparkle with neon on every corner or that the streets flow with Coca-Cola.

But any place I visit on the peninsula seems to clear the cobwebs from my thoughts and smooth out the wrinkles other areas in life have left me.

My problems become microscopic.

I CAN'T tell if the relaxation comes from the steady rhythm of the waves that sweep the sand and chisel the rocks on the peninsula or if watching the sandpiper dart after sand crabs makes my battle seem less frantic than his.

He has to work harder than I do.

Whatever the reason, time spent in Monterey is time spent in therapy.

And evidently thousands of other refugees from the walled streets of civilization feel the same. There are more than 150 hotels and motels in the area and they are said to be 90 per cent full all year.

One hundred and thirty thousand residents remain there year-round.

A tourist who chooses Carmel for a resting place has the advantage of being able to park his car and forget it. Monterey is a bigger town and to get to places of interest, transportation is necessary.

MY PREFERENCE is for Carmel, that tight little village where everything is within walking distance. The only exception might be the famous Carmel Mission founded by Father Junipero Serra on June 3, 1770.

It sits at the south end of the town about five miles from the village center.

The beach sprawls out at the foot of Ocean Avenue, the main boulevard in Carmel, with the famous Monterey cypress trees providing shade on sandy knolls that cascade to the surf.

The sand is white and deep and bathers occasionally risk splashes in the cool water. Gulls float overhead on the sea breezes and seem to take pleasure in gawking at and calling to the bathers.

AVERAGE SUMMER temperatures run in the high 60s, warm enough to coax almost anyone down to the sea. The hottest days are in September when the temperature may reach 90 degrees.

In Carmel you get beach when you want beach. There are no trimmings. The sand is about five blocks from the business district so you will not find a boardwalk, hot dog stand or candy floss counter near the water.

It's a welcome relief to walk barefoot in the sand without stepping in melted snow cones and kicking aside ice cream wrappers.

In fact, one of the most attractive aspects of Carmel is the separation of beach and business. While you will find no shops on the beach you will also find no beachwear on the street. Most of the tiny businesses crammed into downtown Carmel do not allow bare feet, food or drink inside.

Swimsuits are simply not seen.

Whether it's the old mission training or just upper-class propriety, modesty is worn like a badge in Carmel.

MODESTY does not preclude casual living, though. Don't buy anything to wear in Carmel, take what you have. You'll go unnoticed whether you wear faded jeans, a business suit or tennis shorts.

On the other hand, women will get to wear their foxy fashions at dinner time.

It seems almost every third shop is an eating place. You can find menus touting Chinese, American, continental, French, Indonesian, Italian, Japanese, Mexican and Polynesian food.

Prices are reasonable considering the peninsula is a vacation area. And if beef Wellington is $7.50 in one restaurant it's $7.50 down the street, too.

People tend to shirk some of the customary dinner habits. I planned an early dinner, about 6 p.m., to avoid the crowds. I found that it isn't necessarily chic to eat late in Carmel.

FAMILIES of all sizes were in the restaurant, and although I got a table immediately, a line for seating soon formed in the bar. Happy hours must begin at about 3:30 p.m. there.

But Carmel is really a daytime village anyway. You tend to get up early so as not to miss any of the day. People play, swim, shop, and sunbathe and then retire early.

The Monterey Peninsula offers a list of fast-moving and slow-moving time fillers that should make it the active and passive capital of the world.

There are 50 miles of golf courses. There are 74 tennis courts. The Big Sur and Little Sur rivers teem with trout. The ocean refreshes a multitude of divers.

FOR SPECTATORS, Monterey sponsors five sports car races a year at Laguna Seca and there are 10 horse shows annually and seven yacht races.

Sportfishing boats line Fishermen's Wharf and, in season, hunting parties bag their limit of wild boar in the Santa Lucia Mountains.

You don't have to breathe heavy in Carmel, though.

All the activities are optional and if your favorite sport is swinging a brush across canvas then there are few places in the world that might inspire an artist more.

THE FAMOUS 17-mile drive begins just outside Carmel and stretches and winds along some of the most spectacular ocean scenery in the world.

Whatever refreshment you seek on the peninsula you had better seek a room first.

You can get a lush room in one of the million-dollar complexes that even have their own golf courses, or a tidy room off the main street in Carmel. But confirm the reservation before you get there.

I was there during the Monterey Triple Crown race at Laguna Seca and there were no rooms for those without reservations. Since the Monterey area promotes itself so heavily during the year, the casual tourist may find himself there on a busy weekend.

And despite how casual and refreshing the whole area is, there is still one point they are sticklers about.

Sleeping on the beach is illegal.

Soap And Water First When Cleaning Aluminum

By ANDY LANG

HOMES PAGE

An important part of the popularity of aluminum in and around the house is that it is by nature a low maintenance material.

But aluminum products do become dirty and require occasional cleaning.

BECAUSE harsh abrasives do more harm than good, the rule of thumb about cleaning aluminum is to use the least strong cleaner that will still do the job. The No. 1 choice, therefore, is water and, after that, water and mild soap.

Aluminum siding can be effectively cleaned with a long-handled brush, preferably the hollow-handled type often used for washing a car.

If you make a practice of cleaning aluminum siding a couple of times a year, water alone will do the job. A garden hose will make it easy, but be sure the house windows and doors are closed tightly.

ALUMINUM screens should be washed once a year to keep them from building up a residue of air-borne dirt. Some persons find that the screens are easier to clean if they are sprayed with thinned screen lacquer.

A coat of lacquer or wax is also excellent for keeping newly cleaned bare aluminum from turning gray. If you use wax and it yellows after a long period of time, it can be removed with a solvent before applying a new coat.

If you are using an abrasive of any kind on a textured or grainy surface that is especially dirty and cannot be cleamed in any other way, be certain to work only with the grain. And always test first on an inconspicious spot to be sure you will be satisfied with the result.

CLEANERS which are harmless to aluminum may damage other materials on contact. And in some cases, cleaners tolerated by some materials will discolor aluminum surfaces. This is another reason for making a spot test.

Before painting aluminum, never use a polish cleaner. These products leave a wax residue which will prevent the paint from adhering properly.

When using a cleaner on a surface that is not to be painted, be sure not to use more or less water than called for in the directions.

Many persons think that if they use a stronger concentration, they will get better results. This is a dangerious practice with aluminum. As a matter of fact, it can produce unsatisfactory results with almost any kind of material. If the manufacturer recommends a specific solution of water and concentrated cleaner, follow his advice.

For either of Andy Lang's booklets, "Paint your House Inside and Out" or "Wood Finishing in the Home," send 30 cents and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope to Know How, P.O., Box 477, Huntington, N.Y. 11743. Be sure to specify which booklet you want.

Fire Extinguishers Are First Aid To Keep Small Fires From Growing

A cut finger may send you to the medicine cabinet for antiseptic, bandages, and other first-aid items. But, what do you do in case of fire in your home?

National Safety Council figures show that about 735,600 residences experienced fires in 1972. Approximately 5,400 lives were lost during 1973 in home fires.

Many of these lives were lost because people simply were not prepared to deal with accidental fires. In fact, the Southern Burn Institute estimates that less than three percent of the nation's homes have fire extinguishers.

FIRE extinguishers are considered first-aid equipment for controlling and putting out small fires before they become big ones. However, they are no substitute for the fire department in event of a major blaze, says the National Safety Council.

Having the proper fire extinguisher, knowing how to use it, and when not to use it are important in safeguarding your household. Take time to provide first-aid fire protection for your home, advises the Safety Council.

Selecting the proper extinguisher for your home is as simple as A-B-C. The key to fire extinguisher codes is as follows: A is for wood, paper, cloth, and other ordinary combustibles; B is for oil, grease, flammable liquids, and combustible gases; and C is for energized electrical and electronic equipment.

The type(s) of fire on which the extinguisher is effective is marked by these letters on the label or name plate. The number preceding the letter indicates the relative size of fire on which it is effective. Thus, a 10-B:C rated extinguisher can be used on a gas, liquid, or electrical fire roughly twice the size as that combatted effectively by a 5-B:C extinguisher.

THE THREE types of fires described above are common to most households. For this reason, an all-purpose extinguisher with a 2-A:10-B:C rating is adequate for most household uses. This may cost about $25 or $30, but less expensive extinguishers may turn out to be anything but a bargain if they can't handle your emergency needs.

As an alternative, buy several smaller extinguishers to handle different needs — such as a Class A extinguisher for the bedrooms and living area, and a class B:C extinguisher for the kitchen, workshop, and laundry area.

In any case, extinguishers won't do any good if they are not located and installed for easy use. Extinguishers should never be more than 75 feet away from class A hazards or farther than 50 feet from class B hazards. Place them in areas of potential fire hazards, but never on or near furnaces, stoves, or equipment which couldn't be approached in case it caught fire.

MAKE SURE that all members of the family know how to use fire extinguishers. Hold actual family practice sessions, if possible, but make certain you purchase a re-charge kit, or let a professional recharge it for you, afterwards.

A unit with a gauge will enable you to check to see if there is enough pressure to do the job effectively. Look for an Underwriters Laboratory, Factory Mutual, or similar testing agency seal of approval. And, don't forget to evacuate other members of the family and call the fire department first. Fire extinguishers are for use in controlling small fires, providing you have an "out" — not in combatting conflagrations.

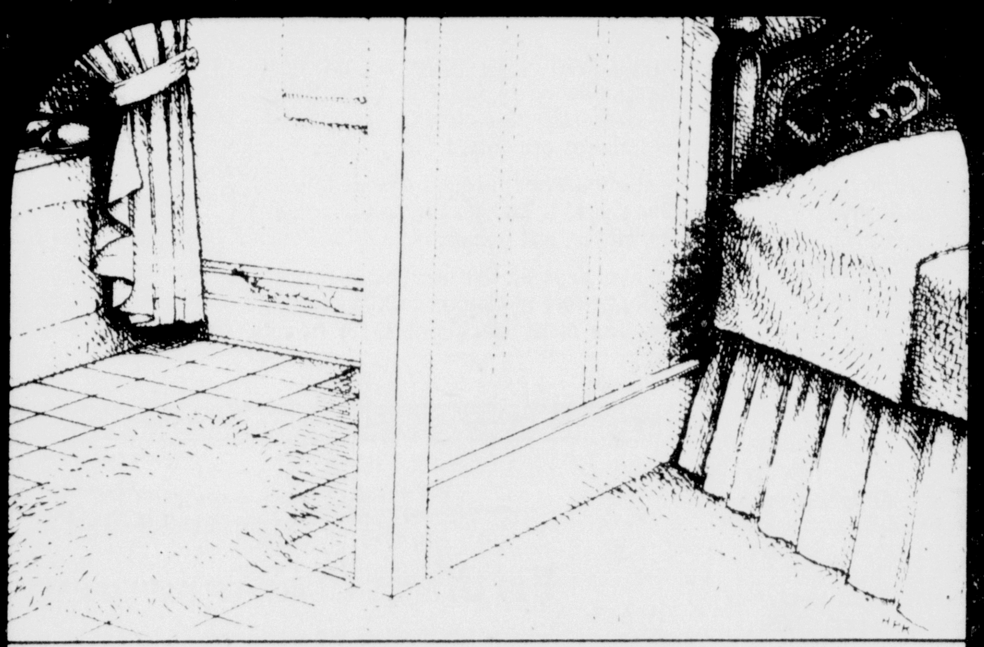
Marin Homeowner's Notebook



CHECK FOR DRAINAGE PROBLEMS NOW.

Every homeowner in Marin should get in touch with his walls immediately. Your walls can warn you about hidden water leaks or drainage problems.

Some water problems are obvious. Puddles around the house or in the garage can be easily seen (and should be corrected). But water trapped under your house, seepage under your concrete-slab floor, or hidden plumbing leaks might not be noticed. Unless your walls warn you.

Inspect the base of your inside walls on the lowest level of the house. Look for darkened circles in the paint or wallpaper. Feel along for wet or slimy areas. Sniff for musty odors in all the rooms. Be sure to move large pieces of furniture and look for mildew on the wall behind. Also look behind boxes in the closets.

These are signs that water is standing under your house instead of draining away. The water is soaking upward, spreading dampness through the walls and floors.

In time, the dampness will warp floors and damage wall and floor coverings. But far more dangerous, the dampness makes your home's understructure vulnerable to all of Marin's most destructive pests — termites, boring beetles, and dry rot. All are attracted by dampness.

So if you read the writing on the wall, call Hinkley & Gordon. We're a licensed structural pest control company. We're licensed general contractors. And with two generations of experience in Marin, we're experts at correcting drainage problems.

Home Fashion Trend To Americana

By MARIE STANTON

Americana is in.

Observers of home fashion trends have been predicting for over a year now that Americana — everything from Boston rockers to Revere silver — would come in demand as the nation's 1976 Bicentennial approached.

It looks like they're right.

Even today the spirt of '76 has influenced everything from the red, white and blue design of a coffee mug to the soft, muted weave of a needlepoint carpet.

NOT ONLY are Americans collecting the actual materials used by their forefathers such as furniture and household items, they're also accepting the reproductions of these items and typical American designs on everything from gingham sheets to blue-gray stoneware. Americana is everywhere.

As the craze for Americana has developed there's hardly any form of art or craft that isn't highly collectible today. Coins, medals, books, maps, ships' models, wrought iron tools including fireplace and kitchen equipment, builder's hardware, locks, latches and hinges all are sought.

Lighting devices for the home including lamps, candlesticks, sconces and chandeliers have been used since our country's founding to say America and whether they are antiques or reproductions, they have a devoted following.

QUENTIN PEARSON of Ideas Inc., an emporium of Early Americana in San Diego, Calif., looks upon the current rage of Americana with no surprise. He's been aware of its growing popularity for a number of years, he says.

"You feel the new trends which generally start in antique stores because certain things are purchased and sought by the avant-garde home designer who does her own work or the avant-garde interior designer who wants to have something new," explains Pearson.

Pearson cites, for example, the current popularity in unvarnished and unshellacked oak seen in current new offerings by major furniture manufacturers. Oak has been selling in antique stores for 10 years "and we have never used any varnish or shellac. We have always advocated wax. It's a soft, natural look — the 18th Century look," he added.

"Maple and pine (pine more than maple) are just raising their heads. The younger generation is discovering them. They are reaching out for bleached pine with no varnish. This very bleached-out look is the now look," Pearson said.

THE CRAZE for bleached pine may have gotten started rather inadvertently because pieces of pine furniture that had been painted were being imported from Europe. When the paint was removed, the pine had taken on a bleached look, Pearson said. Interior designers began using it and it caught on. "But we did not have a bleached pine look in the Americana period," he commented.

To Pearson and many antique collectors Americana means 1620 to the Federal period and country furniture. "It can always be country. We had cupboards made at the turn of the century and they are country and crudely done. At the same period fancy oak and walnut pieces were being made in the Victorian period.

"Americana is such a broad term. All the Hepplewhite, New York, Philadelphia and Pittsburgh makers of fine furniture had a true Americana look — the eagle finial in a broken arch and the inlaid marquetry elegantly done.

"SO AMERICANA has various connotations to various antique dealers and collectors," he believes.

"You know there was a great deal of difference between the northern and the southern homes. In the South, French and other foreign furniture was used and the wealthy Americans in the North did their homes with good Philadelphia makers from before the Revolution up to 1860," Pearson said. So some pieces early Americans lived with were more European than American influenced.

Especially sought after by collectors are woven coverlets used from early days to the mid-19th Century — especially coveted when dated, and signed by the weaver or marked with the name of the owner. Quilts, too, in any design are tremendously popular today, more so than woven coverlets.

"WOVEN coverlets haven't come back yet like quilts," explains Pearson, who also finds samplers, needlepoint and crewel done on silk, linen and cotton and any kind of needlework using embroidery important to collectors. Hooked rugs widely made in America after the 1800s and braided rugs also are in demand.

American Indian is definitely a part of Americana but it is not considered so by collectors. Americana is never considered in relation to the West, Pearson commented. About as far west as Americana goes would be Ohio with the brown glaze pottery called Rockingham after the city in Ohio, he added.

Constantly in demand today is early china with no handles on cups and deep saucers, says Pearson, who is expecting a strong comeback in the collecting of coin silver.

"THE EARLY Americans did not have banks and so they had their silver made into flatware and monogrammed it to identify it. I expect coin silver to come back very strong. Most people are hanging on to it." Coin silver has a characteristic design, the handle turns down on pieces of flatware — a characteristic until 1830 when silver was begun to be manufactured by machine.

"Coin silver was more prevalent in America than in England. The English began using sterling earlier than we did. And so their silversmiths knew how to handle sterling before ours did. Ours was more crudely done," he explains.

"Of course, early American glass has always had great popularity," explains Pearson holding a light piece of early Stiegel.

Much as some contemporary Americans may desire to furnish their homes in mint condition antiques, the old problems of money and availability crop up.

AND FOR those who either can't afford the real thing or can't find it, the nation's home fashions manufacturers are offering an alternative — reproductions.

In addition to a faithful replica of a Queen Anne highboy they're offering carpeting of the latest fibers but in a definite early American design created to give a home decorator a tool to use. Whether she uses it to create a replica of great-great-grandmother's home or whether she uses it to give a flavor to contemporary Americana, that's her choice. It's not an all-or-nothing sort of choice that many homemakers make. Rather, it's a pick-and-choose situation.

Soap And Water First When Cleaning Aluminum

By ANDY LANG

An important part of the popularity of aluminum in and around the house is that it is by nature a low maintenance material.

But aluminum products do become dirty and require occasional cleaning.

BECAUSE harsh abrasives do more harm than good, the rule of thumb about cleaning aluminum is to use the least strong cleaner that will still do the job. The No. 1 choice, therefore, is water and, after that, water and mild soap.

Aluminum siding can be effectively cleaned with a long-handled brush, preferably the hollow-handled type often used for washing a car.

If you make a practice of cleaning aluminum siding a couple of times a year, water alone will do the job. A garden hose will make it easy, but be sure the house windows and doors are closed tightly.

ALUMINUM screens should be washed once a year to keep them from building up a residue of air-borne dirt. Some persons find that the screens are easier to clean if they are sprayed with thinned screen lacquer.

A coat of lacquer or wax is also excellent for keeping newly cleaned bare aluminum from turning gray. If you use wax and it yellows after a long period of time, it can be removed with a solvent before applying a new coat.

If you are using an abrasive of any kind on a textured or grainy surface that is especially dirty and cannot be cleamed in any other way, be certain to work only with the grain. And always test first on an inconspicious spot to be sure you will be satisfied with the result.

CLEANERS which are harmless to aluminum may damage other materials on contact. And in some cases, cleaners tolerated by some materials will discolor aluminum surfaces. This is another reason for making a spot test.

Before painting aluminum, never use a polish cleaner. These products leave a wax residue which will prevent the paint from adhering properly.

When using a cleaner on a surface that is not to be painted, be sure not to use more or less water than called for in the directions.

Many persons think that if they use a stronger concentration, they will get better results. This is a dangerious practice with aluminum. As a matter of fact, it can produce unsatisfactory results with almost any kind of material. If the manufacturer recommends a specific solution of water and concentrated cleaner, follow his advice.

Fire Extinguishers Are First Aid To Keep Small Fires From Growing

A cut finger may send you to the medicine cabinet for antiseptic, bandages, and other first-aid items. But, what do you do in case of fire in your home?

National Safety Council figures show that about 735,600 residences experienced fires in 1972. Approximately 5,400 lives were lost during 1973 in home fires.

Many of these lives were lost because people simply were not prepared to deal with accidental fires. In fact, the Southern Burn Institute estimates that less than three percent of the nation's homes have fire extinguishers.

FIRE extinguishers are considered first-aid equipment for controlling and putting out small fires before they become big ones. However, they are no substitute for the fire department in event of a major blaze, says the National Safety Council.

Bulb Plants For Indoor Blooming

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Bulb plants for indoor bloom make lovely accents among other house plants. Most of them are easy to grow, and almost sure to bloom. Some are grown in soil, some in pebbles and water, some in water in special bulb glasses.

You also can pot a few of your tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, and lesser bulbs for indoor bloom chosen from your supply of bulbs bought for next spring's outdoor garden.

PERHAPS the most popular indoor bulb lower these days is the showy amaryllis. Now, in addition to the gorgeous Christmas reds, it comes in pink, white, salmon, salmon-orange, and white striped or flushed with pink. You can buy the bulbs and plant them yourself, or you can secure them preplanted both locally and from many mail-order nurseries.

The huge bulbs are planted in pots only an inch or two larger in diameter than that of the bulb, with one-third of the bulb above the soil. Water sparingly and keep in a cool place until the flower stems appear, then give more heat, light, water, and food. (For preplanted ones, follow the directions that come with them.)

After flowering, most bulbs will send up a second flower stalk, each with three or more blooms. Keep the bulb growing until next autumn, then stop watering for three months or more.

If you carry it over it should bloom again next year, but a bit later.

THE GIANT hybrid African Amaryllis include, in addition to the reds, Apple Blossom, white delicately flushed with pink; and Snow White. Burpee's has an exclusive carnival salmon-pink with white edges and center ribs.

The Royal Dutch hybrids include a frosty salmon-rose on white, sweet seventeen; orange beauty, a clear salmon-orange; Joan of Arc, white with a green throat; and royal ransom, white with vermilion-red stripes. Also the reds and pure whites. Most of these, African and Dutch, can be purchased preplanted with directions for care.

If you enjoy filling a room with perfume, try raising graceful freesias. Exquisite trumpet-shaped flowers line tall stems, pink, white, yellow, red, blue, orange-salmon, and white. The bulbs usually are sold in mixed tints.

PLANT THEM in good gritty soil, six to a five-inch pot, barely covered, and keep cool, 50 to 60 degrees. They should bloom in 10 to 12 weeks. Later, when the leaves have turned yellow, stop watering them and stow the pot in the basement or somewhere until fall, then repot and use over again.

Oxalis makes a pretty hanging basket. Plant the bulbs six to nine to a six-inch pot, shallow, in prepared potting soil. Start them on the dry side, then increase watering until growth appears. Hang the basket in a sunny window. The leaves look like shamrocks. and you can get bulbs that will yield lavender, white, or pink blossoms.

Perhaps the best known of the indoor flowering bulbs are the fragrant paper-white narcissus. Put two inches of sand or pebbles in a bowl, set the bulbs upright and add pebbles to hold them that way. Fill the bowl with water until it shows among the pebbles, then set it in a dark cool place until roots have formed, adding water if needed.

The tops will have started by then. Brng it out to good light but keep it cool.

I THINK even lovelier than the paper-whites are the yellow Soleil d'Or, also sweet-scented clusters of flowers on strong stems with thick grasslike leaves. The yellows have deep orange-red cups and take a bit longer to get started.

It is helpful to start either or both at intervals in order to have some coming into bloom in succession throughout the winter. They can be grown in soil as well as in pebbles and water.

Special hyacinth and crocus glasses are available, vase shaped with a top cup section to hold the bulb. Roman hyacinths are the best kind for growing in water. Fill the glass so the water just touches the bottom of the bulb (hyacinth or crocus) and set it in a dark, cool place until the glass is filled with roots. Add water as needed to keep it at this level.

WHEN LEAVES have formed, and the flower bud has started, bring it to a light cool place.

Crocuses also are available from some nurseries preplanted in home-size strawberry jars, from which they stick out and bloom through the openings. Specially conditioned lily-of-the-valley either preplanted or for planting in bulb fiber can be ordered from some mail-order nurseries. (The ones you might wish to transplant from the garden will not get along as house plants.)

If you are potting up tulips, and other outdoor bulbs for indoor flowering, plant them in porous clay pots, perhaps several to a pot, label them, water them well, and bury them outdoors in an opened cold frame or in a sheltered spot near the foundation, under a blanket of leaves and peat moss until midwinter.

To form roots they must be cool, moist, and dark. When the roots have formed, usually in late December or in January and February, and they show signs of sprouts, bring them to a cool, shaded place indoors.

As the tops develop put them in a sunny window to force flowering, and give them a turn each day for even bloom.

THE MAGNOLIA "Majestic Beauty" is a new shade tree that can create dense shade with its wide canopy of branches. Rather than the usual round-headed form, the new tree has a symmetrical, pyramidal form, with leaves up to 15 inches long and blooms 12 inches across. "The "Majestic Beauty" will bloom in three years and its large white flowers emit a lemon fragrance.

Lawngrasses Grow Best In Fall As Weeds Decline

By EARL ARONSON

Once again we turn to our expert Dr. Bob Schery, to tell you that except in the far South the most cherished lawngrasses — Kentucky bluegrasses, fine fescues and bentgrasses, principally — start and grow best in autumn.

"Proper sowing of a good seed mixture and a few preparatory steps almost guarantee a solid sod come spring," says the director of the Lawn institute. "The bright days with crisp nights, the penetrating rains, the seasonal decline of weeds are all on your side now. Of course you can speed things along a bit, assure more dramatic results . . ."

FIRST of all, plan your strategy. You can't expect a good-looking lawn just by tossing any cheap seed onto hard soil.

The better perennial grasses like Kentucky bluegrass, fine fescue and Highland bentgrass, spread by underground or trailing stems, enlarge the colony started by a single seed year after year.

But that tiny, single seed must find a suitable soil site where it can strike root. Cast on a packed soil it will likely wash or blow way. Therefore the first two strategic steps are:

1. CHOOSE seed of good quality, containing mostly fine-textured rather than coarse grasses the label will tell you.

2. Scratch, cultivate or somehow loosen the soil, so that the tiny seed can find a home in some crevice.

While loosening the soil, add fertilizer. The newer, light-weight lawn fertilizers are pretty high-powered, and it won't take a whole lot. Use amounts recommended on the bag, which generally run about four pounds to each 1,000 square feet of lawn. A little more is not going to hurt anything when mixed into the soil.

But even if you can't cultivate the seedbed, scatter the normal rate of fertilizer on the surface at time of seeding; rain and watering will sufficiently disperse it so as not to harm the new seed.

WITH SOILS that are low in fertility, fertilizer can make all the difference. Heavy clay soils or ones that are light and sandy, benefit from mixing in organic materials such as peat. This loosens tight soils and makes sandy ones more retentive of moisture and fertilizer nutrients.

It is not always possible to cultivate a seedbed. But you should at least scuff the surface with a rake or tined fork, or better yet with one of the powered scarifiers that can be rented from your garden center.

If your present turf is completely shot, full of unwanted types of grass, you may even want to kill it chemically before scratching the surface, to be sure unwanted vegetation does not take over again instead of the new seed.

Chemicals, such as paraquat, are available today which do not have residual toxicity in the soil; a day or two after treatment the reseeding can be completed.

IF YOU have raked the soil well, don't bother to roll, which may recompact the soil surface and retard insoak of rain. The best way to sow seed is with a spreader. You may do it by hand, casting half the required amount, usually three to four pounds to each 1,000 square feet in one direction, then the other half at right angles.

Once seeding is completed, insure it by mulching with any loose, inert material (hay or straw) spread over the new seeding to keep it from drying out or being washed away by heavy rain. Water daily and within three weeks there should be a fuzz of green. Then lift the mulch if it won't decay.

The Trees That Resist Pollutants

A new 12-page publication produced by the U.S. Forest Service identifies major tree species that have various levels of tolerance to air pollution.

The booklet, "Trees for Polluted Air," originally produced by the Forest Service's Northeastern Forest Experiment Station in Upper Darby, Pa., identifies air pollutants and their effect on more than 200 softwoods and hardwoods used as commercial timber species as well as ornamentals.

The Modesto Ash and most Sycamores are listed as having a high tolerance to air pollutants while such trees as the Ponderosa Pine and some Maples have a low tolerance and are very sensitive.

The booklet is available free of charge from the U.S. Forest Service, Room 529, 630 Sansome Street, San Francisco, 94111.

THE WEEKLY CHECKLIST FOR MARIN GARDENERS

Here is the Marin gardener's check list for the coming week.

✓Scatter snail bait around newly-planted winter annuals.

✓Thin camellia buds now for bigger and better blooms later on.

✓Plant ground covers this month and next so they can establish themselves during winter and be ready for good new growth in spring.

Pansies, Violas Can Put On Winter Show

Pansies and violas are an old fashioned pair that will brighten dreary days and add cheer to your winter garden.

In many parts of California they will add color winter through spring. They do bloom the most profusely in spring, but if planted early, pansies and violas will put on a special winter show.

Pansies and violas are long-time favorites of flower gardeners. Botanically, they are members of the viola family which also includes Johnny-jump-ups and violets.

BOTH ARE perennials but in California we treat them as annuals — which makes them ideal winter planting pals.

The time for planting pansies and violas is now says the California Association of Nurserymen. Young plants should have as much of fall's good growing weather as possible to be at their best for cool season bloom. Seedlings should be transplanted from flats into your garden as soon as possible.

Pansies and violas like a loose rich loamy soil that is well drained. If you have trouble with boggy soil after winter rains, try planting Pansies and Violas in raised beds or in tubs, window boxes or in hanging baskets. In soils with good drainage, pansies and violas massed together or bordering spring bulbs are a spectacular sight. For a massed effect, plant them about 8 inches apart.

TO KEEP them looking their best, pinch back leggy looking flowers to get uniform and compacted growth. Pansies and violas make excellent cut flowers — lasting up to 3 or 4 days in the house.

Pansies and violas can be planted right through winter in mild areas. The earlier they are planted, the earlier the color show will start. You may have to watch out for snails and slugs seeking out a pre-spring salad. If you see any signs of these pests chewing on your pansies and violas, scatter snail bait around the planting areas.

CAMELLIA'S SHOW STYLE THROUGH THE SEASONS

Camellias have been gracefully decorating California gardens since the 1850's. If you are a camellia connoisseur, you don't have to wait until winter or spring for the show to start in your garden.

For sasanqua camellias, fall is the season. Indian summer days and nippy fall nights are the signals for sasanquas to set their delicate blooms. They will bloom profusely all through autumn and early winter.

Their single or double petaled blossoms emerge in colors ranging from soft whites and pale pinks to glorious shades of reds. (Some sasanquas even add a light fragrance to subtle fall breezes.)

YOU WILL find sasanqua varieties available in densely bushing to vinelike forms — which makes them multi-purpose garden shrubs. They can be planted as single shrubs, as informal hedges or as ground covers.

Their delicate appearance makes sasanquas excellent choices for planting against walls or on trellises. Vining varieties make unusual accents for patios or entryways when planted in hanging baskets or in tubs.

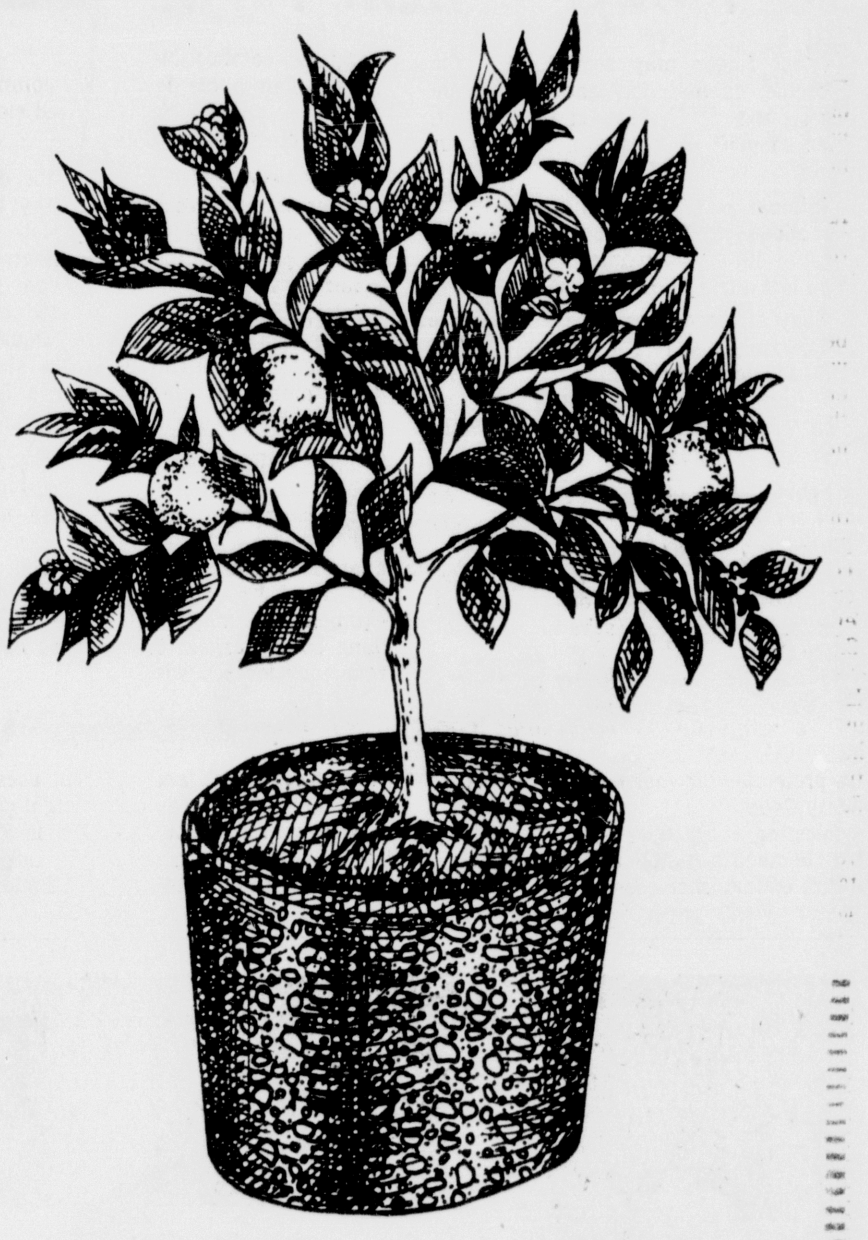
All camellias like a light acid soil that is rich in organic material and sasanquas are no exception says the California Association of Nurserymen. When preparing the soil for planting sasanquas, dig a hole large enough for the size shrub you are planting and add some camellia planting mix.

YOUR nurseryman can help you select the proper mix. When planting, make sure the shrub's trunk base is at ground level and not below.

Once the shrubs are planted water them in well with a slow stream of water from the hose. Sasanquas grow well in full sun or part shade and should be fed with camellia food in March and July.

When mixed with other camellia shrubs, sasanquas will steal the show in fall and then provide a glossy dark green background to set off later blooming species.

ZINNIAS are a good example of the annuals which are easy to grow in garden or containers and need little care. Zinnias come in a variety of sizes and the plant shown above is a "Sombrero," a miniature hybrid, which makes an eye-catching decoration.



A DWARF ORANGE TREE, grown in a distinctive container makes an attractive decoration for the patio, adds beauty to a garden and produces nutritious, delicious fruit.

Dwarf Citrus Highlights Gardens, Patios, Porches

With its enticing and fragrant blossoms, tasty fruits and glossy foliage, a dwarf citrus will provide a lovely highlight for that special spot in your garden.

The shrub will not only bring you the satisfaction of growing your own fruit, but when it is fruiting, it will be your garden's star ornamental attraction.

DWARF CITRUS can be planted against the side of your house to trap heat and protect it from wind damage, or you can plant your favorite variety in a tub. As a tub specimen, Dwarf Citrus makes a perfect interest accent for a patio or entryway.

This type of planting allows the "dwarf" to be moved to take advantage of the best exposure at all times of the year. Dwarf citrus varieties may be planted as a hedge or as a formal or informal espalier for use against walls and fences. When grown as a hedge, the small trees will grow from four to ten feet high with a spread of up to eight feet.

You may be surprised to find that most varieties of citrus are available on dwarf stock. In areas where some varieties do poorly as standard-size trees, they will thrive as dwarfs.

COMMONLY grown dwarf citrus include oranges, grapefruit, limes, kumquats, mandarins, and lemons. The pondorosa lemon, for instance, makes a spectacular espalier with its huge fruit — children especially will marvel at their bigger than baseball size.

Basically your dwarf citrus will require little care. Keep it slightly dry and apply a light fertilizer occasionally and only after the tree is well established. Actually, after your dwarf citrus has been planted, your main job will be to just enjoy its fresh looks, sweet-smelling blossoms and the delicious fruits.

The Right Light For Those Indoor Plants

Most plants you grow indoors need more light than they can get through the windows, and the American Association of Nurserymen has some pointers on the subject:

Foliage plants do best under fluorescent light, but flowering plants need a bit of incandescent lighting added to get some of the far-red rays from the color spectrum. Figure one watt of incandescent lighting for every three of fluorescent.

Bulb Plants For Indoor Blooming

By MILLICENT TAYLOR

Bulb plants for indoor bloom make lovely accents among other house plants. Most of them are easy to grow, and almost sure to bloom. Some are grown in soil, some in pebbles and water, some in water in special bulb glasses.

You also can pot a few of your tulips, daffodils, hyacinths, and lesser bulbs for indoor bloom chosen from your supply of bulbs bought for next spring's outdoor garden.

PERHAPS the most popular indoor bulb lower these days is the showy amaryllis. Now, in addition to the gorgeous Christmas reds, it comes in pink, white, salmon, salmon-orange, and white striped or flushed with pink. You can buy the bulbs and plant them yourself, or you can secure them preplanted both locally and from many mail-order nurseries.

The huge bulbs are planted in pots only an inch or two larger in diameter than that of the bulb, with one-third of the bulb above the soil. Water sparingly and keep in a cool place until the flower stems appear, then give more heat, light, water, and food. (For preplanted ones, follow the directions that come with them.)

After flowering, most bulbs will send up a second flower stalk, each with three or more blooms. Keep the bulb growing until next autumn, then stop watering for three months or more.

If you carry it over it should bloom again next year, but a bit later.

THE GIANT hybrid African Amaryllis include, in addition to the reds, Apple Blossom, white delicately flushed with pink; and Snow White. Burpee's has an exclusive carnival salmon-pink with white edges and center ribs.

The Royal Dutch hybrids include a frosty salmon-rose on white, sweet seventeen; orange beauty, a clear salmon-orange; Joan of Arc, white with a green throat; and royal ransom, white with vermilion-red stripes. Also the reds and pure whites. Most of these, African and Dutch, can be purchased preplanted with directions for care.

If you enjoy filling a room with perfume, try raising graceful freesias. Exquisite trumpet-shaped flowers line tall stems, pink, white, yellow, red, blue, orange-salmon, and white. The bulbs usually are sold in mixed tints.

PLANT THEM in good gritty soil, six to a five-inch pot, barely covered, and keep cool, 50 to 60 degrees. They should bloom in 10 to 12 weeks. Later, when the leaves have turned yellow, stop watering them and stow the pot in the basement or somewhere until fall, then repot and use over again.

Oxalis makes a pretty hanging basket. Plant the bulbs six to nine to a six-inch pot, shallow, in prepared potting soil. Start them on the dry side, then increase watering until growth appears. Hang the basket in a sunny window. The leaves look like shamrocks. and you can get bulbs that will yield lavender, white, or pink blossoms.

Perhaps the best known of the indoor flowering bulbs are the fragrant paper-white narcissus. Put two inches of sand or pebbles in a bowl, set the bulbs upright and add pebbles to hold them that way. Fill the bowl with water until it shows among the pebbles, then set it in a dark cool place until roots have formed, adding water if needed.

The tops will have started by then. Brng it out to good light but keep it cool.

I THINK even lovelier than the paper-whites are the yellow Soleil d'Or, also sweet-scented clusters of flowers on strong stems with thick grasslike leaves. The yellows have deep orange-red cups and take a bit longer to get started.

It is helpful to start either or both at intervals in order to have some coming into bloom in succession throughout the winter. They can be grown in soil as well as in pebbles and water.

Special hyacinth and crocus glasses are available, vase shaped with a top cup section to hold the bulb. Roman hyacinths are the best kind for growing in water. Fill the glass so the water just touches the bottom of the bulb (hyacinth or crocus) and set it in a dark, cool place until the glass is filled with roots. Add water as needed to keep it at this level.

WHEN LEAVES have formed, and the flower bud has started, bring it to a light cool place.

Crocuses also are available from some nurseries preplanted in home-size strawberry jars, from which they stick out and bloom through the openings. Specially conditioned lily-of-the-valley either preplanted or for planting in bulb fiber can be ordered from some mail-order nurseries. (The ones you might wish to transplant from the garden will not get along as house plants.)

If you are potting up tulips, and other outdoor bulbs for indoor flowering, plant them in porous clay pots, perhaps several to a pot, label them, water them well, and bury them outdoors in an opened cold frame or in a sheltered spot near the foundation, under a blanket of leaves and peat moss until midwinter.

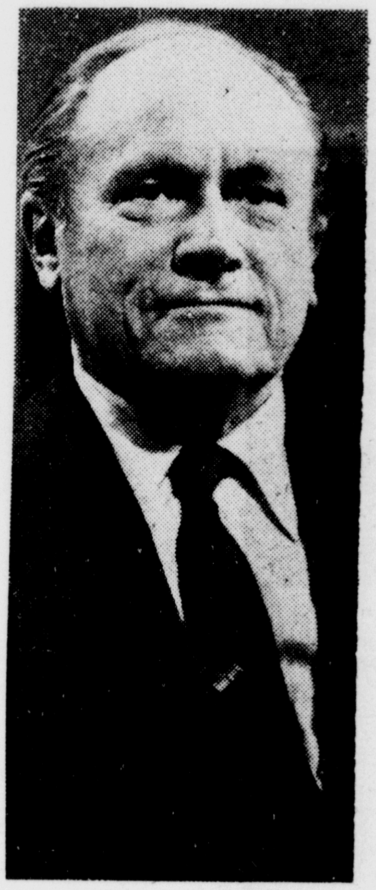
Ratings Don't Worry Russ TV Newsmen

MOSCOW (AP) — The CBS Evening News, the ABC Evening News and the NBC Nightly News Report have to worry about ratings and sponsors in the United States. But "Vreemya" doesn't have to worry about either.

It's the only major TV news show in town or country here. Its name means "time" and it starts at a time — 9 p.m. — most American channels are filled with gunsmoke, comedy or Midwestern family dramas.



E.G. MARSHALL is but one of the stars who appear in the public television program, "Drink, Drank, Drunk," which will be shown over KQED, Channel 9 at 8 p.m. on Monday. The program, hosted by Carol Burnett, was produced by WQED/Pittsburgh with a grant from the 3M Company, It will feature dramatic readings and vignettes, comedy sketches, music and discussions targeted at the estimated 35 million Americans who live and work with alcoholics. Marshall will read a poem about a young boy's encounter with his drunken father.

"Vreemya" viewers don't learn about car wrecks, dissident demonstrations or Moscow's most recent murder. What they do learn is the status of the harvest, which factories are meeting what production quotas and the names of the latest official visitors to the Soviet capital.

Television news in Russia isn't burdened by the charge often made against U.S. network news — that it presents a steady diet of doom, uproar and conflict on the home front.

Here, TV newsmen and women take a leaf from an old Johnny Mercer song — they accentuate the positive and limit, if not eliminate, the negative. And they try not to mess with Mr. In-Between.

Even more than the Soviet print media, televison here stays away from bad news, unless it happens in another country.

The editorial policy was neatly summed up when a Soviet, watching a TV report on the harvesting of corn in Novosibirsk, was asked by a visitor if the harvest had been successful.

"Of course," he replied. "Otherwise, it wouldn't have been shown."

"Vreemya," like its American network counterparts, lasts 30 minutes each night. It is beamed throughout Russia on the country's main TV channel.

For those who miss the prime time news, there also are a pair of 10-minute newscasts which appear at 6 p.m. and shortly before the midnight sign-off each evening.

Like American network news shows, an anchorman here sits behind a desk, reading the day's news while slides illustrating the stories occasionally are flashed behind him on a screen.

Filmed reports also are shown, with reporters often pictured interviewing their subjects or simply standing before a particular scene, giving a summary of the matter at hand.

Unlike the American networks, there are more women on the air in the commercial-less brand of Russian TV news.

The anchorman on "Vreemya" is joined by an anchorwoman in delivering the nightly report and at least half the reporters on all three Soviet news shows are women.

The anchormen tent to resemble the American breed — relatively good-looking, dressed more fashionably than other men and possessed of deep, resonant voices.

There's more variety on the feminine side of the anchor desk. One of the most commonly used anchorwomen is a pretty, young brunette with a sultry voice, while another is a buxom, middle-aged grandmotherly type.

Here, as in the United States, television news folk are well-known names. Unlike most of their American counterparts, they often appear as masters of ceremonies or announcers on other Soviet TV programs.

"Happy-talk" news, a fixture on many local stations in the United States, is nyet-nyet here. The news is considered a serious subject and is delivered seriously, with nary a grin, quip or pun.

For viewers used to American newscasts, in which any story longer than two minutes is considered an epic, TV news here might seem extremely slow of pace and long of wind. It concentrates heavily on wreath-layings, speeches and factories which overproduce their quotas.

Five minutes of a recent news program, for example, were devoted to a report on the production of animal feed, complete with a long list of statistics and a film report.

Unless it concerns Eastern Europe, news about other countries usually focuses on conflicts or problems. The recent turmoil in Mozambique and the Cyprus fighting received big play on Moscow TV.

And Soviet correspondents in Italy and Denmark recently did stories on the rampant inflation there, shooting films of items on store shelves and commenting on the drastic rise in prices.

But a viewer here rarely gets information about the lives of average Soviet citizens during TV news programs.

There are occasions when it happens. Last September, "Vreemya" aired a delightful three-minute story about Moscow tots at their first day of school — showing them standing in line, meeting their teachers and bursting into tears after leaving their mothers.

Sports and weather news are by no means ignored. They get a total of five minutes at the end of each night's program.

The most frequently used sportscaster, Mikolai Ozerov, reminds one of many American sports announcers. A burly, white-haired man, he gets involved with the home teams, cheering them on when they're winning and groaning when they lose.

Then come the weather girls, but they're not on screen merely to decorate it and giggle their way through the day's high and low temperatures in various parts of Mother Russia.

They are real meteorologists, who seriously discuss weather conditions and problems. And unlike their U.S. counterparts, male or female, they aren't ever razzed by the gang at the anchor desk.

Frank Gifford—Soap Opera Hero Of Monday Night Football

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Gifford has as many devout viewers among men as the leading soap opera heroine does among housewives.

When he broadcasts "NFL Monday Night Football" the former all pro New York Giants halfback flanker can be seen and heard in the home of every football fan in the country, not to mention those in the taverns.

An All America at the University of Southern California, Gifford remains an ardent football fan, admitting he would see at least one game a week even if he did not earn his living broadcasting games.

Gifford lives on an estate in Westchester County, N.Y. The 50-year-old house was built on the foundation of an ancient dairy. He moved there a dozen years ago and has no plans to return to California.

He and his wife, Maxine a USC homecoming queen in 1949, were married in 1951. They are the parents of Jeff, 22; Kyle, 19; and Vicki, 17. Jeff is a colorado lumberjack. Kyle is a student at Colorado College. Both were high school football stars who prefer skiing to the gridiron sports.

Each Saturday Gifford still attends football games at Scarsdale High School, where his sons played and where Vicki was a cheerleader. He enjoys those games more than college or professional versions.

During football season Gifford is involved with the Monday night game all week long. He drives into Manhattan every day to ABC headquarters after a self prepared breakfast of coffee and grapefruit.

He telephones the coaches of the teams who will be playing that week, studies the official films of their most recent games. Then he does statistical work and draws his spotting board for the contest.

On Saturday nights he flies from New York to whichever city the game of the week is scheduled. He devotes Sunday to watching practice, checking on broadcasting equipment at the stadium and readying his notes.

All the homework makes him the most knowledgable football broadcaster in the business.

In addition to his football chores, Gifford broadcasts his own show from New York's WABC-TV. He also broadcasts scores of sports specials from basketball to volleyball, which leaves him little time of his own.

He weighs 10 pounds less than he did in his football days at USC. He keeps fit by swimming regularly in his heated pool and playing a lot of tennis.

His home almost adjoins Wingedfoot Golf Club where Gifford plays as often as he can in the off season.

He purposely allowed his four acres of trees and rocks to remain wild and unbeautified by flower beds or lawns. He enjoys the primitive feeling.

HOLLYWOOD (UPI) — Frank Gifford has as many devout viewers among men as the leading soap opera heroine does among housewives.

When he broadcasts "NFL Monday Night Football" the former all pro New York Giants halfback flanker can be seen and heard in the home of every football fan in the country, not to mention those in the taverns.

An All America at the University of Southern California, Gifford remains an ardent football fan, admitting he would see at least one game a week even if he did not earn his living broadcasting games.

Gifford lives on an estate in Westchester County, N.Y. The 50-year-old house was built on the foundation of an ancient dairy. He moved there a dozen years ago and has no plans to return to California.

He and his wife, Maxine a USC homecoming queen in 1949, were married in 1951. They are the parents of Jeff, 22; Kyle, 19; and Vicki, 17. Jeff is a colorado lumberjack. Kyle is a student at Colorado College. Both were high school football stars who prefer skiing to the gridiron sports.

Each Saturday Gifford still attends football games at Scarsdale High School, where his sons played and where Vicki was a cheerleader. He enjoys those games more than college or professional versions.

During football season Gifford is involved with the Monday night game all week long. He drives into Manhattan every day to ABC headquarters after a self prepared breakfast of coffee and grapefruit.

He telephones the coaches of the teams who will be playing that week, studies the official films of their most recent games. Then he does statistical work and draws his spotting board for the contest.

On Saturday nights he flies from New York to whichever city the game of the week is scheduled. He devotes Sunday to watching practice, checking on broadcasting equipment at the stadium and readying his notes.

All the homework makes him the most knowledgable football broadcaster in the business.

In addition to his football chores, Gifford broadcasts his own show from New York's WABC-TV. He also broadcasts scores of sports specials from basketball to volleyball, which leaves him little time of his own.

He weighs 10 pounds less than he did in his football days at USC. He keeps fit by swimming regularly in his heated pool and playing a lot of tennis.

His home almost adjoins Wingedfoot Golf Club where Gifford plays as often as he can in the off season.

He purposely allowed his four acres of trees and rocks to remain wild and unbeautified by flower beds or lawns. He enjoys the primitive feeling.

The Old Bubble-Maker Believes He's Really A Jazzman At Heart

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence Welk. A name synonymous with the accordion, polkas, champagne bubbles, ceaseless smiles, brisk and forgettable music arrangements, fox-trotting ancients and innocent corn.

It therefore comes as a surprise to learn the 71-year-old master of the chest Steinway is a jazz nut who tried to play some jazz when he was beginning, only to find his prairie audiences didn't dig it.

"I am, basically deep in my heart, a jazz musician, Dixieland jazz," he says. "In my early life, I was buying all the Red Nichols records, the things by Miff Mole, Bix Beiderbecke, Frankie Trumbauer, right down the line. That's my favorite type of music."

Welk, whose career started in 1925 with "George Kelly's Peerless Entertainers," was in New York to drum up business for his second book, "Ah-One, Ah-Two," the title taken from the familiar downbeat he's given his band on television the past 23 years.

The book, put together with the help of writer Bernice McGeehan, chronicles how he kept his TV show afloat when ABC canceled it in 1971 after a 16-year run. He started his TV career in 1955 on KTLA, a Los Angeles station.

Welk, who spoke in a soft, gentle voice which had only a hint of the German accent that makes him any mimic's favorite, observed with some satisfaction that his syndicated TV show is on 251 stations this season.

As in the past three seasons, he said, he'll do 32 shows this year, of which 20 will be repeated, with his "Musical Family" of 29 musicians and 17 singers and dancers.

Many of them have been with Welk virtually all their professional lives, people like accordionist Myron Floren or bass trombonist Barney Liddell, the band's most veteran veteran with 27 years on the stand.

Although the music Welk's orchestra plays is pure Middle America, lacking flashy riffs and earth-shaking solos, the band itself is a crisply professional unit which in its own way plays with the same well-drilled precision that always has been the hallmark of the famous big jazz band of Count Basie.

It isn't too surprising, then, to find that Welk puts the Basie band high on his list of favorites: "I've always enjoyed Count Basie's band on account of the tightness and solidness he's always come up with."

His other favorites are those of Woody Herman and Buddy Rich, although "I like the Glenn Miller and Tommy Dorsey type of music arrangements a little bit better.

"I also liked the Benny Goodman type of band, where you had that good saxophone section."

Welk grinned and acknowledged that "I have the reputation of being a square. But I don't resent it." He was asked why he never tried to carve out a career in jazz if his heart was that much in it.

"I am a businessman," said Welk, born on a farm near Strasburg, N.D. "And I lost my band several times trying to play a little bit more jazz than they liked.

"And I learned that if I'm going to be in the business and be a successful musician, I have to learn and evolve a style the people like.

"And I go out on tour every year to learn what the folks like and don't like. And I learn a great deal from them. There's no other way you can learn it."

Welk, now one of the more famous residents of the wealthy coastal suburb of Pacific Palisades, doesn't have any financial worries. Why does he keep his band and his show going?

"I think it's because of the love I have for the business, the system we use, the concept we use, which is a family type of operation," he said, and added unashamedly: "In one sense, they're my children."

Welk, who also has three children and grandchildren of his own, smiled. "My wife kind of gave me a hard time the other day.

"She said, 'You promised me you'd retire when you're 65 and there doesn't seem to be any signs you're going to do that. At 71' " — Welk laughed softly — " ' you seem to be away from home more than ever.'

"And I said, 'Well, you're so right and I know exactly what you're talking about.' "

"You know, life has been wonderful for me and my family," he said. "And it's kind of difficult for me to tell the musicians and singers and dancers, 'Well, we have made it. You guys go and see where you can do for yourselves.'

"They have been with me for such a long time and we've had such a close-knit musical family that I feel it would be wrong to do that.

"Besides that, I must admit there is a great joy for me to stand in front of my band when they operate with such a high level of perfection and such good will in so many different ways."

STILL A FAVORITE, maestro Lawrence Welk is a music master who has stood the test of time. At 71, Welk isn't planning retirement. He wants to stay with his musical family, playing arrangements that people like.

The Old Bubble-Maker Believes He's Really A Jazzman At Heart

NEW YORK (AP) — Lawrence Welk. A name synonymous with the accordion, polkas, champagne bubbles, ceaseless smiles, brisk and forgettable music arrangements, fox-trotting ancients and innocent corn.

It therefore comes as a surprise to learn the 71-year-old master of the chest Steinway is a jazz nut who tried to play some jazz when he was beginning, only to find his prairie audiences didn't dig it.

"I am, basically deep in my heart, a jazz musician, Dixieland jazz," he says. "In my early life, I was buying all the Red Nichols records, the things by Miff Mole, Bix Beiderbecke, Frankie Trumbauer, right down the line. That's my favorite type of music."

Welk, whose career started in 1925 with "George Kelly's Peerless Entertainers," was in New York to drum up business for his second book, "Ah-One, Ah-Two," the title taken from the familiar downbeat he's given his band on television the past 23 years.

JON VOIGHT WILL be narrator for the series "Go" when the program takes viewers to the treacherous Chattooga River in Georgia, Saturday at 11:30 a.m. on Channels 3 and 4. Voight will explain the training needed to shoot the rapids of the river where the film "Deliverance" (in which he stars) was made.

'All In The Family' Now Plays For Viewers In Malaysia

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Midway into its second successful season, "All in the Family" is still leaving foreigners in Malaysia and Singapore wondering how in the world enough locals can be tuning in to such gamey Americana to keep it going.

The Archie Bunkers would be amazed. It turns out the Chinese, Malay and Indian folk who do the watching aren't so dumb.

And there are enough of them, reports Harun Din, the government official in Kuala Lumpur responsible for programing on the state-run network, to have renewed the series once and probably to do so again.

"We took it off for awhile but so many viewers wrote in saying they missed it, we put it back in the schedule," Din says.

"It's quite popular smong the English-speaking. Not as popular as Mannix, maybe, but certainly its one of the best of the comedy imports."

"All in the Family" goes on the air at 10 p.m. on Thursdays in Malaysia and is picked up throughout the western wing of the country and in neighboring Singapore, reaching a potential audience of a couple of million viewers.

But indeed what do Asians far removed in distance and predelictions from the Bunkers living room find to respond to?

"Oh, its quite easy to follow," Din says. "We're not that unfamiliar with American people and politics, you know."

What about Archies racial and ethnic slurs assaulting the tender ears of sensitive Orientals? Din admits his government censors out some of it, but not all. The Bunker lip turned on Jews, blacks and Poles stays in. Anything that might offend Arabs — Malaysia's a Moslem country — or any large part of the local population comes out.

There's obviously enough left in to reach plenty of viewers, some of whom talk about the same recognition of the Bunker household that creates the pull on the American audience.

"In a way, I like the show partly because Archie is an ordinary worker, just like me," Kuala Lumpur auto mechanic Hashim Abdul Rahman, 25, says. In all the other shows from America, everyone is drivin big cars and flying in airplanes."

Rahman admits he can't understand why "Archie calls his son-in-law Meathead" but "I know there is a racial angle involved and its great how Americans can make shows that make fun of race differences."

ISABEL SANFORD portrays Louise Jefferson, neighbor to the Bunkers, on "All in the Family," aired Saturday nights at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10. The show is aired Thursday nights in Malaysia.

ANNETTE BURTON and John Brice prepare to deal with a burglar, on "Burglur-Proofing," Friday at 12:30 p.m. on Channel 9.

SUPERSTAR DAVID BOWIE will perform the brand of rock he has become famous for in a D.A. Pennebaker film of a concert at London's Hammersmith Odeon, on the "Wild World of Entertainment: In Concert" show, to be seen Friday at 11:30 p.m. on Channels 7 and 11.

JON VOIGHT WILL be narrator for the series "Go" when the program takes viewers to the treacherous Chattooga River in Georgia, Saturday at 11:30 a.m. on Channels 3 and 4. Voight will explain the training needed to shoot the rapids of the river where the film "Deliverance" (in which he stars) was made.

'All In The Family' Now Plays For Viewers In Malaysia

SINGAPORE (UPI) — Midway into its second successful season, "All in the Family" is still leaving foreigners in Malaysia and Singapore wondering how in the world enough locals can be tuning in to such gamey Americana to keep it going.

The Archie Bunkers would be amazed. It turns out the Chinese, Malay and Indian folk who do the watching aren't so dumb.

And there are enough of them, reports Harun Din, the government official in Kuala Lumpur responsible for programing on the state-run network, to have renewed the series once and probably to do so again.

"We took it off for awhile but so many viewers wrote in saying they missed it, we put it back in the schedule," Din says.

"It's quite popular smong the English-speaking. Not as popular as Mannix, maybe, but certainly its one of the best of the comedy imports."

"All in the Family" goes on the air at 10 p.m. on Thursdays in Malaysia and is picked up throughout the western wing of the country and in neighboring Singapore, reaching a potential audience of a couple of million viewers.

But indeed what do Asians far removed in distance and predelictions from the Bunkers living room find to respond to?

"Oh, its quite easy to follow," Din says. "We're not that unfamiliar with American people and politics, you know."

What about Archies racial and ethnic slurs assaulting the tender ears of sensitive Orientals? Din admits his government censors out some of it, but not all. The Bunker lip turned on Jews, blacks and Poles stays in. Anything that might offend Arabs — Malaysia's a Moslem country — or any large part of the local population comes out.

There's obviously enough left in to reach plenty of viewers, some of whom talk about the same recognition of the Bunker household that creates the pull on the American audience.

"In a way, I like the show partly because Archie is an ordinary worker, just like me," Kuala Lumpur auto mechanic Hashim Abdul Rahman, 25, says. In all the other shows from America, everyone is drivin big cars and flying in airplanes."

Rahman admits he can't understand why "Archie calls his son-in-law Meathead" but "I know there is a racial angle involved and its great how Americans can make shows that make fun of race differences."

ISABEL SANFORD portrays Louise Jefferson, neighbor to the Bunkers, on "All in the Family," aired Saturday nights at 8 p.m. on Channels 5 and 10. The show is aired Thursday nights in Malaysia.

"THE STORE YOU KNOW BECAUSE YOU HELPED US GROW"

Ask Them Yourself

Want to ask a famous person a question? Send the question on a postcard, to "Ask," Family Weekly, 641 Lexington Ave., New York, N. Y. 10022. We'll pay $5 for published questions. Sorry, we can't answer others.

FOR HELEN GURLEY BROWN,
editor of "Cosmopolitan" magazine

Do you think that posing nude for the "Cosmopolitan" centerfold helped or hindered Burt Reynolds' career?—S. S., Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

● Helped. If he hadn't been a good actor in the first place, it wouldn't have, but stars sometimes need that special event or happening to catapult them to the next plateau. After posing for "Cosmopolitan," and after the extraordinary worldwide publicity that resulted, Burt wanted to forget his association with us. He has not been especially gracious. Too bad about that. We were lucky and grateful that he posed—but I think he was lucky too.

FOR DON SHULA, coach of the Miami Dolphins

With all the traveling you do with the Dolphins, how do you manage to find time to spend with your family?—Nancy Bowen, San Rafael, Calif.

● I include them in my own activities whenever possible. My oldest son, David, helps our equipment manager during training camp and takes game statistics. My youngest son, Mike, goes on road trips with the team. My daughters were members of the "Dolphin Dolls" cheering squad for a while, too.

FOR SEN. HENRY M. JACKSON (D-Wash.)

Who gave you your nickname of "Scoop"—and when? —Larry La Jacono, W. Hyattsville, Md.

● When I was small, my older sister, Gertrude, detected a similarity between me and a comic-strip character, Scoop, the Cub Reporter. She noticed his technique of getting others to do his work for him, and my habit of having other kids in the neighborhood help me with my chores. She called me "Scoop"—and it stuck.

FOR ABIGAIL VAN BUREN ("Dear Abby")

How can you tell if a letter asking for advice is genuine? —M. W., Cooksville, Ill.

● That's like asking an experienced jeweler if he can tell the difference between a diamond and a piece of glass! A perceptive person can spot a phony letter just as he can spot a phony personality. A writer's obvious, clumsy, amateurish attempts at creative writing give him away immediately. Ironically, it's not the circumstances. The most bizarre and unlikely tales are the real ones.

FOR JACKIE GLEASON

How did the phrase "And away we go" originate?—Robert Poulette, Albany, N.Y.

● Whenever I got bored at a party, I'd get up and say to my friends, "And away we go!" And away we went! The remark stuck—and I'm still using it.

FOR EARL WILSON, author and columnist

Of all the celebrities you have interviewed, who are your favorites?—Nat R. Rutherford, San Antonio, Texas

● Marilyn Monroe, Ernest Hemingway, Groucho Marx, George S. Kaufman and Caesar Petrillo.

FOR MARY TYLER MOORE

How are your clothes chosen for your show?—F. G., Redondo Beach, Calif.

● I go to the showroom of Norman Todd, where I pick out what I want from his collection. As I'm supposed to be an office worker, I very often wear the same outfit more than once. The clothes are the property of the studio, but when they've "had it," I'm allowed to take them home. I try to stick to tailored styles for dresses, and neat, chic fashions for pantsuits. Off screen, those are the styles I go for too.

FOR CONNIE FRANCIS

Are you thinking of coming back to TV? And are you married?—Mollie Goldstein; Pembroke Pines, Fla.

● I've been married to Joe Garzilla for almost a year. He's in the travel business. I'm doing a great deal of shopping, traveling with my husband, relaxing—all the things I neglected when my schedule was dominated by my show-business life. Until I feel like getting back to work, I'm vacationing. Other than recordings, I'm devoting my time to my marriage.

FOR DR. BENJAMIN SPOCK

At what age should parents discuss sex with their children? —Mrs. R. D., Utica, N.Y.

● At two and a half or three or three and a half—whenever they bring it up. Children at that age are very good at putting their parents at ease. Adolescents need counseling most, but most teenagers—particularly boys—don't want to ask parents questions. When a child says, "I know all about it," what the youngster is really saying is, "It would drive me crazy to discuss it with my own parent."

FOR THE ASK THEM YOURSELF EDITOR

Has the late Duke Ellington's orchestra been disbanded, or has someone taken it over?—J. M., Montgomery, Ala.

● Mercer Ellington, son of the late bandleader, is carrying on his father's work by conducting the orchestra, restoring the old arrangements (dating back to the late '20's), arranging current music and playing the trumpet. He's also going through his father's memorabilia in preparation for the biography he's writing about him, and is involved with the Duke Ellington Foundation (set up before Duke's death) to aid poor musicians afflicted by cancer. Mercer's been with the band since 1950. He's proud of the fact that on the bandstand he and his father maintained an impersonal relationship: "I got praised and yelled at," he says, "just like anyone else."

The Wise and Funny Things Kids Can Teach Us About Religion

"My neighbor's little girl has a special prayer: 'Please, God, make the bad people good— and the good people nice.'"

Jill Krementz

Joey Adams and a friend: "We need all the sense of humor we can gather."

Whatever our religious beliefs, we need all the sense of humor we can gather to appreciate the joy of watching our youngsters grow into their faith.

Dick Van Dyke, who used to be a Sunday school teacher, says, "For that job you must have the wisdom of Solomon, the patience of Job, the courage of David. You must teach like St. Paul, lead like Moses, and stay cool under fire like Shadrach."

Here are some of my favorite stories about kids—and what we all can learn from them:

One six-year-old boy was reprimanded by his Sunday school teacher. "You've been nothing but trouble," he said to the youngster. "You're just a rotten kid."

The little boy answered: "That's not true. God made me, and He didn't make no junk."

A teacher asked her Sunday school class to tell the story of creation. One little girl raised her hand with the answer. "First, God created Adam. Then He looked at him and said, 'I think I would do better if I tried again.' So He created Eve."

"And now, children, who can tell me what we must do before we can expect forgiveness of sin?" The teacher asked

"Well," said little Simon, "first, we've got to sin."

You'll never be able to top the story of the seven-year-old little girl who was sent up to bed after dinner. "Say good night to all our guests," her mom told her, "and don't forget to say your prayers."

"Okay," said the child. "Anybody need anything?'

This youngster came home from Sunday school and his father asked what he had learned. "The rabbi told us a wonderful story," the kid said, "about the Jews that were chased out of Egypt and they came to the Red Sea. When they saw the Egyptians following them, they built a bridge over the Red Sea and went over in safety. But when the Egyptians kept coming, they put dynamite under the bridge and when all the Egyptians came on top of the bridge, the Jews blew up the bridge and the Egyptians fell in the Red Sea and were drowned."

"The rabbi told you this story?" the father asked incredulously.

"No," the kid answered, "but if I told you what the rabbi told me, you'd never believe it."

"Do you say your prayers before eating?' the teacher asked the little seven-year-old.

"It ain't necessary," she answered. "My mom is a good cook."

One little boy, who was given a spanking by his father for dirtying up the house, ran to his mother crying: "Mommy, you should have married Jesus. He loves little children."

My neighbor's little girl has a special prayer: "Please, God, make the bad people good—and the good people nice."

The Hebrew teacher decided to let his class out early. "That's all for today," he announced. "I have a bad headache."

"Oh, I know about that," said little six-year-old David. "Moses had a headache too."

"Moses had a headache?" the teacher asked. "Where did you hear that?"

"Grandpa told me—he said God gave Moses two tablets."

The clergyman was telling his guests a story when his little girl interrupted: "Daddy," she asked, "is that true—or is that preaching?"

One little boy I know was pretty bad one day, so his father gave him a bit of a spanking and sent him to his room without supper. "And don't forget to say your prayers," he was told. And the father went to his son's room to see that he did. The youngster did as he was told. He gave his usual blessings to his family, his friends, his teacher—everybody but his father. Then he turned to his pop and said, "I suppose you noticed you wasn't in it."

My mother-in-law was teaching Sunday school and asked the youngsters to write out the Ten Commandments. When it came to the Fifth Commandment, one boy put down; "Humor thy father and thy mother."

The pretty little girl was making her very first appearance in church. "How did you like it?" the preacher asked after the services.

"Well," she answered, "the music was nice—but the commercials was too long."

Rabbi Rabinowitz was a strict teacher and insisted on the best efforts of his pupils. When little David handed in a poor paper, he was furious.

"This is the worst Jewish composition I have ever read," he shouted. "I never saw so many errors. I can't understand how one person could have made all these mistakes."

"One person didn't," David answered calmly. "My father helped me."

I'd like to tell you one of the sweetest stories of all. A mother tells it about her five-year-old daughter, who slipped on the rug in her living room and hit her head. It was a pretty rough blow and she began to cry.

Mom comforted her as she applied cold compresses to the lump that had already appeared on her head. Pretty soon the tears stopped and the little girl ran off to play.

That night after dinner, Mom went to her little girl's room to tuck her in, just in time to hear her prayers. Always after "Now I lay me down to sleep–," she had a special prayer—always about something different—in which she thanked God for "the nicest thing that happened today." It could be the movie she saw or the double scoop of ice cream or a car ride or the snow.

This particular night when her mom asked, "What do you want to thank God for tonight?" She answered, "For my bump."

"Why do you want to thank Him for that?" her mother asked.

"Because now He can make it well." With that she gave her mother a kiss, rolled over and closed her eyes.

Mom just sat there thinking: "Yes, God, how often we forget to thank You for the rough, hard times. But it's through them we often learn the greatest lessons of Your healing love."

Thank you, God, for the bumps.

"Help Young America," says Willie Mays.

©1974 Colgate-Palmolive Co.

Vote! Help Colgate-Palmolive give these youth groups $365,000.

You may win one of 25 "Young American" 1975 Gremlins.

Your vote counts!

It helps determine how much money each of these six youth groups gets. The more votes, the more money a group receives.

Here's how it works:

1. Colgate will give each national group a donation of $20,000.
2. Colgate will donate an additional $120,000 to be shared by the groups in direct proportion to the number of votes each receives.
3. Colgate will donate another $20,000 to each national youth group to be distributed to local units, based on a vote-collecting contest.
4. There's $5,000 additional in prizes for the groups demonstrating the most ingenious vote-collecting techniques. The decisions of the independent judging organization are final.

Your vote is also your chance to win:

25 Grand Prizes—"Young American" 1975 Gremlins from American Motors. 2,000 "Thank You" Prizes—Willie Mays "Help Young America" Tote Bags.

Here's how you vote and enter:

Fill in the ballot-entry blank. Give other ballots to friends.

Boy Scouts of America
Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.
Boys Clubs of America
Girls Clubs of America
Camp Fire Girls
National 4-H Clubs

OFFICIAL RULES

1. On an official ballot-entry blank, print your name, address, zip code. To vote for your favorite national youth group, put a check mark on the ballot-entry blank opposite the name of the group you have selected.

If you do not have an official ballot-entry blank, a 3" x 5" piece of paper may be used. Be sure to print the name of the national youth group you have selected.

2. Each ballot-entry must be accompanied by 2 proofs-of-purchase from Colgate-Palmolive products (see Rule #5) or the names of two of these products may be printed on a plain 3" x 5" piece of paper. Enter as often as you wish, but mail each ballot-entry in a separate envelope. (For youth group bulk ballot-entries see Rule #4.) All ballot-entries must be postmarked by December 31, 1974 and received by January 16, 1975.

3. Mail your ballot-entry for your favorite national youth group to the special box number below. (All addresses are New York, N.Y. 10046.)

Girl Scouts of the U.S.A.	P.O. Box 55K
Boy Scouts of America	P.O. Box 44K
Camp Fire Girls	P.O. Box 17K
Boys Clubs of America	P.O. Box 66K
Girls Clubs of America	P.O. Box 72K
National 4-H Club Foundation	P.O. Box 19K
Bulk Entries (See Rule #4)	P.O. Box 243

4. Special note to participating youth groups: To facilitate the handling of bulk ballot-entries they may be sent in one package. Separate envelopes not required. Address package to: Colgate-Palmolive "Help Young America" Campaign, P.O. Box 243, New York, N.Y. 10046. On outside of package write unit's name, number, address, number of members in unit and number of completed ballot-entries enclosed.

5. Proof-of-purchase requirements are as specified from any two of the following products: Ultra Brite Toothpaste—two end flaps; Colgate Dental Cream—two end flaps; Hour After Hour Deodorant or Anti-Perspirant—trace name from any size can; Axion Pre-Soak—box top and bottom; Handi Wipes—name from package front; Dynamo—front label; Alpen—box top and bottom; Baggies—two end flaps; Curad Plastic Bandages—box top and bottom.

6. Each national youth group will receive an automatic initial donation of $20,000. It will then share in an additional donation of $120,000 in direct proportion to the number of votes cast for it. Colgate-Palmolive Company will then donate another $20,000 to each national youth group ($120,000 total) to be distributed to local units based on a vote-collecting contest. Finally, $5,000 in awards will be given to local units demonstrating the most ingenious vote-collecting techniques. The decisions of the independent judging organization are final. The donations ($365,000 total) given to the designated youth groups will be direct contributions from the Colgate-Palmolive Company. All donations will be awarded. (Participation of the national youth groups does not imply endorsement of products.)

MUSHROOM-BARLEY SOUP

1 lb. fresh mushrooms, rinsed and drained
6 tablespoons butter or margarine
1 cup finely chopped onion
1 clove garlic, finely chopped
2 cans (10¾-oz. size) condensed beef broth
5 soup cans water
3 tablespoons tomato paste or ketchup
¾ teaspoon salt
Few twists freshly ground black pepper
1 bay leaf
½ cup barley
¼ cup chopped parsley
1½ cups sliced celery and leaves
1½ cups sliced carrots
4 tablespoons dry sherry
1 pt. sour cream

1. Chop ½ lb. mushrooms. Slice remaining ½ lb. and set aside.

2. In large saucepan, melt 4 tablespoons butter. Add the chopped mushrooms along with onion and garlic; sauté 5 minutes.

3. Stir in broth, water, tomato paste, salt, black pepper and bay leaf. Heat to boiling. Stir in barley. Reduce heat; cover and simmer 1 hour.

4. Add parsley, celery and carrots; cook, covered, about 30 minutes longer, or until vegetables and barley are tender.

5. In medium skillet melt remaining 2 tablespoons butter. Add the reserved sliced mushrooms and sauté 5 minutes. Add to soup along with sherry.

6. Ladle into large soup bowls and serve with a dollop of sour cream.

It's Martha Mitchell, Planning a Book! And Here's What She'll Write About

"What hurts most, perhaps, is that she has seen daughter Marty just two times since last October—when Marty came by to pick up some clothes and when Martha went to her school."

By Frances Spatz Leighton

Pictorial Parade

John Neubauer

Martha told Winzola McLendon (inset): "He's gone. I'm alone and frightened and I don't know what's going on."

With a Crusader's zeal, the irrepressible Martha Mitchell—who used to be known around Washington as "the warbler of Watergate"—is spilling it all in a book, telling what she knows and remembers of former President Nixon's crowd and cronies.

Martha Mitchell feels she has an important story to tell—a story made still more valuable by the efforts to hide it from the public. And she's telling it all to Winzola McLendon, who was once a writer for a Washington newspaper.

Nobody, but nobody, is permitted in the room that houses the 16 boxes of material, including dozens of tapes. "I'm getting kind of paranoid about it all," admits Winnie, who, until she started her big secret project with Martha, was known as a very easygoing and fun-loving gal.

What's it like to work with Martha Mitchell?

Well, that's just it. You have to be secretive. You have to know what name she is using that day. You have to be able to speak in code over the phone to make arrangements to meet. And when it comes down to it, to work with Martha Mitchell, you first have to catch her. You have to do a lot of adjusting. You have to wait for her moods. You have to know that in one hour—or after two good hours, if you're lucky—she'll fly off to something else. Or just get on the phone and stay and stay and stay.

It isn't easy to be Martha Mitchell's collaborator, but the stakes are high, and Winzola McLendon knows it. If all goes well, her share might approach $500,000, with hardback and paperback rights—and that ain't hay.

Offers for the advance on the hardback alone have run as high as $500,000. Watergate and political espionage and impeachment stories will fill more than two-thirds of the book. And Martha is proud to point out that she was one of the first, if not the first, to call for "Mr. President's resignation."

According to the world's two best sources (Martha and Winnie McLendon), these are some of the things the book will talk about (all these versions of what happened are Martha Mitchell's own, passed along by her or Ms. McLendon):

1. How Martha is convinced there was a plot to put her in a mental institution to ruin her credibility. And whose plot it was.

2. Her version of how everyone behaved at the time of Watergate and who was phoning whom.

3. Her version of that famous stab in the buttocks with a tranquilizer, to sedate her, while she was being held a "political prisoner," and how she smashed her fist through a glass door trying to escape. And how her calls for help were ignored. She will name the FBI agents she is sure she recognized there.

4. Her version of how her daughter Marty was brainwashed and turned against her by her "jailers," who let 13-year-old Marty see her when she was in disarray and her captors were supplying her with liquor but practically no food.

5. Her version of how her husband was changed from a liberal Democrat into a conservative Republican. At one point, Martha and Mr. Nixon were such dear friends that she traveled with him on his plane, and wanted to do even more campaigning than she was eventually to do. One story floating around Washington is that Martha, after a time, felt a little rejected by President Nixon, since she couldn't always reach him as easily as she reached reporters. Martha wanted to tell the President her ideas for his campaign, the rumors continue.

6. How exhilarating and wonderful it felt, for a while at least, to have Mr. Nixon count on her to help him win reelection with her public appearances and speeches, and how he once told her enthusiastically, "Give 'em hell, Martha." And then how it felt a little later, when she wouldn't shut up about Watergate, to have a rumor spread that she was in a private psychiatric hospital in Connecticut that specializes in treating alcoholics, a place she says she has never even seen.

7. How Mitchell tried to tell her of the political espionage that was planned for the campaign and how she was disgusted by it and didn't want to hear about it. And how she was convinced there was more than one copy of "Gemstone," the book that outlined the plans and which Jeb Magruder testified he burned in his fireplace.

8. How secrecy became her way of life after John left. Even her garbage was tampered with, she says, and she learned to foil the tamperers by tearing up her letters and putting part of each letter in the garbage one day, another part the next day, and the rest maybe a week later. She feels she has evidence that all her mail was tampered with.

Most people think Martha was a poor little Cinderella whom Mitchell plucked from the ashes. Not so, says Winnie. "The book will show that Martha was a rich girl whose father, a

Now! With the simple method of Foot Reflexology!

'You Can Get Almost Immediate Relief from Aches and Pains All Over the Body!'

"I have brought relief to countless suffering people with this method—and have watched their joy of regained health and vitality—when all hope had seemingly been lost!"

"Let me show you how it can bring about the normal function of a specific location or organ..."

Says MILDRED CARTER, Professional Reflexologist

My name is Mildred Carter.
I am not a doctor,
but I have been
remarkable relief from seemingly
and pains!

What A Physiotherapist Says:

"During my forty-eight years as a Physiotherapist in my own Treatment Centers . . . I have had every opportunity to observe the amazing benefits of manual massage. As a means of rehabilitation where physical trauma is involved, it ranks high in the annals of Medicine.

"The techniques described in Mrs. Carter's book have been developed by experts in the field of reflex massage, and we have no hesitation in recommending them. . . . For the relief of pain, we know of no other means short of opiates to achieve this objective."

– CLARENCE R. MUNROE
Registered Technician, Physiotherapy

Dear Friend:

My name is Mildred Carter. I am not a doctor, but for over 14 years, I have been helping people receive remarkable relief from seemingly hopeless aches and pains all over the body, with a method—which you can use, too—called Foot Reflexology.

Foot Reflexology is a method for healing the whole body. If you've ever suffered from foot trouble, you know that it's the feet that make the whole body ache. By rubbing and pressing gently on certain areas of your feet, I can show you how you may get almost immediate relief IN OTHER PARTS OF THE BODY!

Why? Because the feet contain Reflexes, which lead like telephone lines to all parts of the body. By pressing them, you help restore normal circulation and health to congested areas. No one can guarantee a cure, nor is it a medical substitute, but:

- I have seen it relieve crippled hands and feet, caused by painful arthritis, straighten whole bodies and bring them back to normal!
- It can stop the pain of hemorrhoids almost immediately!
- Most headaches vanish immediately with this method!
- I have seen it relieve liver and gall bladder trouble!
- I have seen it clear up stuffed sinuses almost immediately!
- I have seen it relieve back troubles, in a matter of seconds!
- I have seen it bring fast relief to stomach troubles!
- I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins with this method. This is also true with cramps or pains in the legs!
- I have seen it relieve bladder trouble quickly, with great relief after the very first treatment—all sensation of burning or itching seems to disappear completely!
- This simple method can bring women blessed relief from many disorders which may have been troubling them for years!
- I have brought relief to men, in every case of prostate trouble I have ever treated with this method!

...And still that's just the beginning! You'll find the full details of this amazing method of healing in a new book which I have written, called HELPING YOURSELF WITH FOOT REFLEXOLOGY. I'll tell you how to get it in just a moment, but first I want to tell you more about it!

Many Healings Reported!

Foot Reflexology is a safe, natural, and inexpensive way to help restore healthful circulation to every area of your body.

Did you ever notice how quickly water freshens when good water is poured into muddy water? Foot Reflexology does the same for circulation in your body. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and organs become sluggish. Stimulating a new flow of blood to these "tired" places brings new life, clears glands and organs of years of accumulated waste.

Healings and relief from discomforts of all sorts are reported, by the dozen, in the pages of my book. All were obtained with the help of Foot Reflexology.

Here's What I Say In This Book:

Gall Bladder Healing "There are many cases where Reflex Massage of the liver and gall bladder has saved people from having an operation, with the stones seeming to vanish after a few treatments."—Quoted from Chapter 12

Anemic Conditions "Anyone who is anemic will find . . . improvement can be so rapid it is amazing. With pernicious anemia, results will be slower, but Nature will be there, changing new blood cells for old." —Quoted from Chapter 11

Helping the Heart "No matter what the nature of the trouble is, the heart can be aided with this method. . . . I can give you many case histories of wonderful results from this scientific massage of the reflexes on heart patients." —Quoted from Chapter 13

Relief for Leg Pain "I believe I have treated more cases of leg aches than any other malady, and most were caused by the sciatic nerve. Many people suffer for years without any relief. Yet it is so amazingly simple to banish all inflammation from this nerve in an unbelievably short time. In many cases this method has brought relief in one treatment." —Quoted from Chapter 22

Varicose Veins "I have brought lasting relief to sufferers of varicose veins by starting the proper circulation with Reflex Massage, thus causing congestion to disappear. This is also true with cramps or pains of any kind in the legs." —Quoted from Chapter 16

Relief for Hemorrhoids "Hemorrhoids are nothing more than a congested vein (known as piles). This is actually a varicose vein in the rectum. These can become so large as to protrude, causing inconvenience, much suffering, and in many cases bleeding. Though painful, they are usually suffered in silence by those who have them. Yet with Reflex Massage they are one of the quickest to respond to treatment. Here we will learn how to use the Reflexology method to bring you prompt relief!" —Quoted from Chapter 21

How to Make Reflexology Your Rejuvenator "Would you like to be young again? Would you like to walk expectantly into the future, to enjoy new experiences, with a revitalized body? We do not have to be old . . . Reflexology rejuvenates the entire body, giving new life to glands and cells. Blood flow slows over the years. Naturally, glands and cells become sluggish. Reflexology stimulates a new flow of blood to these tired places, clears glands and cells of accumulated waste, brings them new life!" —Quoted from Chapters 3 and 24

You'll Discover...

- How Reflexology relieved a man's stuffed sinuses. "After the first treatment, he could suddenly breathe through both sides of his nose" and he felt well again.
- How a woman who had hurt her spine, and was in so much pain that she called a bone specialist to take x-rays, received so much relief with Reflexology—after a single treatment—that she was able to get up and do her work. She felt so much better, in fact, that she cancelled her appointment for x-rays, and claims she is fully recovered.
- How a man with a hunchback—a huge, ugly bulge—received a complete healing with Reflexology. He was freed of pain, and "he was able to stand straight." The hump disappeared. "He was not deformed at all," I reported!
- How a man who suffered from ulcers, kidney trouble, hay fever, and constipation, received complete relief with Reflexology. "The symptoms of each illness disappeared one by one," and today he sleeps like a baby every night!
- How a man with a heart condition was healed with Reflexology. Doctors had always warned him he couldn't do the things other men did. With this method, "his heart returned to normal enough to allow him to do anything he wanted, without any trouble. Today, after more than 10 years, he is a strong and well man."

IMPORTANT NOTE:

If foot reflexology therapy does not work after giving it a sincere try, consult your doctor. You will not have harmed yourself. In the very attempt of self-help, you will have done yourself a lot of psychological good.

AMAZING TRUE Experiences!

"Reflexology will free you from sickness and suffering, and fear of pain, when used correctly."

"There are so many personal experiences which I could recount, stories of illnesses which were relieved by reflex massage, that I find myself wanting to tell all of them at once. I have seen it do marvelous things that surprised me many times when doctors said it couldn't be done.

"If it can do this for others, it can do this for you! I have proven that this method of healing works, in my own experience. Try it on yourself and FEEL the results!"

Safe To Use!

What's more, Foot Reflexology is absolutely safe. It is the "drugless" way to better health, and requires no exercise, no expensive equipment of any kind. It is so simple, and natural, that it is safe to use on anyone, from the youngest baby to the oldest person. In fact, it is a Rejuvenator that can actually win you many years of new youth!

Read It All From Cover to Cover, For 30 Days, Entirely At Our Risk!

I have proven that this method of healing works in my own experience. You owe it to yourself to try it at our risk and FEEL the results And I invite you to do just that! Fair enough? Why not send in the coupon—TODAY!

stockbroker in Pine Bluff, Ark., sent her on a grand tour of Europe when she was in college. And she was a girl who had her own car at 14."

The book will also tell how Martha first knew Bebe Rebozo when she was at the University of Miami and Bebe was the big man around town because he sported the biggest car. Another famous name Martha knew in her early years was Sen. William Fulbright, with whom she used to play tennis.

Most people don't know, either, that Martha's early ambition was to be an actress. Or that she suffers from various allergies that have influenced her life-style. Or that she was really quite an athlete—a good tennis player and a better swimmer. She loves dancing, rates former Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird the best dancer in Washington. Small confession: She never danced with Nixon. Is she sorry? No.

Why did Martha choose Winnie to do her book? For one thing, she feels Winnie saved her life once. They refuse to tell the story now, saying it will be in the book.

Though Martha had been talking about writing a book for a long time, it was not until the morning Mitchell walked out of the house—or rather, that she woke up to find him gone—that she really decided to get going. After the shock wore off, some time in the afternoon of September 11, 1973, she picked up the phone and called Winnie, who was at home in Washington, dressing to go out. "Okay," said Martha. "Let's write that book." She also told Winnie, "He's gone. I'm alone and frightened and I don't know what's going on."

Winnie canceled everything and flew to New York to help Martha over the first difficult days. She stayed for weeks.

When this reporter visited Martha and Winnie in a hotel suite in a small, out-of-the-way hotel in which they were working in Washington, since Martha refuses to work on the book at Winnie's apartment, we paused to comment on how life will change after the book. "Every TV station will want you," I said. "Everyone will want you."

Instead of looking happy, Martha suddenly turned almost tearful and said, "Do you think after what I say anyone will want me!" It was a statement, not a question.

Looked at from one standpoint, Martha is doing very well for herself. She has already proved herself an able co-hostess on various TV talk shows. She is on the way to having an important book, probably a best seller. But she is not happy. Though she lives, behaves and dresses regally, she does not seem to be enjoying her life. One moment she seems to be forcing herself to be cheerful. Then her lips quiver as she remembers something, and a tear seems not far away. But then she pulls herself together again, laughs, and the sad moment is passed.

One thing is certain: She is suspicious of new people. When the photographer appeared to take the pictures for this article, she asked, "Can we trust him?" She did trust this reporter because of stories she has covered in the past. Still, getting to Martha was a complicated thing because she travels under a code name. Not until the day of the interview was I given the name of her hotel, and then I was told to be in the lobby at a certain time and wait.

Martha admits, too, that she is still bitter and that the bitterness will come out in the book, first about how she was used in the Watergate matter, secondly about the break up of her marriage, and thirdly about the alienation of her daughter. "I feel I'm just another casualty of what my husband called 'the White House horrors,'" she said.

What hurts most, perhaps, is that she has seen daughter Marty just two times since last October, first when Marty came by to pick up some clothes and then when Martha went to her private school.

Of the first occasion, Martha says her daughter told her, "My father says a child only needs one parent. You don't have a car and a chauffeur. You can't take care of me!"

Of the second occasion, Martha says that the teachers of the school will not let her see her daughter any more on orders of her husband.

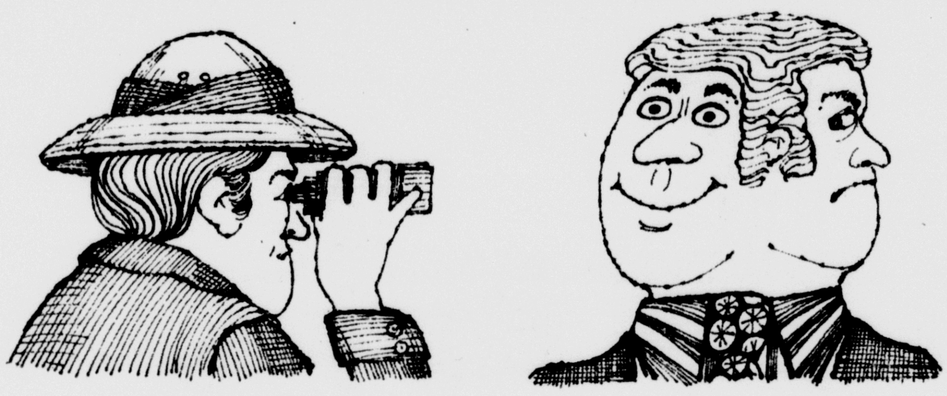
Some Surprising Things About: Happiness



True or False: Psychologists have searched for the completely happy individual, but have never found him. (See number 6)

TRUE OR FALSE?

1. Unhappy people don't think happiness is important.

2. By simply focusing your mind on certain words, you can make yourself happier or less happy.

3. Unhappy people think everybody else feels the same way.

4. In any face-to-face conversation, there are telltale signs that reveal whether a person is happy or not.

5. Many people are unhappy because they pretend to be something they're not, instead of being themselves.

6. Psychologists have searched for the completely happy individual, but have never found him.

ANSWERS

1. True. In a psychological study, investigators at one university had men and women students make daily ratings of their happiness over a several-week period, keeping records on a ten-point happiness-unhappiness scale. The findings: Happy people evidenced markedly different attitudes and outlooks and embraced a different set of values than the unhappy. They stressed the importance of happiness, inner peace, love of life, love of others and optimism. These considerations were not stressed by the unhappy. Instead, they emphasized the importance of being inner-directed, of justice being served, of all people (including themselves) being treated with fairness and rewarded according to their efforts.

2. True. In one university study psychologists requested both students and faculty to list the words that made them feel "happy" and those that had the opposite effect. Here are the words most frequently selected by both groups as "happy" stimulus words: 1) love, 2) friendship, 3) peace, 4) home, 5) music, 6) laughter, 7) beautiful. Runners-up included food, smile, health, nature and fun. Words that tended to have the opposite effect included loneliness, anger, pain, failure, war and tears.

3. False. It's the other way around. As one investigation has shown: "Extremely happy and unhappy people project happiness or unhappiness on others by contrast. Unhappy people view others as happy—and vice versa." However, the study showed that except for the extremely happy, happy people view others as happy.

4. True. Studies have shown that when a happy person is conversing with you he is likely to meet your gaze levelly and hold it for appreciable intervals without looking away. On the other hand, an unhappy individual tends to maintain eye contact only briefly.

5. True. As F. Alexander Magoun, long-time professor of human relations at Massachusetts Institute of Technology, observed in summing up his findings, people who put up a false front, who adopt mannerisms and affectations designed to make people believe they are something they are not, "drift into the wrong positions, marry the wrong individuals, lead unhappy lives. They seldom realize that the trouble lies in their not being their true selves."

6. True—but they've come close to it. A team of university psychologists conducted the search, which ultimately focused on one undergraduate who was made the subject of a three-year study by human-behavioral specialists. The conclusions were summed up as follows: Though others surpassed him in certain valued characteristics, "none equaled him in genuine, consistent zest and happiness. His personality showed a steadfast optimism, supported by a lively, active orientation toward the world, love of human contact, and balanced, mature judgment. We found only minor flaws in his well-being. One of the chief sources of his happiness was reasonable willingness to accept limitations . . . to tread the middle road between excess and deprivation with caution, intelligence and due regard for his fellowman."

Tips on Feeding a Cat

KITTY

Contrary to popular opinion, cats do not always know what is good for them, so owners had better learn. Proper diet for a cat contains proteins, fatty acids, minerals and vitamins, in correct proportions. You'd have to be a biochemist to devise a properly balanced cat diet from the family larder, so you'd better stick with quality commercial cat food, varying the flavors. This food comes canned and dry, and a mixture of both, night and morning, does very well for the adult cat. Kittens should be fed more often. Always provide fresh water. Cats love milk, but it is not essential to their diets and can sometimes be the cause of some intestinal problems. Occasional treats of cottage cheese, raw liver, heart or kidney are welcome. Always cook fish. Fresh greenery aids digestion. Avoid cold, sweet or highly seasoned foods; fish or poultry bones.

RIT's easy Halloween tricks

BUTTERFLY COSTUME

Supplies: Liquid RIT Dye (2 Purple, 1 Fuchsia, 1 Yellow, 1 Evening Blue), large pot, 3 paintbrushes, rubber bands, light-colored leotard and tights, hood made from sleeve of man's T-shirt, 2 large pipecleaners for antennae, and approx. 1 yd. of white cotton or nylon.

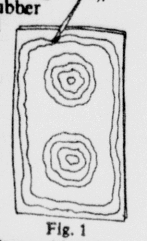

Fig. 1

Steps: 1. Measure child's arm length and height from floor. Using measurements, cut two rectangles from cloth. Keep fabric together. 2. (Fig. 1) Using undiluted dye, paint two bull's-eyes. Start with yellow circle in the center, fuchsia in the middle and blue on the outside. Be sure dye penetrates both wings. Paint wide stripe of fuchsia around edge. 3. (Fig. 2) Pick up fabric in center of bull's-eye. Wrap rubber bands around colored rings very tightly. Cover all dye. Gather fuchsia stripe together and tightly wrap with rubber bands. 4. Dye wings, hood, leotard and tights in simmering Purple dye solution, 30 min. (2 bottles purple in 6 qts. water.) Rinse in cool water. Remove bands. Rinse again. 5. Let drip dry. Iron wings while still damp. Cut wing shapes from fabric and tack with thread to wrists, shoulders and waist of leotard.

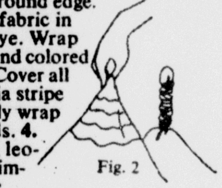

Fig. 2

FLOWER HEADDRESS & TRIM

Supplies: Liquid RIT Dye (2 Fuchsia, 1 Yellow, 1 Kelly Green), large pot, rubber bands. 1 yd. stiff fabric (interfacing), 16 pipecleaners, 1" wide ribbon, 2 paintbrushes, needle and thread, 2 yds. white cotton muslin.

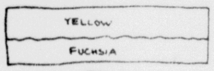

Fig. 3

Steps: 1. Cut muslin into 2 strips, 13" wide. Paint one half of each strip yellow and the other half fuchsia with undiluted dye. (Fig. 3) 2. Pleat fabric into tiny pleats, and wrap tightly with rubber bands. (Fig. 4) 3. Add 1 bottle Fuchsia to 4 qts. simmering water. Immerse fabric for 25 min. Rinse in cool water. Remove bands. Rinse and drip dry. Iron while still damp. 4. Cut 32 petal shapes from dyed fabric. Cut 16 identical shapes from stiffening. 5. Pin and sew together one dyed petal and one stiff petal. Lay pipecleaner down on stiff side, cover with another dyed petal, sew again. Make 16 petals in all. 6. Measure enough ribbon to go around child's face and tie under chin. Pin petals to ribbon around face, overlapping. Sew down. Bend to frame face. 7. Cut several leaf shapes and ruffles from leftover fabric. Dye in ½ bottle Kelly Green dye and 2 qts. simmering water for 20 min. Rinse, dry and iron. Tack leaves to shoulders and ruffles to hem of dress.

PARROT COSTUME

Supplies: Liquid RIT Dye (2 Kelly Green, 1 Yellow, 1 Tangerine, 1 Evening Blue, 1 Scarlet), large pot, 4 paintbrushes, rubber bands, needle and thread, hood made from sleeve of man's T-shirt, cotton turtleneck, white shorts or cut-off blue jeans, sneakers, 3 yds. white cotton muslin for feathers and feet.

Fig. 5

Steps: 1. Cut muslin into strips 6" x 8 ft., 11" x 8 ft. and 14" x 8 ft. Cut extra fabric into two "feet" for parrot. 2. Make feathers: Paint 1¾" stripe of undiluted Yellow dye along edge of 6" strip of fabric. Next to it paint a 1¾" stripe of undiluted Tangerine. (Fig. 5) 3. Pleat strip into 1" pleats and wrap with rubber bands, covering dyed portion completely. (Fig. 6) 4. Paint 2½" stripe of undiluted Yellow along edge of 11" wide fabric. Follow with 2½" stripe of Evening Blue. Pleat and band as above. 5. Paint 4½" stripe of undiluted Scarlet and 4½" stripe of Yellow on 14" wide fabric. Pleat and band. 6. Add 2 bottles of Kelly Green dye to 6 qts. simmering water. Put in 3 banded strips of fabric, hood and turtleneck, for 35 min. stirring often. 7. Rinse in cool water. Remove bands. Rinse again. Drip dry. Iron fabric while still damp. 8. Pleat fabric strips into 2" pleats. Cut corners off colored end to form feather-like scallops. Cut strips into arm lengths. Tack 3 strips together, smaller feathers on top. Sew to arms of turtleneck. Cut remaining feathers apart and tack to hood and shorts for tail. 9. Jeans or shorts: (Use Rit Color Remover to lighten jeans.) Make one solution of simmering Yellow Rit Dye and one of Evening Blue. Dip top of shorts in Yellow Dye for 15 min. Add parrot "feet" and sneakers, 30 min. Dip bottom of shorts into Evening Blue for 15 min. Rinse and drip dry. 10. Optional: Dye light-colored stretch tights in Yellow for parrot legs.

What Is This Ingenious Plan?

The Weider '5' Minute Body Shaper Plan is based on doing one continuous, coordinated rhythmic exercise—twice daily and cutting down about 20% of your food intake—but without giving up any of the foods you like.

This one, five-minute exercise is designed to slim and firm your flabby waistline and hipline (where fat accumulates quickest, giving your body a flabby, weak and distorted look), as well as take off excess body fat FAST by speeding up your metabolism, burning off stored calories, and releasing excess water. At the same time, it helps to reshape your chest or bustline, waist or hips, firms your arms and legs—improves your total body!

It's safer than strenuous gym workouts. No disrobing. Do it in the privacy of your own home—even while watching TV. The unit weighs about 16 ounces and fits any wallet-size case. You can carry it and use it wherever there is floor space—anytime. Even while watching television.

What Satisfied Customers Say:

Here are reported results from but a few of the thousands and thousands of customers who have used the plan. Each of the cases reported below, was certified, measured and weighed by experts. That's why we can guarantee that every result reported is absolutely accurate.

"I lost 25 lbs. and 5¾ inches in 14 days," G.C. "I lost 32 lbs. and 6½ inches in 21 days," M.F. "I lost 15 lbs. and 3 inches in 14 days," W.E. "I lost 22 lbs. and 6 inches in 21 days," M.B. "I lost 3¾ inches off my waist in 5 days," R.M. "I lost 10 lbs. and 6¾ inches in 14 days," C.J. "I lost 10 lbs., 6¼ inches off my waist and 3" off my hips in 14 days," P.O. "I lost 10 lbs. and 5 inches off my waist in 14 days," J.C. "I lost 7 lbs. and 5 inches off my waist in 14 days," S.D.

Results vary depending upon how much overweight you are and how much time you give to the Plan. These people have given from 5 to 10 minutes twice daily to our one simple exercise, lying on their backs in comfort, even while watching TV—(and just cutting down about 20% on the foods they eat—without giving up the foods they love). Naturally, their impressive results vary. But, we guarantee that you, too, can expect to lose from 5 to 15 pounds and from 2 to 5 inches off your waistline in 14 days—or your $9.95 will be refunded.

MONEY BACK GUARANTEE!

Scientific researchers, medical and fitness experts agree—the only way to firm, shape and trim your body is by working off the inches. The Body Shaper is a simple way to do it. No gimmicks involved—you will not be ripped off as in the past by so-called "effortless exercisers".

So, we make you this unconditional guarantee: "Get it off fast"—and see measurable and firming results in 14 days or return the exerciser for your refund! Proven results are already verified. The guarantee is in writing. Now, can you think of a reason for not ordering your '5' Minute Total Body Shaper?

Satisfaction Guaranteed!!

After receiving your Body Shaper and instruction booklet, use this plan for 14 days. If you do not see your new body shaping up, return the total Body Shaper Plan for your $9.95 refund.

Kirk Douglas:

Is Hollywood's "Feistiest" Star Finally Mellowing?

Globe Photos

The Kirk Douglases and their son Peter (inset), who took our cover photograph.

> "Washington isn't for me. The trouble with Washington is there isn't enough patriotism there. When you offer your services, people look at you with suspicion, like, 'What's your angle?' I'll stick to acting."

I met Kirk Douglas for breakfast at his large, modern, tastefully furnished Beverly Hills home, which he is about to give up after 18 years. It has become too big for him and Anne now that their four sons, Michael, 28, Joel, 26, Peter, 18, and Eric, 16, are grown up. While I enjoyed bacon and eggs and English muffins, Kirk restricted himself to a cup of yogurt.

FAMILY WEEKLY: You once told me you were known as the most hated man in Hollywood because you were so difficult to work with. Have you changed in recent years?

KIRK: I think so. When I look back now on all of the arguments I used to have and how many I lost because of the manner in which I presented them, I can see I wasn't right. I've always admired the kind of man who smokes a pipe and speaks with a low, low voice.

FW: What caused people to react the way they did to you?

KIRK: I used to be a perfectionist. But maybe that's the easy way out. Now that I've matured, I can see myself more clearly. The longer I'm in the business, the more I realize that I need help–that everybody does, that I can't do it all by myself. Besides, all that was an ego trip. There's a story they tell (not a true one, by the way) that before Tony Curtis was offered "The Defiant Ones," the film in which a black prisoner and a white one are chained together while escaping, the film was first offered to Bob Mitchum. He said, "Me? Be chained to a black guy? Never!" Then it was offered to Marlon Brando. He agreed to do it provided he could play the black man. I was next in line. I agreed to do it provided I could play both the black and the white man! That will give you a pretty good idea of what my reputation was.

FW: You've worked as a producer, director and actor–sometimes all at once. Do you still think that's wise?

KIRK: I don't see why not. First of all, most people have a misconception of what a producer does. You ask three people and get three different answers.

The American People

1776-1976

portraying the ten generations of Americans from 1776 to 1976.

ADVANCE SUBSCRIPTION ONLY.
Limit: One collection per subscriber.
Subscription rolls close October 31, 1974.

THE AMERICAN PEOPLE 1776-1976 is a unique artistic tribute to our American heritage. In ten superbly detailed sculptured figures, this extraordinary collection will span the ten generations of American life from 1776 to the Bicentennial. Two hundred years of the American experience.

Each figure will be representative of its own generation. Each will have its own character, its own personality. Each will be an original work of art, commissioned and created exclusively for this collection.

The figures will be meticulously crafted in solid, fine pewter and issued in a strictly limited edition by The Franklin Mint, world-renowned for the quality and artistry of its limited edition collector's items.

Ten Generations, Beautifully Portrayed

The collection begins with The First Citizen, a New Englander who leaves his farm to fight for freedom. The year is 1776. Independence has been proclaimed, but the precious right to life, liberty and the pursuit of happiness must still be won through arduous years of conflict.

The second sculpture is The Pathfinder, seen in the Appalachian wilderness in the early 1800s. The sculptured detail of the figure is so fine you can read his initials—D.W.—carved in delicate tracery on his powder horn.

As the generations succeed each other, The Canal Boat Man, brawny and tough, poles his towboat along the Erie Canal in the 1820s. The Prospector—a California '49er—has just found a heavy nugget in his pan.

The first woman in the collection is The Homesteader—one of the pioneers who traveled West in the 1870s, braving hardship and danger to settle on free government land. The Gibson Girl of the gay nineties presents an interesting contrast, as she plays croquet, enjoying the new freedom of the Gilded Age.

The Immigrant, carrying her baby in her arms, is one of the multitudes who came to these shores from Eastern Europe in the early years of the twentieth century, in quest of freedom and opportunity both for themselves and for their descendants.

Next in the collection is The Jazz Man of the twenties. You can almost hear the new, syncopated rhythms of the Jazz Age as he blows his horn.

The GI of World War II is a combat veteran seen in a relaxed moment on a road in France, after the Normandy invasion. And the concluding figure represents the proudest achievement of today's generation, The Astronaut planting the Flag of Freedom on the moon.

Ten men and women. Ten generations of Americans. They tell a 200-year story of people. Working. Fighting. Venturing. Playing. Daring. Building lives and futures for themselves and for all Americans. The complete collection is a unique artistic representation of the diversity and the continuity of the American spirit.

Sculptured in Fine and Accurate Detail

Each figure will be sculptured in the finest detail, with complete devotion to historical accuracy. Each article of clothing, each tool, each action is authentic in every respect, and completely true to the life of the time.

The fringes on The Pathfinder's buckskins . . . the fine embroidery on The Immigrant's apron . . . the valves and bends of The Jazz Man's trumpet . . . The Astronaut's complex equipment—each tiny detail is exquisitely sculptured, with superb skill and artistry.

Crafted in Fine Pewter

Throughout the history of America, and increasingly today, pewter has been prized for its softly gleaming luster and its enduring beauty.

But there are many grades of pewter. Only the highest quality of pewter—known as "Fine Pewter" since Colonial times—will be used by The Franklin Mint for these sculptured figures.

Each figure will stand on its own integral, sculptured pewter base. Each base will carry the hallmark of The Franklin Mint and the title of the work. It will also bear the signature mark of the brilliant sculptor Andrew Chernak, who created each of these original works of art.

Strictly Limited Edition

The American People 1776-1976 will be issued in a single strictly limited edition. The series of ten sculptures is available only by advance subscription, and there is an absolute limit of one collection per subscriber.

The total edition will thus be exactly equal to the number of valid subscriptions postmarked by the closing date of October 31. When each subscriber has received his sculptures, the molds will be broken and these limited edition works of art will never be produced again.

No Advance Payment Required

The sculptures will be completed and sent to subscribers at the rate of one every other month, beginning in December 1974. The original issue price is $55. per sculpture. No advance payment is required. Subscribers will be billed for each sculpture after shipment, in two equal monthly installments of $27.50 per month.

Thus, each subscriber will be able to acquire this extraordinary collection of limited edition sculpture on a convenient monthly basis.

The collection will be completed in the Bicentennial year of 1976. Together, these ten works of art—representing ten generations of American life—will form a superb sculpture collection that will be a joy to own and display. A collection that is destined to become a rare and treasured heirloom of the Bicentennial era.

An Important Opportunity

This is the first and only time that The American People 1776-1976 will ever be offered. To take advantage of this important opportunity, please note that the Advance Subscription Application below must be mailed by October 31, 1974. Applications postmarked after that date must, regretfully, be declined and returned.

Painful elimination is unnatural.

Many people have experienced the pain of dry, hard stools. And many have come to accept this, as if it were a natural part of elimination.

But there's nothing natural about it.

No matter what your age, you should have comfortable elimination.

And Serutan makes this possible.

Serutan is the effective laxative that forms a smooth gel in the lower digestive tract, where it combines with intestinal waste to give you comfortable relief.

There's no strain, and no cramps. That's because Serutan, with its natural ingredients, adds the necessary moisture and bulk to work with your system for smooth, easy results.

If you suffer from painful elimination due to constipation or dry, hard stools, try Serutan. You'll be very comfortable with it.

Kirk Douglas

FW: What's yours?

KIRK: There are two main types: line producers, who look after the technical and organizational aspects of movie making, and creative producers, who have an idea, develop it into a screenplay, get the cast together, work with the composer and editor. I consider myself a creative producer.

FW: So how can you combine producing, starring and directing, as I understand you'll do in your next film, "Posse."

KIRK: First of all, I've worked on that script for years. I set up a deal with Paramount to do the financing. I set Bruce Dern to costar with me. By the time we go into production, all the producing will have been done! What's more, I have a good associate producer who will do the line work. When the film is finished, I'll supervise the post-production–the editing, music, whatever has to be done to complete the film.

FW: Your wife Anne produced one of your films, "Scalawag." At the time you said she'd produce all your films. What made you change your mind?

KIRK: "Scalawag" was the first film I directed. I needed all the help I could get, and Anne was very good at it. But she'll do no more.

FW: Why not?

KIRK: Because I'm selfish. I want her to be my wife, and she has more than enough to do as it is. A lot of people talk about Women's Lib. I think it's silly. Every person should function according to his or her ability. Louis Jourdan and his wife are staying with us. He's a much better cook than she is. So when he fixes a meal, I love to eat it. I am not so sure I would enjoy her food.

FW: You used to travel on behalf of the government. Have you ever thought of getting involved in politics?

KIRK: Washington isn't for me. The trouble with Washington is there isn't enough patriotism there. When you offer your services, people look at you with suspicion, like, "What's your angle?" I'll stick to acting. My angle is simple: to entertain people.

FW: You've always had a reputation for being tough. Can you be affectionate as well?

KIRK: Certainly. But you know, for years, I was overwhelmed by affection. My parents separated when I was 11, and I was left with seven women – my mother and six sisters. I went off to college just to keep from such a smothering environment. And during the summers I'd always take jobs in different cities, away from home. I wanted to be independent.

FW: Do you see the same tendencies in your sons?

KIRK: I think they are pretty independent, particularly Michael. [Editor's note: Michael Douglas is costarring with Karl Malden in "The Streets of San Francisco."] In fact, our relationship has improved with his growing independence.

FW: Have you helped Michael's career?

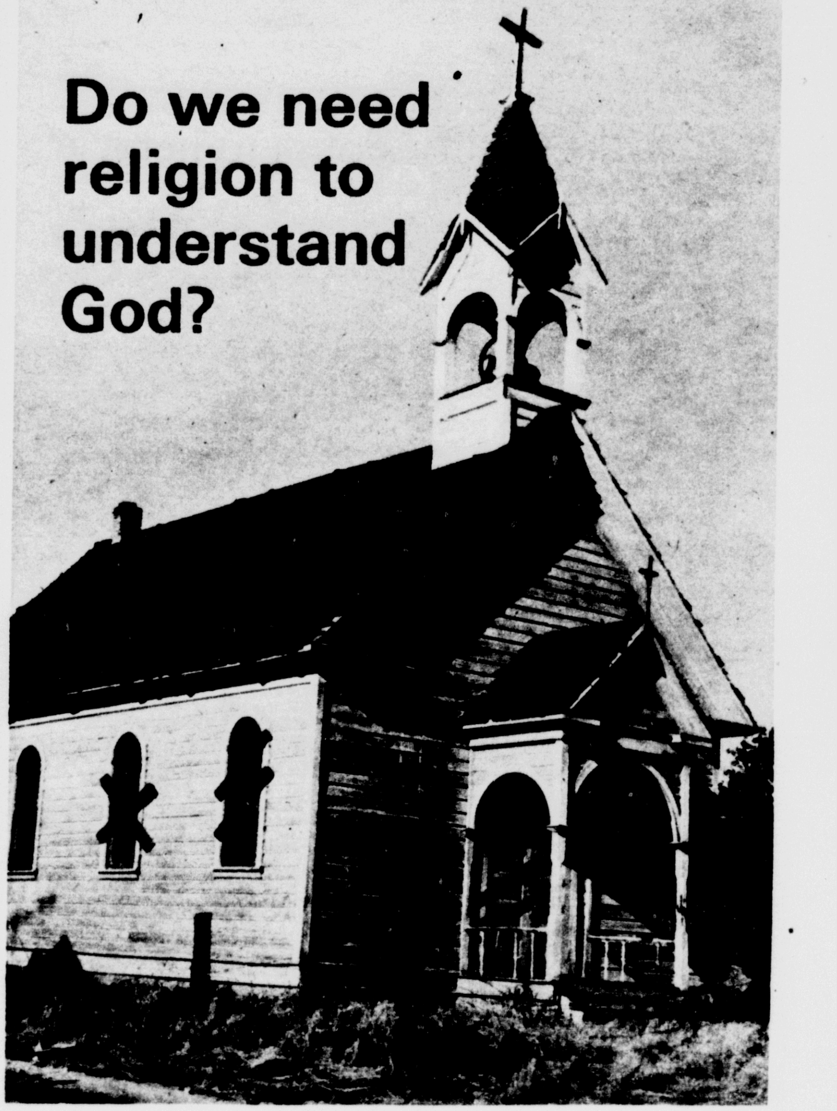
KIRK: Very little. It's hard for a father to help his son if he wants to be independent.

FW: What made you decide to star in "Once Is Not Enough"? It may be a highly commercial property, but it's hardly in line with some of the critically acclaimed films you've done.

KIRK: You sound very condescending! Like you are separating quality pictures from commercial pictures. I've never made a film unless I thought it was commercial. "Once Is Not Enough" is a wonderful soap opera. I play a Mike Todd kind of character with incestuous feelings toward his young daughter. I liked the script. It also gave me a chance to do a modern film again. I've made so many period pieces, people may wonder if I still know how to tie a tie. And if the film is entertaining, I'll have made my contribution. People go to the movies to forget their problems. If a statement is made as well, that's a by-product for whoever wants to pick it up.

In a recent conversation with FAMILY WEEKLY, famed French film director François Truffaut had this to say about Kirk Douglas (who, by the way, is one of his favorite actors):

"Douglas is a rather controversial actor, but I like the energy he brings to his acting and the violence he can give to his characters. He often performs as if he thought an atom bomb was going to explode any minute."



Some people will tell you their faith in God is founded upon logic and common sense. And they seem to think that's all they need . . . and all God gave them . . . to explain and fulfill the purpose of their being.

For Catholics, religion is of paramount importance because God chose to reveal Himself to us through the Church. We know from God Himself what to believe, how to understand the mystery of life, how we must live to please God.

You may find a better, happier understanding of your relationship to God . . . by reading our new pocket-size pamphlet: "Faith—and Common Sense." We'll send it free upon your request . . . Nobody will call. Write today.

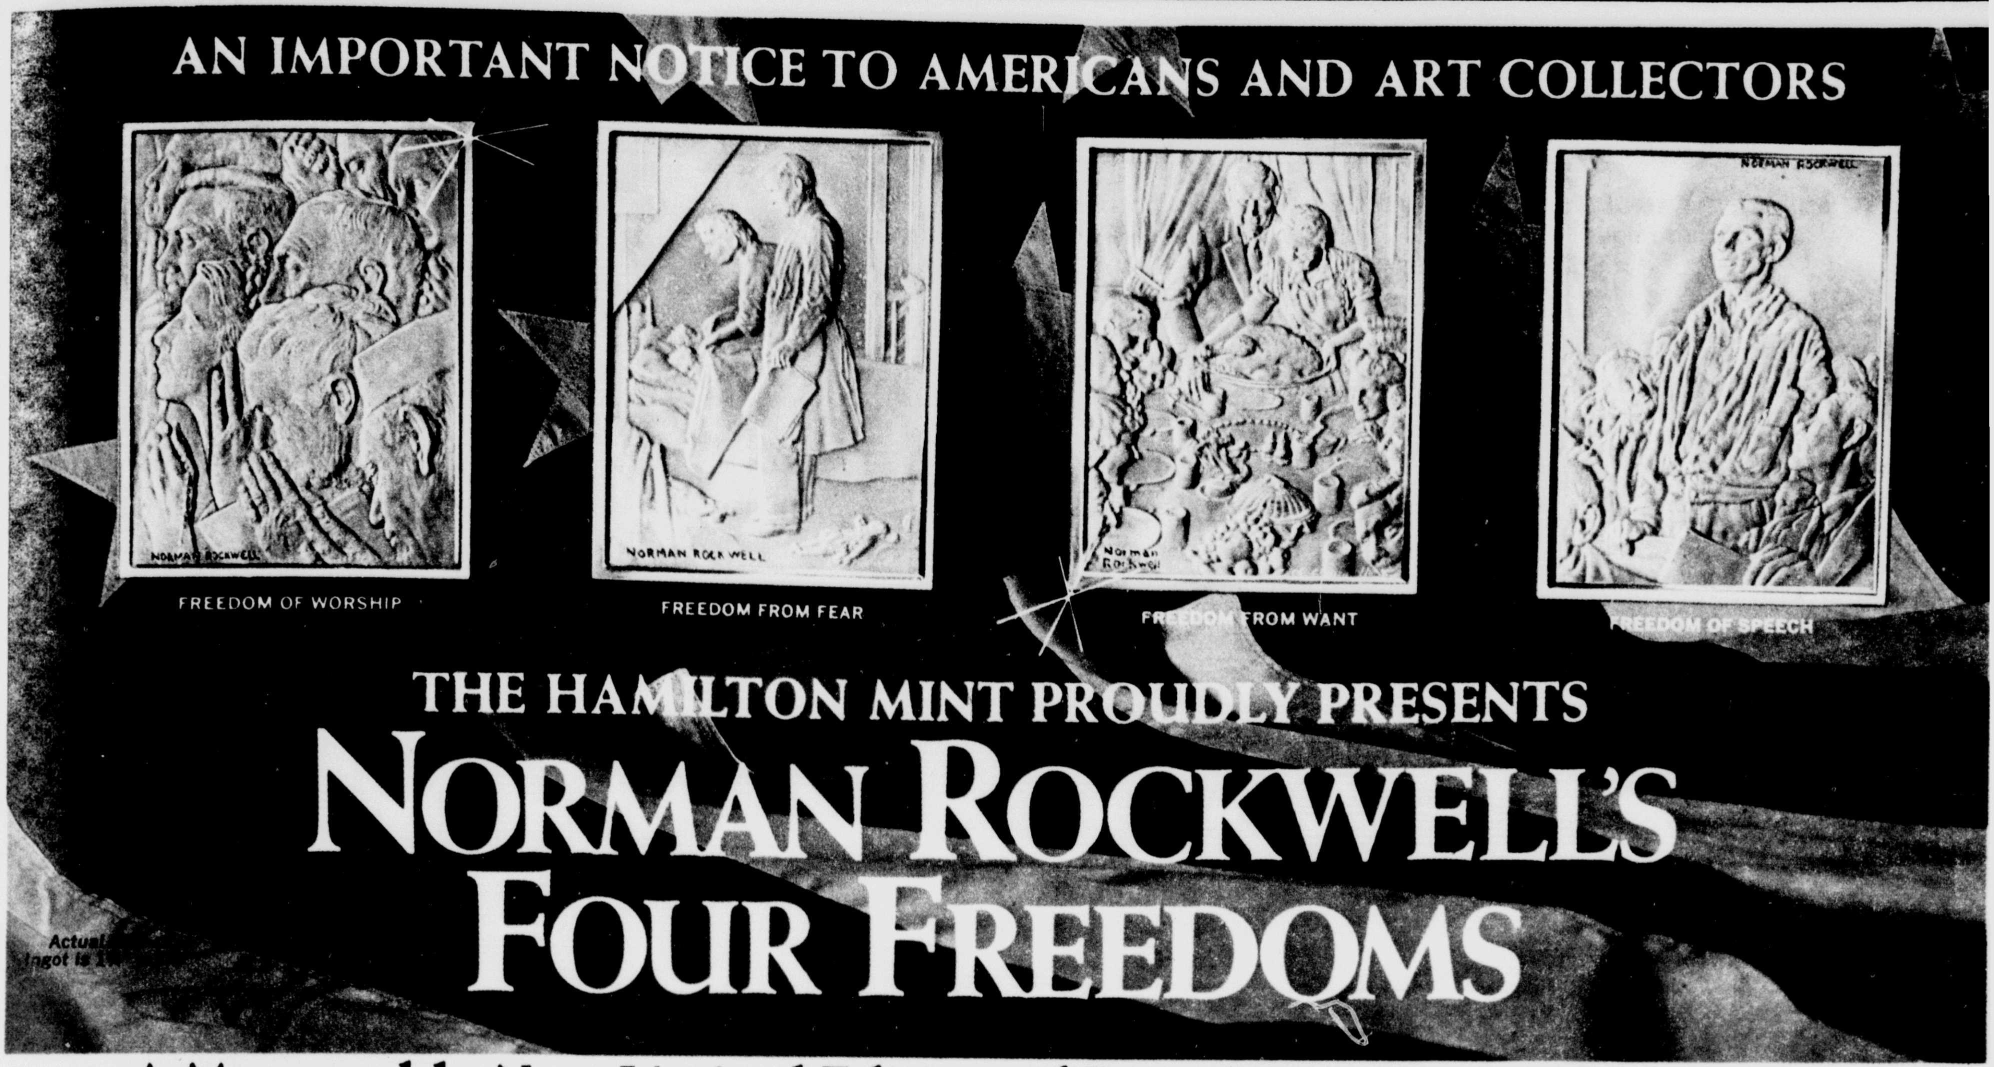
When your child can't sit still, is it nervousness or is it Pin-Worms?

Fidgeting, distraction, fitful scratching of rectal itch—many people don't know these "nervous habits" can be caused by Pin-Worms. These almost invisible parasites are so common, medical authorities have said 1 out of 3 children examined, and many parents, may have Pin-Worms.

They can infect anyone—young or old, rich or poor. Worst of all, Pin-Worms are highly contagious, so they can spread from person to person, until the whole family is infected.

Fortunately, there is an easy-to-take medication called Jayne's® P-W® tablets that gets rid of Pin-Worms. Your pharmacist will tell you that Jayne's P-W tablets are specially formulated with an effective medical ingredient that drives Pin-Worms out of your system. Ask for Jayne's P-W tablets at your drug store.



AN IMPORTANT NOTICE TO AMERICANS AND ART COLLECTORS

THE HAMILTON MINT PROUDLY PRESENTS

NORMAN ROCKWELL'S FOUR FREEDOMS

A Memorable New Limited Edition of Pure 1000 Grain Silver Ingots The Largest and Heaviest Ever Struck by The Hamilton Mint

A Strictly Limited Edition.

Orders must be postmarked by November 30, 1974.

LIMIT: ONE SET PER SUBSCRIBER

NORMAN ROCKWELL, by far America's greatest and best loved artist, has for fifty years brought joy to millions of Americans young and old.

Now, by exclusive permission of The Saturday Evening Post, The Hamilton Mint is extremely proud to issue, and thus preserve, forever, in stunningly beautiful silver ingots, the greatest of all his works, "The Four Freedoms."

Rockwell created the original masterpieces during World War II in a burst of patriotic fervor. They depict those great values held very dearly in the hearts of all Americans. And they are just as truly inspiring now as they were then.

The Hamilton Mint believes that in these troubled times, our nation sorely needs to rededicate itself to these great beliefs: Freedom of Speech, Freedom of Worship, Freedom from Fear and Freedom from Want. So with great pride, we present this magnificent collection.

Mr. Rockwell Talks About His "Four Freedoms"

"When Roosevelt and Churchill issued their famous Atlantic Charter, with its Four Freedoms proclamation, I tried to read it . . . but I hadn't been able to get beyond the first paragraph. The language was so noble. Then one night . . . I thought, that's it! I'll illustrate the Four Freedoms using my Vermont neighbors as models. I'll express the ideas in simple, everyday scenes . . . in terms everybody can understand."

Norman Rockwell depicted these great beliefs with his own inimitable and unique brand of genius. Freedom of Speech is portrayed by a man unafraid of reprisal as he speaks his mind at a town meeting . . . Freedom of Worship shows all people free to worship according to their own dictates . . . Freedom from Want is depicted by a family sharing their Thanksgiving meal together and Freedom from Fear is shown tenderly by a mother and father as they snuggle their children safely in bed for the night. Rockwell himself says "The Four Freedoms was the best idea I ever had."

Quotations from "My Adventures As An Illustrator" by Norman Rockwell

A Strictly Limited First Edition

This First Edition will be of special interest to knowledgeable collectors because they represent Rockwell's greatest work and traditionally, first editions have always been the most valued. To insure the integrity of this edition, ingots will be struck to fill orders postmarked by November 30, 1974. Once those orders are filled, no more first edition ingots will ever be minted.

An Exclusive Treasury in .999 Fine Silver of Rockwell Masterpieces

The original Rockwell paintings shown at right, are of epic proportions. And so will be the ingots. Each beautifully sculptured ingot will measure 1¾" x 2¼" and will contain 1000 grains of .999 fine silver, the purest and finest silver available. These will contain more than twice the silver of our standard ingot. Each will be struck in high bas-relief with a satiny image and antique finish to clearly show every detail of the great art.

Your Valuable Personal Serial Number

Your First Edition Collection will be minted expressly for you and each ingot will be inscribed with your personal matching serial number along with The Hamilton Mint Hallmark. In addition, you will receive a certificate of authenticity to certify the limited edition status and precious metal content of each ingot.

Significant Investment Potential

We feel that many limited edition silver mintings are good investments but none do we feel has the potential of this particular Rockwell collection. And this comes at a time when leading economists are predicting that silver and gold will continue to become more valuable in the years ahead. Collectors have already realized bonanzas. For example, a 1970 Christmas Ingot was issued for $12.00 and now brings $195.00. A 1972 Thanksgiving Ingot containing 1 oz. of silver originally sold for $4.50 and now brings about $25.00. So please act promptly to share in the excitement of owning this magnificent collection.

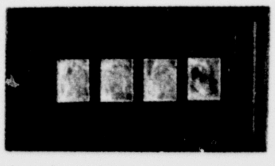
Guaranteed Price Protection

Subscribers to The Four Freedoms are guaranteed the original purchase price, no matter how high the price of silver may escalate. You will receive your first ingot soon after your application is accepted and the three additional ingots at monthly intervals thereafter. The Hamilton Mint will not accept any orders postmarked after November 30, 1974, any orders received after that will regretfully be returned.

Deluxe Edition of 24 KT. Gold on .999 Fine Silver

This special edition is the ultimate in beauty and combines the Pure Silver ingots with a layer of 24 KT. Gold to further enhance the potential value of this edition. Each ingot will also be individually hallmarked and serially numbered.

Special Display Frame



As a subscriber to The Four Freedoms Ingot Collection you will receive, at no additional cost, an easel-backed display case custom designed to hold your complete collection. This versatile display case of finely stained wood with a fine walnut finish, will proudly sit on a desk or shelf, or hang on wall.

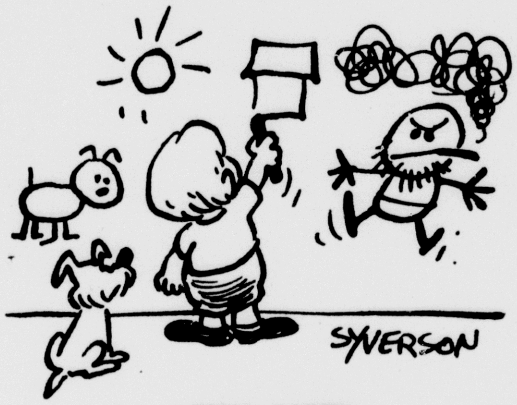
ARMOUR'S ARMOURY
By Richard Armour



WALL CAPER

I've seen the handwriting on the wall—
Not writing, though, so much as scrawl
And made with crayons red and blue
With bits of green and purple too.

The writing, if you'd call it that,
Or painting, was prepared by Pat,
A lad who will be three next June.
He's done his bedroom and quite soon
Will do the other two and then
The bathroom, living room and den....
A child, a wall, a crayon—yes,
These three together make a mess.

One youngster to another: "I wish they'd quit giving me my way. I've worked out a new tantrum I want to try." —Conrad Fiorello

In his later years, Albert Einstein was one of the most lionized of men. At a party, the hostess led him to the window and, pointing to the sky, said: "I can spot Venus. It always shines like a beautiful woman." "I'm sorry," Einstein said, "but the star you're pointing to is Jupiter." "Oh, Dr. Einstein," said the hostess, "you're just amazing. You can tell the sex of a star that far away!"

The day Gerald Ford was sworn in as President, our six-year-old daughter walked in just in time to hear, "Ladies and Gentlemen, the President of the United States." As she looked at the television, she said, "That's not the President of the United States." I informed her this was the new President. As the camera went to Mrs. Ford, she said, "They have a new wife too!"

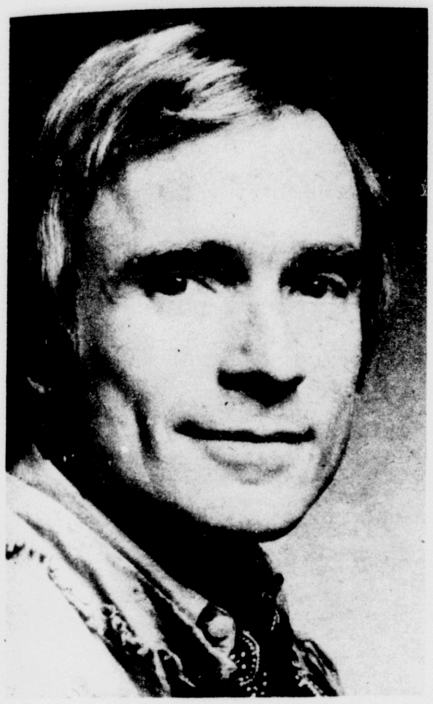
What in the World!



DICK CAVETT
A tribute to Kate

QUOTE: In a new book about his rise to stardom, Dick Cavett talks about Katharine Hepburn: "There is a physical phenomenon about Hepburn. Her incredible energy affects the people around her as if they had been given a stimulant. Somewhere deep inside her is this dynamo racing, and if you are close you can damn near feel it. It must be hell on her. The day she taped my show, her energy seemed to increase as time went by and was still on the upswing when we quit. I had another show to do and was beginning to feel the physical effects of the lights and of just sitting there that long. By the time we had to stop she was like a horse at the starting gate, and I know she could have gone on a few more hours at full tilt. I learned later that she went home with a couple of friends and in fact did talk for several more hours before beginning to wind down." UNQUOTE. From "Cavett," by Dick Cavett and Christopher Porterfield (Harcourt Brace Jovanovich, Inc., $8.95).

Marrying for money? According to the American Medical Association, rich people tend to live longer than the general population—so the AMA has compiled a few statistics that might aid you in your search for someone to grow old with.

- There are approximately 347,000 men and 868,000 women who are single, widowed, divorced or legally separated whose net worth is at least $100,000.
- Of these, 11,000 men and 27,000 women are worth $1 million or more.
- 800 men and 2,000 women are worth $5 million or more.

To aid in your search, it might help to know that the largest numbers of rich people live in New York, California, Illinois, Pennsylvania, Ohio and Texas, in that order. If all your efforts to nail an affluent mate fail, remember you can always marry for love!

ORUDZH AGAEV
Retiring at age 139

Can this Russian farmer, one Orudzh Agaev, actually be 139 years old? So Agaev claims. And what is even more startling is that at this ripe old age he has finally agreed to be pensioned off from working at the Azizbke Collective Farm, where he has been toiling since he was 19. He still rides a horse, has a good memory and takes care of his second wife, a mere 83. Agaev is allegedly responsible for a family of 151, including great grandchildren. Twenty-four other senior citizens over the age of 90 live in the same village, and their secret of longevity still eludes scientists.

Deluxe Executive Knit Slacks!

You have seen 100% Polyester knits for over $20 a pair! This year you'll see them for even more, and wonder who's got the money to afford them. These Haband Slacks might be the answer: They always look fresh, never need ironing. The heavy two-way knit means two-way fit, and that means Double Value: More comfortable full fit in seat, crotch and thighs but also a trim straight look that never bags or droops.

MACHINE WASHABLE – No tensions or tight spots. No Iron. No Dry Cleaning. A simple spin through the home wash machine is all they need. What you get is top value Two-Way Knit Slacks and FREE COMFORT LIKE YOU NEVER FELT BEFORE!

Remember, Business Slacks are Haband's Business. Our experience positively shouts that knits are your best buy. Now our tremendous inventory carry-over makes this one last market scoop still possible: 2 pairs only $19.95. But hurry, knits are in huge demand!
